Senate Passes Reorganizing Bill With 2-House Veto

Wheeler Amendment, Reconsidered After Switch by Chavez, Is Defeated, 46-44

By Robert C. Albright.

The President's Government reorganization bill, pigeonholed by the last Congress and threatened this session with blockading changes, yesterday shook free of the Wheeler amendment and rode, 63 to 23, to Senate passage.

The sharply modified measure now goes to conference with the House, which already has passed the bill.

One last modifying change was accepted before final Senate approval—an amendment by Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, eliminating power for the President to abolish Federal "functions" in merger or elimination of bureaus.

An overnight reversal by the Senate stripped from the bill the Wheeler amendment, requiring two-chamber approval of reorganization plans before they can take effect. As the bill passed, the President's plans will become operative within 60 days after submission, unless both House and Senate disapprove.

Chavez Changes Stand

An eleventh-hour switch by Senator Chavez (Democrat), of New Mexico, enabled the Administration to reverse the Wheeler amendment approved Tuesday. By a 46 to 44 vote the Senate agreed to reconsider the prior day's action. By the same count the Wheeler amendment was defeated on a second roll call.

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, teaming with Senate Majority Leader Barkley, followed up this advantage with a maneuver to clinch the vote, which carried 48 to 41.

Passage of the bill followed two hours later, with 58 Democrats, 2 Republicans, 1 Progressive, 1 Independent and 1 Farmer-Laborite voting "aye." Three Democrats joined 19 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite in final opposition.

Warren Credits Byrnes

In effect, the reorganization battle was won when the Wheeler amendment was killed by one vote. Had the amendment succeeded, the Administration was expected to abandon the program.

Representative Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, who drafted the compromise outline which won through both Houses last night forecast swift agreement in conference. Warren gave credit to Chairman Byrnes of the Senate Reorganization Committee, and Vice President Garner.

"Except for the fine work of Senator Byrnes and the highly effective work done by the Vice President, the bill never would have been passed in a form satisfactory to the House," said Warren.

Garner Tuesday passed up an opportunity to clinch the Wheeler amendment by failing to vote on a tie. Had Chavez not switched yesterday, it was expected, Garner would have broken the ensuing tie in favor of the Administration plan.

The bill empowers the President to transmit reorganization plans to Congress, not subject to amendment, and which must be accepted as a whole or not at all. These plans would become law within 60 days if meanwhile "there has not been passed by the two houses a concurrent resolution stating in substance that the Congress does not favor the reorganization plan."

To assure opportunity for a vote on the program, the bill authorizes any member of either House to move to discharge committees holding the plans. If discharge is voted, the plan would be brought before the chamber on a motion to disapprove the program in toto and 20 hours' debate would follow. But only if both House and Senate voted disapproval could a Presidential program be stopped.

As finally passed, an economy declaration by Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, was written prominently into the measure. It declared that "by reason of continued national deficits beginning in 1931, it is desirable to reduce substantially Government expenditures" and that such cuts may be

Artist Flagg, Beauty Judge, Sick of Talking About Women

This is James Montgomery Flagg's conception of the lady Government clerk in Washington. Flagg, the artist who has picked a thousand beauties, but says he has never seen a beautiful woman in a beauty contest, drew this sketch without seeing any of Washington's women

He Sketches His Idea of Washington Girls Though He Hasn't Seen Them, Doesn't Care What They Look Like; Thinking's His Hobby

By Scott Hart

James Montgomery Flagg is "getting sick as hell of being interviewed about women." He settled back in his chair.

"The United States has grown woman mad," the artist said. He sighed, looking out of the eyes that have picked a thousand beauties.

"I have never seen a beautiful woman in a beauty contest. Too many things enter in the choosing there. Politics and all. You know."

Then he leaned forward. "Get this straight: Beauty comes from breeding. You may see the beauty and, knowing the background of the gal, wonder what made me say that. But there was something there. There was something fine there, maybe a long way back, but there."

Flagg snorted. "I came to Washington to deliver a picture about forest fires and I'm asked about women. Why doesn't somebody ask me what I think of serious

Treasury Goes Ahead With Tax Revision

Feels President Is Sympathetic Despite His Pessimistic Tone

Despite President Roosevelt's disavowal of any responsibility in the matter, Treasury officials yesterday went ahead with the preparation of a program for removal of tax deterrents to business recovery with a view to presenting it to Congress.

The feeling at the Treasury was that the President, notwithstanding the discouraging tone of his remarks on tax revision, still had left the door open to tax revision as a business aid. Moreover, officials were believed to have received assurances that the President was sympathetic to what they were doing.

Meanwhile, Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, passed to the Treasury the responsibility for the program to remove tax deterrents. The President, in his Tuesday press conference, had laid the responsibility on Harrison's doorstep.

The man generally credited with conceiving and trying to work out the program is John W. Hanes,

New Type Plane Crashes in Test

Dayton, Ohio, March 22 (AP).—A new type fighting plane, secretly designed for the Army and valued at $250,000 by its owners, took fire in midair today and crashed near Wright Field.

Frank Sinclair, civilian test pilot for the Seversky Aircraft Co., suffered burns and bruises but parachuted to safety.

House Bans Suffrage in District Plan

Issue Has No Part In Reorganization, Committee Rules

By James D. Secrest.

Chairman Kennedy, of the House sub-committee on District reorganization, last night predicted that a compromise plan for modernizing the local government will be worked out after hearing citizens association spokesmen indorse the majority of the Griffenhagen proposals.

With a preponderance of civic groups favoring the retention of the board of education as an autonomous agency, Kennedy said he believed an agreement could be reached which would satisfy the citizens, while maintaining the principle of the Griffenhagen plan.

The Federation of Citizens Associations, through Harry N. Stull, vice president, indorsed the major recommendations of the reorganization scheme, but objected to any reduction in the powers of the school board.

Beverage Board Retention

Stull also asked that the Alcoholic Beverage Board be retained and that the Public Utilities Commission continue as an independent agency.

Frank O. Everett, of Griffenhagen & Associates, explained that the Public Utilities Commission will not be subservient to the District administrator and stated the school advisory board would have considerable influence in the shaping of school policies.

The hearing was recessed until next week, when representatives of the board of education and library trustees will be heard.

Yesterday's hearing centered around the board of education and suffrage. The latter question was ruled out early, however, over the

Raw Meat Eating Killer Shoots Two Possemen Off High Cliff

By the Associated Press.

Powell, Wyo., March 22.—Entrenched in mountain rocks, Earl Durand, Wyoming's "Tarzan" slayer, shot down two possemen in a gun battle late today with a surrounding force of 65 Wyoming and Montana officers.

The two possemen fell on a mountain slope directly in Durand's line of fire from his citadel of rocks, 400 feet up a steep ridge.

Game Warden Boyd Bennison said he believed the two men shot were Arthur Garlo of Meeteetse, Wyo., and Orville Lindbury of Cody, Wyo.

Unable to go to the aid of the two men, the posse officers aimed a heavy rifle barrage at the stronghold of the beseiged raw meat-eating fugitive, sought since last Thursday for the slaying of two Wyoming peace officers.

Durand remained safely entrenched as darkness fell, commanding from his fortress a clear line of fire to his front, his right

Defense Bill Passes, House Speeds Funds

$153,000,000 Appropriated for Immediate Use In Rearmament

Congress passed the $358,000,000 emergency defense bill last night and rushed funds to bulwark the Nation's armed forces in a troubled world.

Anticipating final action on the defense conference report, the House earlier approved without debate the actual money to begin procurement of new armament, passing a deficiency appropriation bill which carries $153,239,924 for national defense.

The Senate sub-committee on military appropriations meets today to approve the $499,000,000 regular Army supply bill, carring $50,000,000 for immediately expanding American air power. The latter sum will be used to build 565 war planes, the first increment of the enlargement of the Army Air Corps to 6,000 first line planes, an objective of the special defense program.

Pittman Bill Pushed

As these plans went forward for strengthening the Nation's fighting forces, the Administration pressed its plans for co-operation with other American republics in repelling outside aggression. Spokesmen for the State, War and Navy departments appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to urge passage of the Pittman bill to help Latin American arm.

Other developments were:

Officials of the National Advisory Council for Aeronautics and the Civil Aeronautics Authority told the House Appropriations Committee, in testimony made public yesterday, that Germany builds better military planes than the United States and far exceeds this Nation in trained pilots.

The Navy let a $4,699,057 contract for new planes and spare parts to the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation of San Diego, and received a bid of $31,800,000 from the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. for building a 20,000-ton aircraft carrier, last ship in the current year's program. It was the only bid submitted.

Foreign Policy Fight Forecast

Presaging another battle over foreign policy, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee decided to meet next Wednesday to set hearings on proposals to amend the neutrality act. One of these, offered by Chairman Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, would aid Great Britain and France in the event of war with Germany, by permitting "cash and carry" sales of munitions.

Senator Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, told a radio audience last night the United States will not permit any nation "to announce us as a war ally" or to represent us as willing to participate in a conference looking to "consolidation of forces for military encounter." The Senate majority whip denied that President Roose-

Davis Gets Year; Hines Will Be Sentenced Today

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 22.—J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, the sleek former attorney for the Dutch Schultz policy racket, whose testimony helped convict Tammany District Leader James J. Hines as its hired political protector, was sentenced today to one year's imprisonment.

"Big Harry" Schoenhaus, another Schultz henchman who, like Davis, had pleaded guilty and "talked" for the State, was given a two-year suspended sentence.

Hines, himself, in the past one of the most powerful political bosses in the city, will be sentenced tomorrow.

Hitler Hissed; Rumania 'Sorry'

New York, March 22 (AP).—An explosion of cyclopropane gas, an anesthetic, killed Frank Rudersdort, 21, in the operating room at Roosevelt Hospital today. Officials said static electricity caused the explosion shortly after the victim underwent a tumor operation. Attendants were uninjured.

Rumania Signs Reich Pact 'Preserving Its Independence;' Hitler to Enter Memel Today

Berlin Threatens To Seize Lithuania, Then Trades Pledges Of Non-Aggression

By the Associated Press.

Kaunas, Lithuania (Thursday), March 23.—Germany and Lithuania today completed the reunion of Memelland with the expanding Reich of Adolf Hitler as the Fuehrer, aboard the battleship Deutschland, crossed the Baltic for a triumphal entry this morning into his latest territorial acquisition.

A five-point nonaggression agreement signed early today at Berlin climaxed a swift series of events which led to Lithuania's surrender of its only port under threats which semiofficial sources said were directed against independence of the tiny war-born republic.

The Berlin agreement provides immediate evacuation of the 1,099 square miles of Memel, but assures the republic of a free use of the port.

German Troops Enter

The declared purpose of the nonaggression pact was "to strengthen" the decisions taken by Lithuania and Germany and to safeguard friendly relations between them.

It pledged the two countries neither to fight each other nor to support any third power attacking either of them.

[Motorized German "shock troops" already were streaming across the East Prussian border at Tilsit, according to the United Press, and the Nazi military machine was scheduled to stage a demonstration in Memel today as a welcome to Hitler. The greeting of the 150,000 Memellanders was expected to be in sharp contrast to the surly reception given him in Prague a week ago.—Editor's note.]

To Be "Good Neighbors"

The annexation agreement was reached between foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and a Lithuanian delegation which went to Berlin to negotiate details of the transfer of territory.

Commissioners are to be appointed to carry out details in handing over the administration of affairs in the 1,099-square mile-district.

The negotiations, a communique said, led to a solution "regulating the reunion of Memelland with the German Reich and creating the preconditions for future good neighborly relations between the two countries."

Reliable sources said Lithuania was told bluntly by Germany she must give up Memel or all Lithuania would be taken over by German military might.

(Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare told the British House of Commons that Germany had threatened to occupy all Lithuania if

Mother-to-Be Asks Aid in Naming Boy (or Girl)

A rose might change its name and still be sweet, but a baby should be named right in the first place—believes Mrs. Del H. Freitag, 2747 Woodley Place, who yesterday asked The Post to help her with the naming of her first boy (or girl).

"I don't want a short plain name, like Mary or Jane or Bill or John. It must be a good-sized name and something a little different. If it sounds a little bit foreign, I shan't mind," she said as she requested all the lists of first names The Post had.

Family names are out, Mrs. Freitag declared, because they never give complete satisfaction. She will have no Del H., jr.'s, nor will she use her own name of Frances—if the baby happens to be a girl.

"I wouldn't object to a double name, if I liked it. In fact, I think a boy should have a double name by all means, because he needs initials. The baby is coming very shortly and I'm still completely at a loss. Doesn't The Post have a list of names?"

The Post's library, needless to report, is searching all the reference books available—and will submit a list for Mrs. Freitag's consideration.

Salesman Is Robbed Of $100,000 in Gems

Summary of European Affairs

RUMANIA AND GERMANY concluded a "normal" trade agreement, which Rumanians said preserves their "political and economic independence."

REPORTS OF INTENSIVE military activity by Hungary and Bulgaria on Rumania's borders alarmed capitals from Ankara to London.

REICHSFUEHRER HITLER sailed across the Baltic to take possession of Memel, as a "non-aggression" agreement signed in Berlin formally gave the territory to Germany, providing free port rights for Lithuania.

GREAT BRITAIN'S labors to win Polish, French and Soviet support for a "stop-Hitler" declaration were hampered by Polish insistence on a pledge of military aid; France and Britain were reported agreed on mutual aid in case of Nazi attack on Belgium, Switzerland or the Netherlands.

FRANCE WAS INFORMED "unofficially" that Mussolini is amenable to rapprochement, but Italian dispatches insisted on the strength of the Rome-Berlin axis.

GERMAN SOURCES said acquisition of Memel would produce at least a temporary halt in German expansion, indicating possible support for Italian claims against France in the near future.

POLISH SOCIALISTS shouted "Down with the Germans," and police guarded German and Italian legations.

Daladier Told Duce Is Ready for Deal

London Fears War As Stop Hitler Plan Is Blocked

By Joseph Driscoll.

Special Cable to The Post.

London, March 22.—Reports of further troop movements in Hungary and Rumania reached the foreign office tonight, increasing fear that Germany, fresh from her annexation of Memelland, will turn against Rumania, with the assistance of a Hungary bent on recovering its lost province of Transylvania.

Hungary and Rumania have mobilized large forces close to their common frontier. Germany is marching troops through her Slovakian "protectorate" toward Hungary and her new province of Ruthenia.

When the German and Hungarian forces are assembled in sufficient quantities, the world should know what is in store for Rumania. The minorities of 700,000 germans and 3,000,000 Hungarians in Rumania might furnish Reichsfuehrer Hitler with a pretext for another of his "self-determination" drives with the rich Rumanian oil wells as one objective.

Paris, London Uncertain

King Carol has appealed to Britain and France for military assistance, if needed, but so far London and Paris have not made up their minds. The Rumanian Minister to London, V. V. Tilea, who was to have flown home to Bucharest to consult with King Carol, has decided to remain here, in the hope of speeding up the Anglo-French answer.

French Foreign Minister Bonnet conferred with Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax today for an hour and a half, but the formation of a common front against aggression is still up in the air.

Plan Weak, Poles Say

France and Russia have accepted in principle, but a government spokesman admitted today that "definitive replies" have not yet been received from Paris, Moscow or Warsaw, as to Britain's proposal for a joint declaration of mutual resistance to aggression.

This indicates that these powers and the lesser nations which were also sounded out are thinking up revisions and amendments which the British in turn must consider.

The Poles say the declaration is strong enough to irritate Hitler, but too weak to deter him from further adventures. The Poles want a definite British commitment to fight for Poland and Rumania if Hitler

Rome Reported Receptive to Secret Moves by Paris

By the Associated Press.

Paris, March 22.—Premier Daladier's government, now in possession of full powers to conduct secret diplomacy, was informed today by a friend of Italian Premier Mussolini that Rome was ready to discuss a rapprochement with Paris.

Daladier himself was reported moving cautiously toward the goal that France has sought since Reichsfuehrer Hitler came to power—an agreement with Il Duce to balance Germany's strength, augmented anew today by the absorption of Memel.

For the first time a French government was in a position to negotiate with a dictator on the dictator's own ground of complete secrecy. The way reservists were moving into France's armed forces with a minimum of publicity showed how the nation had been changed by the unprecedented powers which Parliament gave Daladier over the week-end.

[Meanwhile the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies approved a pledge to the people of Czecho-Slovakia that they will "not perish" and that Germany's "injustice and violence will last but a short while," the United Press said.

[The full meaning of the pledge was not explained. It was understood the statement would be submitted soon to Parliament for approval.

[The committee approved the statement after hearing a confidential report on the international situation from its chairman, Jean Mistler.—Editor's note.]

Hubert Lagardelle, French resident of Rome and an old friend of Mussolini, came to Paris today on a mission he sought to keep secret. He conferred immediately with Public Works Minister Anatole de Monzie.

Friends of both said Lagardelle told De Monzie the time was ripe

Poland in Dangerous Spot, Washington Observers Agree

By Edward T. Folliard

Accustomed by now to the rumbling of the Nazi juggernaut, Washington showed little surprise or excitement yesterday over Hitler's latest coup—the taking over of Memel from Lithuania. State Department experts had expected it for some time.

Germany now has Lithuania completely at its mercy, it was agreed, and the war-born Baltic republic will be lucky to survive at all. Eighty-five per cent of Lithuania's exports—mostly dairy products, poultry and meat—clear through Memel, the only first-class port available in the country.

Looking at the Memel grab against a general European background, observers concluded that Poland has most to worry about at the moment. With Hitler now dominating Lithuania, it was pointed out, Poland finds herself in a

Bucharest Trade Pact Said to Avert German Monopolies; 'Open Door' Claimed

By the Associated Press.

Bucharest, March 22.—Rumania and Germany concluded tonight a "normal" trade agreement which Rumanian officials joyfully said preserved their country's "political and economic independence."

Simultaneously Premier Armand Calinescu asserted that concentrations of troops along Rumanian frontiers might be dispersed within "10 or 15 days" and that he expected the international situation to be clarified.

As a result, much of the Balkan peninsula breathed more easily tonight, for the negotiations of the trade treaty were a major factor in the "Rumanian crisis" that upset Europe last week-end, when reports circulated that Germany had demanded special advantages under political pressure.

Monopolies Avoided

Details of the treaty were withheld. Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat, head of a German trade mission, and Jan Dujoiu, Rumanian minister of national economy, signed the pact in which, Rumanians said, Germany was given no monopolistic economic concessions.

One official commented that the "open door to purchasers of the whole world remains open." Negotiators said the subject of special German pledges to respect Rumanian frontiers was not discussed.

A few reservists still were leaving their homes for the Rumanian borders, but they went confident they would be marching back soon.

Posters were distributed in this capital and rushed to provincial centers, bearing the premier's statement that the international situation seemed to be clearing up.

Hungary Believed Quiet

Calinescu's optimism apparently was based on these two developments:

Reports from Hungary of lessening military activity there, Bucharest heard, but could not verify, that Germany had advised Hungary against "demonstrations."

The signing of the trade agreement, which an economic ministry official characterized as "a normal trade pact which should be beneficial to both partners."

Rumanians believed, and foreign diplomatic observers agreed, that a nation contemplating an aggressive action against another people in the next week or two would not go to the trouble of arranging a long-term trade treaty as Germany did.

Trade Gains Expected

"It is expected that business between Germany and Rumania will be increased," the economics ministry official said.

"But Rumania's hands remain free and it cannot be said that the country is in any way articulated into the German economic system."

Through the "open door" of which officials spoke Rumania is expected to receive a British trade delegation within a few days, and it appeared likely Rumania would line up new democratic customers for her wheat, oil and manganese as a result of the international excitement incident to the German negotiations.

Rumania, alarmed by Hungarian troop movements, had called out special units of several yearly classes. Afterward military activity in Bulgaria led Rumania to summon reservists in the Bucharest area.

Magyars Urge Attack

Budapest, March 22 (AP).—Demands that Hungary, which already has troops massed along the Rumanian frontier, move into Rumania at once came from a group of Hungarian revisionist deputies today.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Honolulu, T. H. March 22.
OF THEE I SING

Tremendous tales circulate among the tourists about the huge guns that bristle in the crater on Diamond Head, above Waikiki Beach. Yesterday the Army showed me its secret fortifications there. I shall not say whether it's true that some of the guns there are 20-inch guns with a range of 40 to 50 miles . . . Let our enemies guess about that. . . .

Harlan Miller

But I will disclose that the view is excellent; some of the guns command Doris Duke's terrace; and the drive around the narrow dirt road on the inside lip of the crater is one of the most hair-raising I have ever taken. Two or three inches deviation of the wheels and you seem certain to roll into the crater.

* * * *

Those civilians who told me the Army is too suspicious of the Japanese in this American territory must have been speaking of former generals in the islands . . . One of the high-ranking officers told me yesterday that the farther away an observer is from Hawaii, the more nervous he is about the Japanese population.

"—jewels in the Tower of London"

Another officer told me that there is not in the Army Intelligence files a single case of Japanese espionage in the Hawaiian Islands.

"We are sure that they have agents at work in the islands," he said, "but either they are inactive or supernaturally discreet."

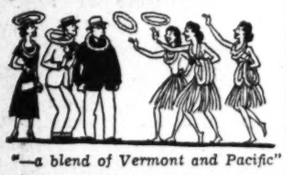
According to the intelligent, well-informed officer who took me to see the huge 16-inch guns which protect the entrance to Pearl Harbor, the average infantry officer would be willing to lead armed American soldiers of Japanese extraction into action against Japanese soldiers.

* * * *

Incidentally, every 1,000-yard square of water around Hawaii within a range of more than 25 miles—the big 16-inch guns can shoot effectively well beyond that distance—is marked on the map in the elaborate gas-proof control dugout, and they can throw a 2,000-pound shell into any part of each square, guided by the observation posts on the hills, almost as accurately as you can focus a camera.



"—a blend of Vermont and Pacific"

In another crater behind Honolulu the Army has built an amazing ammunition dump, which, had it been built by the Germans, would have elicited awe-struck oh's and ah's . . . There are around 200 magazines tunneled into the rock, containing the artillery shells, airplane bombs, powder and rifle cartridges of the reserve supply; enough to last a long, long time. Topped by many feet of rock and camouflaged by the undergrowth, it is as nearly bomb-proof as man can make it, and it is guarded like the crown jewels in the Tower of London.

* * * *

Hawaii is a strange blend of palm-fronded gayety and sugar, national defense and pineapples . . . Here the strong tides of New England and the Orient overlap . . . The people of Hawaii say that if it is our destiny to deal with the Japanese and the other people around the Pacific, Hawaii is the laboratory where we can learn.

* * * *

Hospitality here is an unforgettable blend of American and Polynesian friendliness. The Pacific's sunny atmosphere has softened the New England stock into a manner more like Alabama than Connecticut; rather it has peeled off the extra layers of reticence that New Englanders and other Americans acquire. It is impossible to think of leaving this place, guns and leis and hula dancers, and all, without a lump in the throat. It's one place that surpasses even all the allure of the multi-colored pictures, the seductions of the Hawaiian broadcasts.

Chicagoan Challenges Justice Black's Seat

By the Associated Press.

The right of Associate Justice Hugo L. Black to a seat on the Supreme Court was challenged yesterday by Elizabeth Jacobs of Chicago.

Mrs. Jacobs asked the Tribunal to reverse its judgment against her on February 27 in a tax case, on the grounds Justice Black's participation violated a constitutional specification that no member of Congress may be appointed to any civil post "the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time."

Mrs. Jacobs said Black, as a Senator, voted in favor of a retirement act which, she said, increased the emoluments of the justices.

WPA Inquiry Wins Approval Of Rules Group

Taylor Is Reported Backing Half-Million Slash in Relief Fund

The Administration received two WPA setbacks yesterday as the House Rules Committee voted favorably, 7 to 4, on a resolution providing for "a thorough investigation" of WPA, and it was reported that Chairman Taylor, of the Appropriations Committee, would approve a $50,000,000 slash in the pending relief bill.

Although Taylor himself refused to state how he would vote, The Post was informed he had aligned himself with the "economy" members of the sub-committee handling relief. It was Taylor who last week—at request of the Administration's leaders in the House—"deposed" Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, as acting chairman of the sub-committee because Woodrum was not considered sufficiently friendly to the WPA appropriation of $150,000,000 requested by the President.

The sub-committee, which has deferred voting on the relief measure until early next week, will approve $100,000,000 for the WPA, unless unexpected changes occur over the week-end. At present, it was learned six of the eight Democratic members, and all four Republicans, will support the smaller figure. Only Representative Cannon, of Missouri, and Snyder, of Pennsylvania (Democrats), will disapprove

The full committee will also indorse the 33 per cent slash in the President's recommendation—if all the Republicans, as seem likely, hew to the "economy" line. On the floor, however, the bill will have more difficult sailing.

Action of the Rules Committee in indorsing an investigation of the WPA was taken yesterday over the emphatic but futile protests of Chairman Sabath, ardent New Dealer from Illinois. Representative Cox (Democrat), equally ardent anti-New Dealer from Georgia, who sponsored the resolution, said he would call it up for House action next week. He was confident of easy passage.

However, the resolution, which directs the Appropriations Committee to do the investigating, was coldly received even in some quarters considered unfriendly to the WPA. One comment was that "the Appropriations Committee already can carry out all the investigation necessary—this is merely an attempt to dig up dirt on the WPA."

Fund at Least $30,000

In the Rules Committee meeting, Representative Sabath vainly demanded that Col. Harrington, WPA administrator, be allowed to testify before the committee voted on the investigation. Visibly agitated by his defeat in committee, the 82-year-old chairman later told The Post that he opposed the resolution because "Representative Taylor has stated that the Appropriations Committee is investigating WPA anyway." The resolution will carry with it an appropriation of at least $30,000.

The Rules Committee met behind closed doors, but it is understood that various members criticized the WPA for its alleged "domination" by the Workers Alliance, for its theater projects and New York World's Fair exhibit, for some of its policies in the South and for "politics in relief."

How They Voted

The vote on approving the resolution was: For—Representatives Cox, Howard Smith, Dies, Lawrence Lewis and Dempsey (Democrats), and Representatives Mapes and Allen (Republicans); against—Representatives Sabath, Delaney, Colmer and Nelson (Democrats). Representative Dies was making his first appearance in the Capitol since an appendoectomy a month ago.

Speaker Bankhead said that he had "no objection to the investigation if a majority of the House wants it," but added that the Appropriations Committee was intending to conduct an extensive inquiry into WPA before voting it funds for the fiscal year 1940. In addition, he pointed to the hearings held for the past few days on the question of appropriating $150,000,000 for the remainder of the current fiscal year.

In a statement yesterday, Representative Bender (Republican), of Ohio, opposed the full $150,000,000 appropriation for relief.

Mrs. Edward Finckenstaedt, president of the Washington Home for Incurables, broke ground yesterday for the new wing of the Home, Thirty-sixth and Upton streets northwest. With her are Robert Woods Bliss (center), who delivered a dedicatory address, and the Rev. Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, pastor of the Church of the Covenant. The new wing, made possible by a legacy from Mrs. Abram Lisner, will house 33 more patients, and contains 11 rooms for nurses.

Maine Is Only State in Union to Show Increase in Payments on 1938 Incomes

By the Associated Press.

Representative Brewster (Republican), Maine, said yesterday that Maine, butt "of many good-natured jests as a result of its peculiar political complexiton," now had supplied the country with "the best joke of them all."

BREWSTER

This "joke," Brewster told the House, was a Treasury report showing that Maine was the only State to show an increase over 1937 in first quarter payments on 1938 incomes. Maine, he said, went up 20 per cent, while the national average decline was 30 per cent.

Brewster turned toward the Democratic side and added:

"This would seem to be a clear case to prove that political virtue is its own reward, and to indicate that if the National will only follow Maine next year we will yet bail the country out."

Representative Tenerowicz (Democrat), Michigan, gleefully told his friends a "future President of the United States" was born in Washington earlier in the day.

He thus announced the birth of a son, his first child. The Representative said Mrs. Tenerowicz and the baby were getting along nicely.

Prompt approval of two bills by the House Immigration Committee today marked this Government's accelreated drive to rid the United States of undesirable aliens.

Exclusion or deportation of aliens who advocate "any change in the American form of government," on the ground they constitute "a menace to good government and the peace and prosperity of our country," was provided in the first by Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, member of the Dies committee investigating un-American activities.

Representative Dickstein (Democrat), of New York, was author of the second bill, which provides for cancellation of citizenship of any person voting in a foreign election or plebiscite.

Foreign governments are financing emissaries, with U. S. headquarters, the strongly worded committee report said, and "such agencies stir up strife both in political and industrial circles, and their aim is to create dissatisfaction and discord with our form of government and all democratic governments."

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, spent a part of his fifty-fifth birthday anniversary yesterday reiterating that he is not a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination.

"I'm finally beginning to convince some people that I mean it, too," he grinned.

After 11 years in the Senate, Vandenberg is closing no doors on the future. But his choice of public jobs, he said, is the one he holds now.

Even more appealing, though, he added, would be the life of a wandering literateur, free to see the world, free to write about it as he chose.

A compromise measure designed to eliminate discrimination in freight rate charges was introduced by leaders of a Southern movement for revision of the country's freight rate structure.

A two-point resolution was introduced by Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, and Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama. It would call upon the Interstate Commerce Commission for an investigation of existing rates with special attention to geographical differentials, and would declare unlawful any "undue or unreasonable" preference or any undue discrimination against a shipper, a territory, or a specific commodity.

Miners' Demands Again Rejected

New York, March 22 (AP).—The end of the fifth day of discussion on a new contract for the bituminous coal industry, operators and miners indicated tonight they had made no progress in reconciling their differences. Operators issued this statement:

"Under the existing circumstances in the bituminous coal industry, any further increase in wage scales would be suicidal."

Burgos Denies Peace Talks

Burgos, March 22 (AP).—Spokesman for the Spanish Nationalists tonight denied that any peace negotiations were in progress with the Madrid regime of Gen. Miaja.

The spokesman emphasized it was up to the enemy to comply with Gen. Franco's demands for an unconditional surrender or to signify their intention to fight to the bitter end.

Lewis Defiant, Hopes of Peace With AFL Dim

C. I. O. Chief Says Those Who Charge Marxism Are 'Liars, Poltroons'

Peace negotiations between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations appeared to be headed toward collapse yesterday as John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chief, said his organization did not propose to dissolve "into a multitude of pieces."

Lewis likewise paid his respects to some of the A. F. of L. leaders by saying anyone who accused the C. I. O. of being communistic was was "a knave, a liar and a poltroon," adding:

"This statement is as broad as a barn door and as high as a steeple."

Frey Made Red Charge

John P. Frey, head of the A. F. of L. metal trades department, charged Sunday that the C. I. O. proposal for an American Congress of Labor was identical with Communist proposals.

Frey, William Green, A. F. of L. president, and members of the federation's executive council, meeting here yesterday, declined to comment on Lewis' remarks, made in a speech in New York.

The council discussed the question of whether to recognize expansion by C. I. O. unions into new fields since they pulled out of the A. F. of L. if they should return to the fold. This question has arisen in connection with peace negotiations.

Green Keeps Silence

Green and other A. F. of L. leaders took the position that any comment which would endanger peace negotiations would be out of place.

Lewis' insistence that the C. I. O. must be preserved as a separate entity, however, will mean failure of the peace conferences, it was predicted, unless modified.

Yankee Clipper Reported Ready For Atlantic Test

By the Associated Press.

Government sources reported yesterday that Pan-American Airways had made arrangements for a transatlantic flight by the 42-ton Yankee Clipper, starting tomorrow, to test new equipment in preparation for regular service.

Departure was said to have been set tentatively for 2 p. m. (Eastern standard time) from New York. The southern route via Horta, Azores, is to be followed to Lisbon, Marseilles, and Southampton. From Southampton the Clipper, first of an aerial fleet of the type, is to proceed to Foynes, Ireland.

Warburg Proposes U. S. Back Britain In Resisting Axis

New York, March 22 (AP).—James P. Warburg, banker, proposed tonight that this country promise support to Britain and France "if they decide to resist further threats or acts of aggression on the part of the axis powers (Germany, Italy and Japan)."

In addresses prepared for a symposium before the Economic Club, Warburg, Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, and John Foster Dulles, counsel to the American peace delegation at Versailles, discussed the question "what should our foreign policy be?"

Warburg, an early Roosevelt Administration adviser, said that American "long-range" policy should be toward world disarmament and rehabilitation of trade, but that in the meantime rearmament should be a first concern.

Rep. Martin Favors Chicago for 1940 G. O. P. Convention

By International News Service.

Representative Martin, of Massachusetts, Republican House leader, last night declared in favor of Chicago as the meeting place for the Republican Party's 1940 convention.

He voiced indorsement of a letter urging Chicago from Representative Allen (Republican), of Galena, Ill., to John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee.

velt had made any secret alliance or "even exchanged a suggestion along such line."

Announcement was made that two new destroyers, the Benham and Ellet, will make a "shakedown cruise" to European waters next month. Leaving Norfolk, April 18, the ships will visit England, France, The Netherlands, Sweden and Northern Ireland.

The Benham will be at the Washington Navy Yard April 13 to 18, it was stated.

The Hepburn naval board, in a supplemental report on air bases, again recommended that the proposed Southeastern air base be established at Jacksonville instead of Miami.

Urging construction of a Government aviation research station at Sunnyvale, Calif., Dr. Vannevar Bush, vice chairman of the N. A. C. A., told the House Appropriations Committee the United States had lost its lead in building the best warplanes to Germany principally because the Reich is spending several times what we do in experimentation. Robert Hinckley, member of the CAA, testified that the United States stood fifth in the number of trained pilots, having a proportion of 30 to Germany's 100, Russia's 80 and Italy's 60. Great Britain was about even with the United States, with France about a third less.

Despite the plea, the committee disapproved the $4,000,000 Sunnyvale project, stating that it did not favor establishment of two laboratories, 3,000 miles apart, engaged on identical problems. The existing N. A. C. A. center is at Langley Field, Va.

Hull Expects to Return From Florida Friday

Secretary Hull notified the State Department yesterday he expected to return Friday from a two-week vacation at Deland, Fla.

Hull, suffering from a cold, left for the South March 10. In his absence Sumner Welles, undersecretary, headed the department. Officials said, however, Hull kept in close touch with the European crisis and other developments by means of two Telephone calls daily.

Delivery Service, Phone Alex. 1400.

Goodman Rubin, local chairman of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, has announced the quota fixed for Alexandria to aid in the relief program for refugees in Germany and other countries, is $5,000. M. Jaffa, of 707 Prince street, is local treasurer.

Rabbi Jonah B. Wise and Rabbi Abba Hillel, national chairmen for the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees and Overseas Needs, have sent a letter to the local group outlining the aims and purposes of the campaign, and urging Alexandria to speed up the drive for funds to alleviate suffering in Czecho-Slovakia and other countries.

Gas Chamber for Dogs

City Engineer H. G. McCartney is in charge of the construction of a modern lethal chamber for disposing of stray dogs, located at the Municipal Stadium, and expected to be ready for use within a week.

The arrangement consists of an air-tight steel box, with electric lights and an observation glass window. It will be supplied with carbon monoxide gas cooled after it comes from an automobile exhaust. The new setup is the type used in Washington and other large cities.

John Howell Funeral

The funeral of John Edward Howell, 46, who died Monday in a veterans' hospital in Oteen, N. C., will be held today at 2 p. m. from the home of his mother, Mrs. Frankie R. Howell, 109 South Royal street. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church. Burial will be with military honors in Arlington National Cemetery, and rites at the grave will be by an Army chaplain, as Mr. Howell was a World War veteran, serving overseas for 22 months.

Son of the late Charles S. Howell, who conducted a men's hat store in the 400 block of King street for many years, Mr. Howell is survived by his mother, three brothers, Charles S. Howell, of Esmont, Va.; Clarence J. Howell, of Philadelphia, and Bedford F. Howell, of Alexandria, and four sisters, Mrs. J. T. Burkhalter, of Savannah, Ga.; Mrs. E. M. Sawyer, of Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. Elliott F. Hoffman and Miss F. Rosina Howell, of this city.

Pallbearers will be Thomas A. Bayne, J. Lovell Wilcoxin, sr., Francis X. Nugent and Howard L. Arnold, of Alexandria; A. B. Carwell, of Washington, and Guy Sarr, of Baltimore.

Safety Instruction Tomorrow

Lieut. Edward J. McDermott, of the State police department, has announced a meeting tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Virginia Public Service building, of the State safety inspection operators for the purpose of giving instructions.

Sergt. W. L. Groth, of Richmond, a safety director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, will speak on the method of procedure for inspection, and all operators of the designated inspection centers are expected to attend.

The semi-annual inspection of all automobiles will start May 1 ending May 31.

Mrs. Kate Reid Dies

Mrs. Kate D. Reid, widow of Henry T. Reid, died early yesterday at her home, 14 West Maple street.

The funeral will be at 5 p. m. today from the Wheatley Funeral Home, 809 King street, conducted by the Rev. Dr. John Paul Tyler, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Community Unites to Repair Hunting Hill Church

Funds were lacking to provide necessary repairs on the Hunting Hill Methodist Church, serving a farm community near Rockville, Md., so residents of the section—Catholics, Protestants, and nonchurch members—volunteered their services for the work. As a gesture of thanks, women of the church gave a dinner in the parish hall for the volunteers, shown above

Folk Fete Is Natural Version Of Early U. S., Mrs. Fry Says

Festival Gives Children Opportunity Not Provided by Textbooks and Films, Parent-Teacher Leader States

The National Folk Festival gives children something they can get neither from textbooks nor from movies, according to Mrs. Walter B. Fry, president of the Washington Congress of Parents and Teachers.

MRS. FRY

"History books provide the facts, and movies about pioneer and Indian life provide color," she said yesterday, commenting on the approaching festival, to be held April 27, 28 and 29 at Constitution Hall. "But books fail to make a child actually see the background of our early life, and too often the movies make him see a distorted, unauthentic picture of it. The festival presents a natural version."

Mrs. Fry attended two performances of the fifth annual festival, held here last year. She and her organization were largely responsible for the interest shown by pupils and their parents in the event. As was the case last year, the P.-T. A. will handle ticket sales for the children's matinees April 27 and 28.

"We're doing all we can to make this year's festival just as successful as last year's," she declared yesterday. "I talk it up wherever I go—at unit meetings, board meetings and so on. Then we've had a notice in our news letter, which reaches 600 unit presidents, school principals, supervising principals and chairmen of local Congress units."

Mrs. Fry does not share the view of some who believe that such productions as the National Folk Festival tend to spoil folk art by taking it from its habitat. "How else are most Americans to see the Indians of New Mexico, the Acadians of Louisiana and the cowboys of the West?" she asked. "Most families are unable to travel extensively. The only way for them to know their country is for the country to come to them. The National Folk Festival has done much to make this possible."

Volunteer Plan To Help Former Prisoner Studied

Organization of volunteers to aid in the rehabilitation of former prisoners was discussed yesterday by Howard B. Gill, consultant in prison administration of the Interior Department, at a meeting of board members of the Community Chest bureau of rehabilitation.

"Individual citizens are needed," he declared, "to supplement the work of public officials and of social workers in private agencies like those of the Community Chest.

"A parole officer, for instance, with an overload of cases, must often spend most of his time on the more difficult cases while some of the good ones blow up."

Scores View Creole Lilies at Botanic Gardens

Scores yesterday visited the five-week-old garden show at the United States Botanic Gardens. The attraction was a display in the big conservatory of hundreds of white creole lilies set in a mass of golden azalea mollis and red-blue cineraria.

A new "discovery" for the North, the creole lily has been grown more than a century in the Mississippi delta village of Buras, 50 miles south of New Orleans. Representative Joachim O. Fernandez, of Louisiana, made possible the acquisition by the Botanic Garden of 1,000 bulbs.

William A. Frederick, landscape architect of the Capital Grounds, said yesterday that the new bulbs give whiter flowers than any other lily.

STOP Baldness
AT THESE THREE POINTS

IS your scalp replacing the hair which falls or is your hair getting thinner and thinner at the (1) temples; (2) frontal point or (3) crown? It is natural for a certain amount of hair to fall each day—but it is equally natural for new hair to replace the hair which falls. Unless you help your scalp to replace the hair it sheds—baldness is sure to overtake you!

Decide today to avoid baldness—to save your hair. Thomas can help you by eliminating local infection—such as dandruff (which keeps hair from growing naturally). More than 1600 men each day are overcoming scalp troubles, stopping abnormal hair loss, and re-growing hair on thin and bald spots by the reliable proved Thomas method. You, too, can have a good head of hair. Call today for a complete scalp examination—no charge or obligation.

Suit Challenges Union Political Dictation

Expelled Iron Worker's Estate Asks Damages

The "right of unions to dictate political activity of their members" was challenged in a $25,000 damage suit filed yesterday in District court for the estate of a man expelled by the American Federation of Labor iron workers organization.

Attorney Louis Lebowitz filed the complaint for Charlotte Grace Carman, of 1038 North Hudson street, Arlington, against officers of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers and against Local No. 5, 908 D street northwest.

"This is not an attack on unions," said Lebowitz. "The plaintiff, as was the late Mr. John G. Thomas for whose estate the damages are sough, is a stanch believer in unions and unionism. But the plaintiff opposes dictatorship by union officials, who use their power to perpetuate themselves in office."

Thomas, the complaint charged, was expelled by the iron workers in 1936, when he joined a group advocating a bill "to promote the welfare of workers and otherwise regulate union organization."

At the time, he was working for the Karl Koch Erecting Co., on the Library of Congress annex, the complaint added. Union officers, it said, threatened to call a strike unless Thomas was fired and he was deprived of his job. He found it impossible, the complaint said, to get another job because the union announcements that he had been expelled made employers afraid to hire him, although he was a capable worker.

Thomas died August 19, 1937.

U. S. to Give Stars; Be on Time, Girls

Those 90 stenographers in the stenographic pool of the Agriculture Department solicitor's office are to be rewarded for punctuality in arriving for work on time, if a plan now under informal consideration takes effect.

Each morning, the punctual will get a silver star; those who appear on time each morning for a week will get a gold star. Pool officials say nothing can be announced for several days yet. The girls said they were "a-thrilling."

Goldsborough Trial Today on Speed Charge

T. Alan Goldsborough, recently confirmed appointee to the District Court bench, will appear in Traffic Court this morning to answer charges of speeding. The case, originally set for yesterday, was postponed until today when the court was informed the defendant had an important appointment.

Goldsborough was charged with driving 45 miles-an-hour in a 30-mile zone.

Let President Rule Money, Senators Urged

Shift Would Peril Present Valuation, Says Treasury Aide

By the Associated Press.

A Treasury official testified yesterday that world conditions might force a devaluation of United States currency if Congress curtailed existing monetary powers of the President and tried to handle them itself.

The witness, Harry D. White, director of monetary research for the Treasury, urged extension of Presidential powers to alter the gold content of the dollar, operate the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, and continue the domestic silver program. Unless Congress acts, these expire July 1.

Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, presiding at the Senate Banking sub-committee hearing, asked White "if the Constitution made a mistake in giving monetary powers to the Congress?"

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, Administration supporter, broke in to answer in the negative.

"Not any more so than when it gave Congress the power over Interstate Commerce," Bankhead said. "Congress promptly delegated its authority to the Interstate Commerce Commission by a nearly unanimous vote."

White had testified that if Congress announced it was considering the question of devaluation then gold and capital would promptly rush from this country, speculators would create "tremendous pressure against the dollar" and Congress "would be forced to devalue, the thing it was trying to avoid."

White agreed with Senator Taft that "we have more gold in this country than we need" and that it would be a good thing if several billions of this gold" flowed back to other countries.

"The important thing is what causes that movement," White said and added that if it moved because of a serious depression in this country, or unbalance with other world currencies, that might cause "disastrous results."

Glass asked whether "it is more important to adjust our monetary system to foreign exchange than to produce stability and confidence in this country?"

White replied that the two could not "be separated; they are the same thing."

Woman Sets Out For Nirvana, Lands In Jail With Three

A colored woman who chose the wrong moment to look at life through rose-colored glasses was in jail last night with five other women and three men, all charged with violating the narcotic laws.

Two Second Precinct detectives, H. H. Hodge and George E. Cooper, following the trail of stolen property, walked into a house in the 1100 block of Sixth street northwest. Just as they opened the door, they reported, the woman in question was applying a hypodermic syringe to her arm.

Eight other persons in the place, together with 58 capsules of alleged heroin, eight hypodermic syringes and several dozen hypodermic needles were taken into custody.

Capitol Hill to Feast on Tasty Smelt in All-Michigan Menu

Representative Bradley to Be Host at Banquet to Arouse Interest in Escanaba Jamboree

An even ton of smelt, or smelts, as the case may be, will be guests of honor at a homecoming party to be given here April 6.

The finny delicacy will be shipped to the Eastern seaboard, where smelts have romped for centuries, from the upper peninsula of Michigan, where they settled only within the last 13 years.

The eastward movement of smelts takes place at the order of Representative Fred Bradley, of Michigan, who is marshalling a corps of bon vivants from his colleagues on Capitol Hill for a frontal assault on an all-Michigan menu in the Congressional dining rooms.

Some 250 guests are expected at the banquet, according to J. A. Sturgeon, (honest!) secretary to Bradley and a smelt fancier in his own right.

Purpose of the affair here, Sturgeon freely admitted, is to arouse national interest in the fifth annual Escanaba smelt jamboree, to be held April 13 to 15. Ecanaba, at the head of Lake Michigan, is capital city to the Upper Peninsula smelt industry and, incidentally, located within Bradley's Congressional District.

Representative Bradley, not a man to do things by halves, will send his private plane and pilot to Chicago April 5 to bring Miss Barbara Banks, of Escanaba, to Washington for the dinner. Miss Banks, an otherwise attractive young lady, lately photographed in bathing suit and rubber boots, supports the title "Queen of Smeltania."

T. P. Wharton Clarifies 'Chicken Loaf' Suit

Thomas P. Wharton, of 1490 Fourteenth street northwest, asked yesterday that reports of an action he had filed over the rights to the trade name "Wharton's Chicken Loaf" and the business telephone numbers be clarified. Wharton sued Lewis R. Hulfish, of 2213 Fourteenth street northwest, and said he never leased his trade rights to Hulfish, but leased them to Earl R. Popkins, of Alexandria, with whom Hulfish formerly was associated.

Streetcar Thrown Off Tracks as Apparatus Answers False Alarm

Two firemen were seriously injured last night when a fire engine collided with a streetcar at Fourth and G streets northwest, at the height of homegoing traffic.

The injured are Lieut. J. C. Stein and Private W. G. Moore, both of engine company No. 6.

At the same time Mrs. Stein waited in the lieutenant's home at 634 Fifth street northeast for her husband's return to take his place at a table gaily decorated in honor of her birthday, to which 12 guests had been invited.

One of the twelve was Mrs. Moore, wife of the other injured fireman, who lives at 1643 C street northeast. He is 25; Lieut. Stein, a brother of Henry Stein, honorary battalion chief, is 57.

The fire apparatus knocked the trolley, with 15 passengers, onto parallel rails.

Traffic jammed at the street intersection, word came from Fourth and E street northwest to which the engine had been racing southward on Fourth, that alarm of fire was false.

Among the passengers on the street-car were the following:

Mrs. Lorraine Walker, 1110 Columbia road northwest; Robert Koetting, 5746 Colorado avenue northwest; Cecilia Speer, 214 Massachusetts avenue northwest; Mrs. S. H. Brady, 1303 N. Quincy street, Clarendon, Va.; McKinley Battle, 1537 Fourteenth street northwest; James H. Elliott, 1802 Seventh street northwest; Raymond Walker, Room AA6, Treasury Department; Georgia E. Jefferis, 3917 Kansas avenue northwest, and D. Workin, 5016 Third street northwest.

Full Judiciary Committee to Quiz Rutledge

Dean Wiley Blount Rutledge, jr., of the University of Iowa Law School, will be called to appear before the full Senate Judiciary Committee, Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, said yesterday, following the appointment of a sub-committee to consider his nomination to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Senator King, who criticized the appointment on the ground that a Washington lawyer should have been selected, said he had asked that Rutledge be summoned so Senators could question him regarding his legal experience.

Earlier Chairman Ashurst of the Judiciary Committee, had referred the appointment to a sub-committee headed by Senator Hughes (Democrat), of Delaware.

While Senator King customarily is named chairman of a sub-committee handling judicial appointments for District courts, he said he had been consulted by Ashurst and was willing to pass up the chairmanship.

Dean Rutledge is expected to appear before the Judiciary Committee next week.

Other members of the sub-committee, besides Hughes and King, are Senators Connally (Democrat), of Texas; Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, and Austin (Republican), of Vermont.

2 From Dictrict Win Honors at Bates College

Two Bates College students from Washington won posts in famous elections of the Lewiston, Maine, institution. Robert Hulsizer, son of Mrs. Dorothy P. Hulsizer, 3212 Newark street northwest, a junior, was elected treasurer of the MacFarlane Musical Club. He is a graduate of Western High School. Hamilton P. Dorman, son of Dr. Horatio N. Dorman, 2905 Thirty-second street northwest, was elected junior class treasurer.

Bill Asks Treatment Of Ex-Police, Firemen

A bill to authorize free hospital treatment to retired Washington police and firemen was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Bolles (Republican), of Wisconsin.

The treatment would be accorded police and firemen who suffered injuries or incurred disease while in active service.

Grief Made Mrs. Stinson Ill, Court Told

Doctor Says Money Worries Also Caused 'Psychotic Neurosis'

Grief over the death of her husband and worry about his $700,000 estate brought Mrs. Pepita Crounse Stinson, 54, into a "phychotic neurosis," Dr. Cary B. Gamble, of Baltimore testified in a deposition read in District Court yesterday in her action to annul her marriage to Joseph Whitlaw Stinson, 56.

Mrs. Stinson claims the former State Department lawyer drugged her and married her against her will for her money in 1937. He has denied it and claimed she did the courting.

Dr. Gamble described Mrs. Stinson's condition as a mild mental disorder and said her reactions to business subjects were abnormal, although she was normal on other subjects.

The physician said that after the marriage Stinson told him "he didn't want me to think hardly of him, that he married Mrs. Stinson at the solicitation of her friends to take care of her and her estate."

Howard Students Seek To Abolish Cliques

Students of Howard Uuiverstiy announced yesterday, through George Leighton, chairman, the organization of a League For Proportional Representation, to "ameliorate some of the evils of clique domination in student government." The movement came as a direct result of discord caused by domination of the university student council by certain fraternities and sororities which, it was charged, prevented organization of a representative student government.

Dr. George E. G. Catlin To Talk on Democracy

Dr. George E. G. Catlin, British writer on political science, tonight will close his series of three lectures on "A New Appraisal of Democracy" when he speaks on "The Future of Democracy" in the Department of Agriculture auditorium, at 8 o'clock. The lectures are being sponsored by the British American committee of the Hall of Nations Program of American University and the Graduate School of the Department of Agriculture.

Senate Passes Merger Bill Without Wheeler Amendment accomplished in some measure through reorganization.

Senator Byrd, who had a rival reorganization bill on the Senate calendar making even stronger economy demands and carrying the Wheeler amendment, in the end voted for final passage of the compromise bill. Wheeler, having lost a close fight, also was paired in support of the measure.

The amended program, a far cry from the omnibus measure which last year was defeated, was opposed to the end by only three Democrats—Senators Gerry, of Rhode Island, King, of Utah, and Tydings, of Maryland. Only two Republicans voted for the bill—Senators Reed, of Kansas, and Taft, of Ohio.

Twenty-one Federal agencies, mostly independent offices with quasi-judicial functions, were specifically exempted from any reorganization. Three were added to the House bill in the Senate—the board of governors of the Federal Reserve system, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., and the Mississippi River Commission. For more than an hour Senator McCarran (Democrat) of Nevada, fought to add the Civil Aeronautics Authority to the exempt list, but his amendment was defeated on a roll call.

Exempted from reorganization were the Civil Service Commission and the General Accounting Office—two agencies which the original Administration reorganization bill would have completely made over. Provisions for a single Civil Service administrator and abolition of the comptroller general's office were dropped in a House compromise that paved the way for passage. With the exception of provision for two-chamber "veto" of reorganization plans, only relatively noncontroversial provisions were included in the approved measure.

The President can recommend regroupings, eliminations and consolidations that dispense with duplications and overlappings of functions, but he is specifically prohibited from setting up any new department or any other agency to exercise new functions. Nor can he continue agencies or functions beyond the period authorized by law.

No provision was made for a new Department of Welfare or a permanent National Resources Board recommended by the President. But the President was authorized to appoint the six $10,000-a-year assistants he requested last year.

One major difference in House and Senate bills to be ironed out in conference may seriously affect economy objectives of the program. The House bill gave the President power to eliminate functions as well as overlapping agencies, and the Brookings Institution has reported that only through abolition of functions can substantial economies be made. The Senate struck out authority for the President to abolish functions and provided that before an agency can be abandoned, its functions must be transferred to another.

The vote by which the Senate struck from the reorganization bill an amendment which would have curtailed Presidential powers to reorganize administrative agencies by executive order follows:

Group Discusses Mental Health Of D. C. Children

Conversation of mental health of children of the community and reduction of delinquency were themes discussed Tuesday in a symposium held at Lincoln Temple Congregational Church. The symposium contemplates organization of groups of parents, religious educators, psychologists, teachers and business men for study of the mental health problem.

Dr. Howard H. Long, assistant superintendent of schools, was chairman of the program committee, and Dr. Dorothy B. Ferrebee in charge of group organization. Use of the radio, press and motion pictures for development of mental health will be discussed at future sessions.

An Invitation to a Million Old Friends

DO YOU HANG YOUR HAT in one of the million homes where Nash has been a family car?

You'll remember—you could haul logs in it, or go calling on the governor. It never missed a day. And it saw the boys through college.

Nash is still that way—but something new has been added. Today—we invite you to see a new kind of Nash.

You'll have to get your hands on it to know how much fire and life are now bred into its honest steel!

You'll marvel at first, at shifting gears from a steering wheel lever*... at the rocket-like pick-up of a new kind of engine... at the Fourth Speed Forward*.

But soon you'll forget there are wheels and springs and gears.

You'll believe that it's not you—but the road—that's moving. One scene after another whisks by—with wraithlike speed and quiet. Ruts and bumps flatten out and flow under you unnoticed.

Dust billows by, but you breathe fresh air—it's the "Weather Eye"*, forever ending dust, dirt, chilly drafts.

... We believe you'll never be content until you can say, "It's mine!"

And that makes it yours right now.

For ten models are priced next to the lowest... built the usual Nash way, because good things should last.

Come down and get your hands on it!

It's that new NASH

House Votes $92,796 for District Items

$3,000 for Heating Schools; $1,098,195 Included for CAA

District appropriations totaling $92,796.96 were included in the $187,672,028 deficiency appropriation bill which was passed by the House yesterday after less than four hours' debate, and sent to the Senate.

Included the bill was $3,000 for heating District schools. This contrasted with $13,000 asked by the Budget Bureau after cutting off $12,000 from the total requested by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

Other local items were: District salaries of $5,066; sanatoria, equipment and fuel, $15,000; commission on mental health, $9,820; minimum wage board, $1,200; U. S. District Court fees for jurors and witnesses, $11,682.25, and judgments, $29,318.57.

$1,098,195 for CAA

Among large non-military appropriations were $1,098,195 for the Civil Aeronautic Authority; $2,000,000 for the employes compensation commission; $2,480,000 for the forest service, for firefighting; $1,652,400 for the coast guard, and $10,250,000 for Federal land banks to offset lowered interest rates.

One million dollars of a $3,000,000 reduction in relief funds for the reconstruction administration of Puerto Rico was restored.

In order to combat what was described by officials as "a general increase in the amount of crimes," an item of $300,000 was included for hiring new G-men and clerical employes for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. This was half the amount recently stated by Edward A. Tamm, of the F. B. I., as the sum needed to pay 85 additional agents and 25 clerks the bureau had taken on to meet the situation.

The bill also carried a fund of $160,000 to complete construction of a barracks and pistol and rifle range at the Quantico (Va.) marine base for the use of Federal Bureau of Investigation agents. The project was begun with a $150,000 appropriation last year.

Drop Perkins Impeachment, Asks Subcommittee

By the Associated Press.

The House Judiciary Committee was requested by a five-man subcommittee yesterday to drop an investigation of impeachment charges against Secretary Perkins.

The sub-committee, vested with authority to recommend final disposition of accusations made by Representative Thomas (Republican), of New Jersey, in the Harry Bridges case, reported it had found nothing to justify a further inquiry.

Although the two Republicans on the five-man committee joined their Democratic colleagues in requesting that the investigation be dropped, they proposed that Miss Perkins be censured for alleged laxity in enforcing the immigration laws.

Fashion Show Starts Tomorrow At Mayflower

Brunette models and many-colored dresses will feature tomorrow's fashion promenade and exhibit at the Mayflower Hotel, the Connecticut Avenue Association, sponsors, announced yesterday. The show will last from 1 to 11 p. m., filling the main ballroom, the promenade and the Chinese room.

Three fashion parades will be held at 2, 5, and 8 o'clock. The evening parade will be in charge of Miss Marshall Adams, fashion editor of The Washington Post, while Miss Helen Vogt, of the Evening Star, and Miss Bab Lincoln, of the Times-Herald, will direct the afternoon shows.

Exhibitions of three new dances will be given: "The Chestnut Tree" by the LeRoy H. Thayer School, and "The World's Fair Shag" by Miss Ethel M. Fistere's School, and the "Minuet in Swing" by the Arthur Murray School. Emile's health class also will perform.

things? My mind isn't on women all the time . . . women, women everywhere . . . the magazine covers are filled with them, pretty gals from the country, city gals . . . Women.

"Well, the prettiest ones in the world are in New York—but they came there from Peachtree Street, Atlanta, Ga. But I was talking of my serious thoughts, and I've made a hobby of thinking. I don't think there will be a war anytime soon. And Jack Dempsey is one of the finest people in America. A gentleman there, a man of fine tact and tenderness. Strange, because he was such a bruiser.

"Talking about women, women, women. A beautiful woman is a scientific matter—I mean there are standards for the choosing of them. A woman isn't beautiful because she is virtuous or because her mother said she was pretty. She must have something else. I haven't seen the women in this town. They come from all of rural America, don't they. They take an examination, and come to Washington. What are they like?"

He began drawing what he considered them to be like—his notion of them without his having seen them. "Does this look like one of them?" The girl wore a sunbonnet and had a pretty face.

"I draw this but don't think I care what they're like. I've gone to these beauty contests but I went to be amused. I didn't expect to find any beauty. They're all as out of a mimeograph."

Flagg's sigh sounded pretty disillusioned, as if he were tired of something—possibly women.

and his left. Posse members said any attempt to attack Durand from the rear would entail a night-long hike across steep mountains.

The posse caught up with Durand's trail after he had kidnaped a ranch couple and forced them to drive him to the mouth of Clarksfork canyon. The rancher and his wife were released unharmed.

Carrying dynamite bombs, Bill Monday, Cody pilot, flew over the battle scene in an attempt to blast Durand from his lair. With darkness closing in fast over the steep ridge, Monday said he could not find the fugitive's refuge and had to return to Cody without dropping the bombs.

Tracked With Hounds

Bennion said Garto and Lindbury were advancing in the deployed posse line with him after the pursuing officers had tracked Durand with two bloodhounds.

There had been an exchange of shots, Bennion said, with the shaggy-haired Durand, believed to be carrying five rifles, a revolver and fresh ammunition he seized at a ranch last night.

Bennion said the two men decided to make a break across an open stretch of rock toward Durand's rock-surrounded refuge.

"I pleaded with them not to," Bennion said. "But they wouldn't listen. They broke out of the trees, running. First one of them. I think, it was Garto, threw up his arms and fell backwards. An instant later, the other one, Lindbury, fell forward on his face.

"It sounded to me like Durand was shooting with a six-gun, then. They're right out there in the open straight in his line of fire. It would be suicide to try to get to them."

Ambulance Summoned

Bennion said Durand fired several shots at the game warden's place of hiding behind a shelter of rocks and trees.

The game warden retreated safely to the posse base at the foot of the Bear Tooth Mountain range about 40 miles north of Cody, Wyo.

With short wave radio equipment of the Federal Forest Service, Bennion summoned an ambulance, reinforcing posse men and reported the wounding of the two offices to County Attorney Oliver Steadman.

Closing in swiftly on the Clarksfork canyon after the kidnaped ranch couple reported to Sheriff Frank Blackburn, the posse picked up the trail of the shaggy-haired woodsman, known to have lived for weeks alone in mountain lairs, subsisting on raw animal flesh.

Treasury Department Goes Ahead With Tax Revision Despite President's Pessimistic Tone

Tax

Undersecretary of the Treasury Hanes, it is pointed out, has been working overtime for months in an effort to do a constructive job of taking the "kinks" out of corporation tax laws.

He has "earmarked" for removal between 50 and 75 "points of friction" in the tax laws—individual deterrents which have caused a great deal of trouble for Government and corporation lawyers. Friends say Hanes feels removal of these "kinks" would contribute greatly to better co-operation and understanding between Government and business.

In a further effort at simplification, Hanes has proposed repeal of the "Siamese twins"—the excess profits and capital stock taxes—and the undistributed profits tax. The consequent reduction in corporation taxes would be made up by increases in the regular corporation income tax rates, thus maintaining the status quo so far as total corporation taxes are concerned. It was the responsibility for this part of the program which the President placed on Harrison's doorstep after casting doubt on its practicability.

Hanes' Resignation Rumored

Reports were circulated yesterday that Hanes would resign. Another version of these reports was that Hanes and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who has supported him, would resign. Official sources, however, branded the reports as wholly unfounded.

At the same time, persons familiar with New Deal inner working recalled that there has been of late considerable resentment among Administration left-wingers against the drift toward business recovery in place of reform. Some left-wingers have felt the New Deal was being scuttled—that the Administration definitely was assuming an Old Deal aspect.

The confusion, or apparent lack of a definite policy on taxation, was believed in some quarters to reflect their dissatisfaction with undertakings savoring of business appeasement.

The President, it is pointed out, definitely has shown a willingness to go along with a policy of neighborliness and good will toward business, although the word "appeasement" has been distasteful to him. His announcement that he would not insist on increased taxes, and the work of Harry L. Hopkins as Secretary of Commerce are cited as examples.

Hanes in High Favor

The efforts of Hanes, in particular, have been regarded with high favor. From the time he was a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission, he has been a prime mover in efforts to persuade business to co-operate with the Administration.

Harrison, although an Administration opponent on some major issues, put in a word in the interest of harmony within Administration ranks.

"With the foreign situation most delicate," he said, "and our own domestic problems demanding courage and requiring our united efforts, we cannot afford to have misunderstandings among ourselves, and when differences arise — whether economic, fiscal, or political—they must be harmonized to preserve and promote the general welfare of the country."

Harrison said he had received data from the President showing the effect of repeal of the excess profits, capital stock and undistributed profits taxes, coupled with increases in the straight corporation income tax rates to offset resultant revenue losses estimated at $234,000,000 a year.

These data, he revealed, showed that a flat 22 per cent rate would have to be imposed on larger corporations to make up for the loss. Such a tax would permit continued favorable treatment for small corporations.

At present, corporations with more than $25,000 a year net income pay taxes ranging from 16½ to 19 per cent, depending on the percentage of earnings which they distribute to stockholders in the form of dividends. The 2½ per cent variation is the undistributed profits tax. Corporations with income of $25,000 a year and less pay flat taxes ranging from 12½ to 16 per cent.

Memel Grab Hits Poland, Observers Say dangerous Nazi forceps, just as Czecho-Slovakia did after Austria fell.

A year ago Poland, herself, was threatening to invade Lithuania. Ostensibly the trouble at that time was the shooting of a Polish border guard, but the real reason was Poland's anger over Lithuania's refusal to resume diplomatic relations, which had been broken off after Poland seized Wilna and about one-third of Lithuania's territory in 1920. Threatened with invasion, Lithuania capitulated last March, and, by resuming diplomatic relations, virtually admitted that Wilna, its old capital, was Polish.

There was talk then that Hitler might seize Memel and use it as a trump card to bargain for the Polish corridor and Danzig.

Hitler Can Use Memel

Today, however, Hitler can use Memel, and the strategic position it gives him in Lithuania, as a club to keep Poland out of any "stop-Hitler" bloc. And in that connection, it was noted yesterday that Poland is refusing to adhere to such a bloc, unless there is a definite military alliance.

In taking Memel, Hitler erased another article from the Versailles Treaty and at the same time quickened the Drang nach Osten and recalled his words in "Mein Kampf:"

"We . . . turn our eyes eastwards. When we talk of new lands in Europe, we are bound to think first of Russia and her border states."

Memel was founded in 1252 by Poppo von Osterna, grand master of the Teutonic Order, the military brotherhood which Christianized the pagans of the Baltic seacoast. Owned at various times by Russia, Poland, Sweden and Germany, it was German territory until after the World War.

Memel Assigned to Lithuania

Under the Versailles treaty, Germany ceded Memel to the allied powers. As Danzig was lifted out of German territory to give Poland an outlet to the sea, so Memel was assigned to Lithuania. Meantime, however, it remained a protectorate of the League of Nations.

In 1923, while the League was pondering the status of Memel, Lithuanian troops seized it, forcing a French garrison to evacuate the territory.

Just a Minor Port, Then

Under German rule in pre-war days, Memel was a minor port, little used. Lithuaniaspen t millions of dollars deepening the harbor and otherwise improving it, all of which now goes to the benefit of Germany.

It is the first seaport Hitler has added to Greater Germany,an d he is expected to lose no time in making it a submarine base.

Japanese Leaders Decide to Keep Out Of European War

Tokyo (Thursday), March 23 (AP).—The Japanese "inner government," composed of five key cabinet ministers, today was reported to have agreed informally upon a policy of neutrality in event of a European war.

The five ministers, headed by Premier Baron Hiranuma, conferred for 5 hours Wednesday night. A formal decision was not made, but it was understood authoritatively that the majority was strongly opposed to voluntary Japanese participation in any European war.

Besides Baron Hiranuma, the inner government" includes Foreign Minister Arita, War Minister Gen. Itagaki, Navy Minister Admiral Yonai and Finance Minister Ashiwata.

Baltic Republic Yields to Threat of Complete Absorption

Memel

Memel were not surrendered within four days.)

Last night at the first session of the Memel Diet since a predominant Nazi majority was elected last December, the Nazi leader, Ernst Neumann, proclaimed Memel's "anschluss" with Germany.

The Diet session ended with singing of "Deutschland Ueber Alles."

Hundreds of Jews had fled from Memel last night. Thousands more attempting to flee before anschluss were halted by jubilant Nazi storm troopers who virtually took over the Memel territory while Lithuanian troops and officials withdrew.

A state of emergency was decreed in the remainder of Lithuania and additional military reserves called to the colors replacing Memellanders released from duty.

Bank Holiday Declared

The Lithuanian finance ministry temporarily suspended payments to bank depositors.

Lithuanian officials in Memel territory handed over the government to a directorate headed by Willi Bertuleit, assistant to Neumann.

Storm troopers taking over from Lithuanian soldiers clamped a close guard on Memelland's frontiers. Trucks and freight cars loaded with the possessions of refugees were forbidden to leave.

Customs houses and postoffices were occupied. The Memel radio station broadcast German military marches.

The German population, about 72 per cent of the inhabitants, greeted news of annexation with great rejoicing. Swastikas appeared everywhere.

There were reports Germany had threatened a military attack Tuesday unless a Lithuanian propaganda ministry communique was withdrawn. The communique declared Germany's demands violated the 1924 convention by which Italy, Japan, Britain and France guaranteed Memel's status as an autonomous unit under Lithuanian sovereignty.

(An Exchange Telegraph—British agency—dispatch from Warsaw said the German government threatened aerial bombardment of Kaunas unless the communique was withdrawn. The dispatch also said German planes were flying over Memel while the Lithuanian Parliament considered Germany's demands.)

Dane Who Likens Fellows to Czechs Is Called Traitor

Copenhagen, March 22 (AP).—Denmark's Nazi Leader Fritz Clausen drew the ire of Premier Thorvald Stauning today by a statement, which Stauning said "must be regarded as an appeal to Germany to deal with Denmark in the same manner that she dealt with Czecho-Slovakia."

Clausen's statement, published in his newspaper Faedrelandet, said that if Denmark "with its Marxist government did not understand the present serious times it might get a fate similar to Czecho-Slovakia."

The Premier declared "if there are any Danish citizens who wish to join such a person they will be regarded as traitors to their country."

The Nazi party is very small and is considered by politicians to have no chance of election a member of parliament.

Neumann, 55, who fought for Germany in the World War, was imprisoned by Lithuania in 1935 for his Nazi activities, but was granted amnesty last year and now lives in the home shown above. Britain Alarmed as 3 Nations March; 'Stop Hitler' Plan Lags tackles them next. Polish alliances with Rumania and France are not enough.

British

The British offered no such commitment to Poland in broaching the antiaggression scheme last Saturday. Poland's counter-demand requires radical revision of Britain's foreign policy, which heretofore has limited European commitments to France, Belgium and Portugal, and the Poles won't wait until their foreign minister, Col. Joseph Beck, visits London. That is a fortnight off and anything might happen in that time. Hitler is furious enough already at Beck's propotsed junket.

French sources confirm the impression that the declaration, when it is published, will be vague and weak.

Paris-London Pact

By International News Service.

London, March 22.—Great Britain and France tonight concluded an agreement for mutual military support in the event German aggression against Belgium, Holland or Switzerland should involve either the French or the British in war.

The two, already linked in a five-political entente, agreed to give each other naval, military and aviation support if any one of the three small western European nations on the border of the Reich becomes the object of Germany's attack, threatening thereby Britain or France.

Great quantities of gold flowed tonight to London from Belgium, Holland and Switzerland as a result of fears of new Nazi aggression.

Hitler was urging Premier Mussolini to shift the center of his annexationist attack rom France to Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, zones of British influence.

The idea of a conference of the powers to meet in London to draw up a united front declaration against further German aggression was again being given serious consideration late tonight.

The conference plan, originally suggested by Soviet Russia and rejected as "premature" by Great Britain, was revived as a tentative common-front pronouncement, amounting to a London-Paris-Moscow axis, emerged slowly from diplomatic negotiations in London.

[Patrick Munro, Government whip in the House of Commons, disclosed today Britain is already conducting staff talks, through military attaches, with France, Soviet Russia, Denmark, Sweden, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Turkey, Greece and the Netherlands, the Associated Press reported.

[Prime Minister Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and French Foreign Minister Bonnet were believed to have discussed extension of their military entente to include general staff consultations with Soviet Russia, the United Press said. British spokesmen were said to consider such action inevitable.—Editor's Note.]

Plans for a broader "Stop Hitler" declaration with Polish, Rumanian, Turkish, Yugoslav and possibly Greek participation were put aside temporarily because of Polish reluctance to join with Soviet Russia unless the British and French overcome their objections to granting specific military guarantees against possible attack either from Berlin or Moscow.

The Russians agreed to sign, but the Poles insisted that the declaration should be backed up by a definite military alliance and a £15,000,000 loan to enable Poland to build up its defenses.

It was an open secret that the Polish qualms were at least in part based on fears that Russian troops who might enter Polish territory to face an aggression from Germany might not leave Poland afterward.

It was learned that Turkey is alarmed by serious reports of Bulgarian troop movements in the vicinity of Dobrudja, the extreme southeastern province of Rumania. Ankara was said to have made a demarche to Sofia.

Daladier Seeks Secret Italian Pact

French

for France to seek Italian friendship. De Monzie reported in turn to the premier.

Lagardelle was said to have urged early overtures by France toward Rome.

Friends of Lagardelle, a writer who knew Mussolini when both were Socialists, indicated he might take back to Rome proposals for settling the quarrel dating back to the League of Nations economic penalties which failed to stop Italy's 1935-1936 Ethiopian campaign.

Former Premier Pierre Laval, who maintains close communications with friends in Italy, told a number of Senators he believed Italo-French friendship now could be sealed without the cost of French colonies.

Not only the government but almost every French political leader and nonpolitical organization of any standing has loudly insisted for months that France "cannot cede an inch" of her territory.

Laval and other parliamentary leaders, however, have been urging that the government make every effort to win Mussolini away from Hitler.

39 Generals Created

The war ministry issued a list of promotions creating nine new generals of divisions and 30 new generals of brigades.

Daladier tonight appealed to employers to take back "the great majority" of workers discharged after the general strike of last November 30, which he broke by using troops.

Milk Ratings For District's Dealers Listed

The District health department released yesterday the ratings of the milk sold by each dealer in the city, during the month of January.

The rating follow: pasteurized milk, Ayrlawn Farm, 98.58; Thompsons Dairy, 98.19; Model Farms Dairy, 97.51. All other dairies were above 90.

For raw milk, the Ayrlawn had a perfect rating of 100; P. DeArge, 99.80, Arlington County Dairy, 99.54, and Thompson Dairy, 99.54. Certified raw milk, Chestnut Farms Chevy Chase Dairy had a score of 97.97 and Thompsons Dairy of 99.54. The rating is based on the average cattle, farm and dairy scores and the chemical and bacteriological examination of the milk for the month.

"Tastes like one of the top-notch whiskies!" said Myron Hess, when he tried Old Quaker.

"Tastes rich—not harsh a bit!" remarked Wm. W. Duer, Jr., after trying Old Quaker.

In Dramatic Survey, 960 Out of 1,000 Men Proclaimed Old Quaker . . . Now 3 Years Old . . . Rich, Smooth and Delicious—Supporting Our Belief Old Quaker Rivals Many Higher-Priced Brands!

● It's an astonishing fact, but you can prove it yourself. Old Quaker—now 3 years old—rivals many higher-priced whiskies—in richness of flavor, in smoothness, and in bouquet! Here's why we say so:

We asked 1,000 impartial men to try Old Quaker and give us their honest opinion. "Smell it!" we said. "Taste it! Drink it! Then tell us what you think!" Not one of these men knew the name, age or price of the whiskey he was trying. Yet, out of the 1,000 men who tasted Old Quaker, 960 pronounced it a whiskey of exceptional merit . . . rich, but soft and mild . . . smooth in "texture" . . . delicate in bouquet!

They proved it a quality whiskey any man would be proud to serve—even though Old Quaker sells at a price sensationally low!

Why Not Save Money?

Make your own trial of Old Quaker! See if you don't agree with these 960 out of 1,000 men! If you do, you're going to enjoy whiskey to the utmost—and at the same time, cut down on your whiskey bills!

Hitler Sails To Take Over Baltic Memel

Pause in German March to Follow, Berlin Indicates

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, March 22.—Adolf Hitler journeyed tonight aboard the battleship Deutschland to Memel to receive that little Baltic district, ceded by Lithuania under Nazi pressure, into the expanding German Reich.

Just a week ago he rode into Prague to take that ancient capital and Bohemia-Moravia under his protection.

Hitler, Admiral Erich Raeder, chief of the admiralty, and Col.-Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command of the armed forces, expected to reach Memel about noon tomorrow (6 a. m., E. S. T.).

An imposing squadron of naval units escorted the Deutschland, in her wake there followed in order: the cruiser Leipzig, 6,000 tons; two 10,000-ton pocket battleships, the Admiral Graf Spee and Admiral Scheer; two more 6,000-ton cruisers, Nuremberg, and Koeln, two destroyer flotillas, three torpedo boat flotillas and other craft.

A map, published by Das Schwarze Korps, Storm Troop organ, showed Germany's eastern frontiers between 1250 and 1400, when Germany held sway over lands as far north as Courland, Livland and Estonia—roughly what is now Memel, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

Significantly, Karl Selter, foreign affairs minster of Estonia, was expected to call at the Berlin foreign office on his return from conferences in Budapest.

Indications were apparent here that with the acquisition of Memel there would be a pause in the Nazi march. But even Goering, before he left yesterday for a vacation and conferences in Italy, told a friend that nobody but Hitler himself knows what is in the offing.

Reports from the Free City of Danzig, former German territory at the head of the Polish corridor—which separates East Prussia from Germany proper—said the 100,000 Germans of the Nazified but theoretically Polish-controlled area were jubilantly awaiting their "hour of liberation" by Hitler.

Poland's Strength Recognized

Informed persons, to explain Hitler's seeming delay regarding Danzig, pointed to Poland's strength as being much greater than Lithuania's and the firm foreign policy pursued by Col. Joseph Beck, Polish foreign minister.

In informed circles, it was said any move by Hitler might depend on Beck's reply to a British request for an anti-aggression declaration by Soviet Russia, France, Poland and Great Britain.

With Memel absorbing foreign office attention, nobody in the Wilhelmstrasse offices cared to discuss the formal protest of the United States against the Nazi absorption of parts of Czecho-Slovakia last week. Newspapers said the protest would be rejected as vigorously as were similar protests from Great Britain and France.

Please, Hitler—New Map Goes To Press April 15

If Hitler plans to snap up any more loose provinces, the National Geographic Society wishes he'd do it before April 15.

That's the date when the society's new map of the Atlantic Ocean region—taking in all west and central Europe—is scheduled to go to press.

The Fuehrer has crossed up the cartographic section of the society before. Last March the first 200,000 copies of the new and expensive map of Europe had been run off the presses, then the Nazis moved into Austria.

Work on the Central European section of the Atlantic map today has been suspended, while cartographers scan the latest bulletins from Europe.

Lithuania's 'Navy' Has No Port as Memel Surrenders

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Lithuania's "navy," the converted German mine sweeper, Prezidentas Smetona (top photo), left Memel yesterday for an unannounced destination, after Lithuania surrendered its seaport to Hitler. With the return of the Memel territory to the German Reich, the large herring fisheries on the Baltic were turned over to Germany. Lower photo shows a scene during a busy fishing season at Memel, with fish kegs lined up on the wharf for export

Gayda Says Italy Is With Reich In 'Eventual Military Conflict'

Fascist Editor Charges U. S., Britain And France Plan 'Preventive' War As Soon as They Are Strong Enough

By the Associated Press.

Rome, March 22.—The Fascist Grand Council's renewed assurance of adherence to the Rome-Berlin axis was said by the authoritative Editor Virginio Gayda today to mean that Italy would be with Germany in war as well as in diplomacy.

The grand council this morning issued a strong statement by which Italy, in effect, warned the democratic powers that joint action to check the Rome-Berlin alliance might incur the risk of war.

Italy's position is fixed in Europe's "new political conflict," Gayda said. This solidarity of Rome and Berlin was understood to be effective not only for diplomatic developments but also for "eventual military developments of conflict," he continued.

While Europe awaited Premier Mussolini's expected demands on France, Gayda again charged that London, Paris and Washington were attempting to form a "democratic holy alliance" to launch a "preventive war" against Germany and Italy as soon as their forces appeared superior.

Gayda predicted, however, that Soviet Russia would raise obstacles to being incorporated in an alliance by demanding guarantees against "Europe and Japan."

Fascists interpreted the council's declaration as meaning the axis was prepared to fight, if necessary, to realize Italian aspirations to colonial concessions from France.

Fascists said Italy supported Germany in the annexation of Austria, Czech Sudetenland, and Bohemia and Moravia and that naturally Italy expected returns of its own from the Fascist-Nazi machine. Premier Mussolini may discuss them in a speech he is to make on Sunday—fascism's twentieth birthday.

35 National Park Students to Sail For Puerto Rico

Thirty-five girls from National Park College, Forest Glen, Md., will go to sea for knowledge in the annual spring educational tour. They will leave at 7:30 a. m. today for New York to sail to Puerto Rico.

The tour is headed by Roy T. Davis, president of the college, who served 13 years in the diplomatic service in Latin-America.

Blanton Winship, governor of the island, will welcome the girls to Puerto Rico and will give a reception and dance in their honor March 28.

Socialists Revile Germans on Warsaw Streets

'Down With the Axis!' Demonstrators Shout; Embassies Guarded

By the Associated Press.

Warsaw, March 22.—Small groups of Socialists held anti-German demonstrations in the central streets of Warsaw tonight while the government took measures to observe a strict neutrality in Europe's power politics, brought close to Poland's doors by German annexation of Memel.

The Socialists stopped before coffee houses and restaurants, shouting "Down with the Germans! Down with the axis!"

Police took special precautions to protect the German and Italian embassies.

Stanislas Larckiewicz, former deputy, who for many years favored close co-operation between Poland and Germany, was arrested.

Warsaw also arranged for three days of air defense exercises starting tomorrow.

The Socialist demonstrations followed upon resolutions adopted by the Socialist Party last night for formation of a national defense government taking in a wider representation of political opinion in the country. Official circles appeared to give little heed to the demand.

DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR
wouldn't you prefer a LASALLE?
Dollar for dollar invested—most people would surely prefer a car built by Cadillac. Instinctively, they would expect to get more for their money. Yet it is very easy to pay the price of a LaSalle—and still not get a LaSalle. Five different manufacturers, for instance, build Sedans which sell for more than the LaSalle Sedan. If you pay above a thousand dollars, you ought to get a LaSalle—and enjoy all the priceless advantages of a Cadillac-built car. How about a demonstration—today?

Summer Will Usher In Some Fine Film Fare

Warners Announce Their Hot-Weather Hits; Clifford Brooke Will Direct at Olney; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

JUST BACK from last week's Warner Brothers convention in New York, Zone Manager John J. Payette, of the Warner interests in the Washington territory, is looking at the future through rose-tinted glasses. It seems that several of the pictures to be released on the Warner schedule between April 1 and September 1 were previewed by those in attendance at the conclave. They give high promise of superlative entertainment to those who lend their constant allegiance to the Earle, Metropolitan and other Warner houses in the District and surrounding territory, according to Mr. Payette.

BELL

Particular enthusiasm seems to have been aroused among the delegates by "Dodge City" and "Dark Victory." "Dodge City" already has been announced as the Earle's major screen attraction for Easter week. It is a swiftly paced story of Dodge City, Kans., during the turbulent years of the development of the West. It is executed entirely in Technicolor and enlists the services of Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland—both remembered for "The Adventures of Robin Hood," also in Technicolor—Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale—also in "Robin Hood"—John Litel and Henry Travers, under the direction of Michael Curtiz.

In "Dark Victory," Bette Davis, two-time Academy award winner, is said to have the outstanding vehicle of her career, to coin a phrase. Under the direction of Edmund Goulding, this celluloid version of the Broadway stage play has won unstinted praise from everyone who has viewed it. In addition to glorifying the Davis talents beyond anything that has gone before, "Dark Victory" is said to elevate George Brent to the first rank of screen leading men—a post that is not entirely unfamiliar to him. It is interesting to recall in this connection that Errol Flynn, Bruce Cabot and George Brent all were visitors in Washington in aid of the celebration of the President's Birthday drive on behalf of the national and local foundations for the combat of infantile paralysis last January.

Other Warner products that will be coming along to the local Warner screens between the dates already specified include "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," starring Edward G. Robinson; "Juarez," the first picture in which Paul Muni has starred since "Zola;" "Each Dawn I Die," a new melodrama with a new brace of costars in the persons of James Cagney and George Raft, and "Family Reunion," reassembling the cast of "Four Daughters"—Priscilla, Rosemary and Lola Lane, Jeffrey Lynn, Claude Rains, Fay Bainter and Dick Foran.

In addition to these and other releases from the Warner Brothers-First National studios in Burbank, the local Warner houses also will present the foremost product from the Columbia Pictures lot. These will include Howard Hawks' production of "Only Angels Have Wings," costarring Cary Grant and Jean Arthur; Barbara Stanwyck, in Rouben Mamoulian's picturization of Clifford Odets' "Golden Boy;" "Our Wife" and "Arizona," with Jean Arthur as the star of the Clarence Budington Kelland story of a Western girl full of fight and fun.

Paramount will contribute Cecil B. De Milles' "Union Pacific," starring Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck; Bob Burns, Post paragrapher, in "I'm From Missouri;" Isa Miranda and Ray Milland in "Hotel Imperial" and "Man About Town," with Jack Benny and Dorothy Lamour.

Quite a spacious summer, if you ask us—and even if you don't.

The second important announcement within the week from Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran's Olney Theater, planning to open its second summer season on May 1, is to the effect that Clifford Brooke, for many summers director of the National Theater Players, will return to the environs of the Capital to direct the Olney's plays this year. George Vivian, who directed the Olneyites last season, will devote his entire attention to the conduct of the National Academy of Stage Training, founded by Mr. Cochran way back when. The National Academy, incidentally, will begin its spring term of ten weeks on Monday, March 27. Enrollments are being received at the academy, 1500 Rhode Island avenue.

The Washington Political Cabaret, evidently having come to town to stay for some time, if not forever, invites theater-minded Washingtonians to contribute to its growth. Those experienced in acting, writing, composing and stagecraft are urged to lend their talents to this Saturday night innovation among the Capital's outlets for spontaneity of spirit. Rehearsals for next Saturday night's performance at 1423 Pennsylvania avenue will be held on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon of this week. The Friday rehearsals will be at 810 F street, at 7:30 p. m.; Saturday's at the Pennsylvania avenue address at 2 p. m. Writers are invited to submit scripts to Bernard C. Schoenfeld, 2929 Connecticut avenue; musicians to confer with musical director, Freda Berla, 2708 Dumbarton avenue.

On next Wednesday night, March 29, simultaneously with a gala premiere showing at the San Francisco World's Fair, the National Geographic Society of Washington will give a preview screening of Twentieth Century-Fox' film of "Alexander Graham Bell," in Constitution Hall, at 8:30 o'clock. It is particularly appropriate that the picture should be viewed publicly for the first time by the members and guests of the National Geographic Society because of the long and close association of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell with the society and the fact that his father-in-law, Hon. Gardiner Greene Hubbard, who plays a prominent part in the story, was the society's first president, 1888-1897. Also in the dramatis personae of the screen play are those who still are actively identified with the conduct of the society's affairs. Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor journeyed to Hollywood to act in an advisory capacity during the making of the picture. Don Ameche, Loretta Young and Henry Fonda are featured in the cast.

Eternal-Unities Note

If Clem and Charlie McCarthy had been on the same bill this week, that really would have been something!

Comes to Earle Stage Tomorrow

SHIRLEY ROSS,

popular singing star of stage, screen and radio, who will headline the stage portion of the program at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow. Miss Ross next will be seen on the screen in an important role in "Cafe Society." It is in that picture that she will appear as Saucily shown above

Chinese Group Gives Benefit

Presumptuous would be the average Occidental who claimed complete understanding of the Oriental subtleties set forth in "An Evening in Cathay" last night at the Belasco Theater, yet the visitors from China, touring our land to reveal their art and aid their war sufferers, undoubtedly fascinated the sold-out house which greeted them.

The universality of human feelings is the prime factor in this remarkable success. Except for the expert commentating of Laura Jee, a Vassar graduate, the speaking and singing is all in Chinese. The music is produced by instruments completely unfamiliar to our Western ears. The costumes, while colorful and lovely, are strange and the dancing encompasses the most delicate shades of thought. But the wife crying her goodby to her warrior husband, the pathetic street waif singing her ballad and the Queen taking to drink after discovering the infidelity of her Emperor are such understandably human figures that they hold an unfamiliar audience spell-bound.

Most understandable and successful of the numbers to a western audience is the moving tale of "Lady Precious Stream," from which Mrs. Tong and Tse-ping Chow presented the parting scene. The aristocratic girl, who married a gardener and now sees him ordered to a high command at the battle-front, is one of the ancient land's formost literary characters. Its very timeliness must have occurred to many last evening when the sad little wife reluctantly watched her husband gallop away to war.

Virginia Chang was the colorful "drunken queen" and, in the inimitable description of Miss Jee, was: "Politely, a lady lightly lit!" Ethel Chun was the plaintive singer before the Wall of China and Mrs. Tong also performed a gracefully delicate scarf dance.

Theatergoers who saw Mei Lanfang a decade ago on his American tour again have him to thank for the choice of the many-faceted repertoire and the rich costumes

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, March 22 (I.N.S.).—Dr. A. J. Cronin's latest novel, "Sisters," has been purchased by Pandro Berman for a sum reported as $65,000. The deal was closed while Pan was in New York with the privilege, which RKO will exercise, of changing the title to "Vigil in the Night" because of Warner's "The Sisters." So from now on we can forget the confusing sister monikers. Carole Lombard, who was busy today fitting clothes for "Memory of Love"—(and her trousseau)—stopped long enough to accept the star role offered her by long distance telephone.

LOUELLA PARSONS

"Vigil in the Night" follows "Memory of Love" by at least three months, so when Carole begins work on this latest Cronin novel she will be Mrs. Clark Gable. George Stevens, who read the story in galley form, and was just as eager as Pan to bring it to the screen, is the megaphoner. The crusading nurse should be a great role for Carole.

Crash goes another European censorship barrier with M-G-M announcing that "It Can't Happen Here" (Sinclair Lewis' Banned of the Banned) goes into production immediately. Chosen to play Jessup, the American who is killed in his efforts to fight dictators, is none other than our good friend Judge Hardy—pardon me, I mean Lewis Stone. Stone, who fought in two wars and is as American as he can be without being an Indian, was chosen because he has no "isms" in his makeup and best typifies what Jessup stood for. Lucien Hubbard is in charge and the whole M-G-M crowd is working overtime to get this timely subject before the public.

The most ridiculous and completely unfounded rumor in Hollywood is the fable that Marion Davies and Joan Bennett are feuding. Neither Marion nor Joan paid any attention to the gossip that they had battled at a party given by Countess Di Frasso until an item appeared in a column given credence to the report. Both girls feel such a falsehood should be promptly denied. As a matter of fact, Joan arrived late at the Di Frasso party and didn't even see Marion, who went home early. Particularly foolish is the gossip in view of the long friendship of the two girls. There is about as much truth to this one as there is to certain so-called feuds printed in a current magazine. One of them tells of a battle Marion Davies had with Mae West whom she had never even met.

Don't forget I told you when Fred Astaire moves into the M-G-M studio on a long-term contract unless something entirely unforeseen happens, Fred will not renew his ticket at RKO. One reason, and I don't care how many denials are made on this one—it's true, he has never liked the idea of being teamed in so many pictures with Ginger Rogers. If he goes to M-G-M there will be some musicals with Eleanor Powell, M-G-M's dance actress, but there are the "Ziegfeld Follies" and other properties that appeal to the nimble-footed dancer and he won't be teamed continuously with Eleanor.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Leo Gorcey, Dead End kid, confides he'll wed Katherine Mavis, 17-year-old dancer, when he gets around to it; Lya Lys' dinner dates with Jerome Odlum are becoming a habit; Mrs. F. D. R. visiting the Goldwyn studio today just to see how son Jimmy vice presidents; Herbie Kaye, Dorothy Lamour's spouse, without a femme in his party at Slapsy Maxie's. He can't see any girl, but Dotty even when she is in New York having fun. What's this about Andrea Leeds and James McKinley Bryant? Seems they are together a lot—tonight at the Bublichki and a few nights ago at Marcel's; John McClain, our most social minded bachelor, having himself some fun with one of our young matrons at a spot; Annabella hostess at a dinner party honoring the Sidney Kents. O yes indeedy, Tyrone Power was there; the Brewster twins, both Mrs. Stroud and Barbara are on the sick list. Meanwhile Rudy Vallee, Barbara's favorite boyfriend, was out stepping with a pretty unknown at Victor Hugo's; Jane Bryan, who does get around, also at the Victor Hugo with Johnny Maschio three nights in succession.

Little

Should you think you are terribly sophisticated and teddibly, teddibly smarter than you were 14 years ago, you will learn something from the Little Theater's revival of Rudolph Valentino's film, "The Eagle." It opened yesterday to at least one audience that placed its interest in a story built around a colorful character.

Naturally there are very fundamental differences from our accustomed fare in this silent picture which first appeared in 1925. Then there was naturally a more definite accent on pantomime, the most fundamental quality of the moving picture. An extremely effective score has been dubbed in—much by Chaikovski—which lends a great deal of color. Occasional clinking of glasses is indicated to our aural senses, and hoof beats are heard, but the accent is on the visual sense. It is a high tribute to American technicians that the lighting of 14 years ago in this American-made film is better than much which comes to us today as Europe's latest. The picture is amazingly fresh.

"The Eagle" is a brave Russian Robin Hood, who refused the amorous advances of a naughty Czarina, played by Louise Dresser. His family estate has been confiscated and he devotes his energies to punishing the usurper. Posing as a French tutor, he falls in love with the daughter and what was good for 1925 screen fare is quite as effective in 1939.

Vilma Banky is the girl and, aside from some gosh-awful costumes, could place in the money with any of today's leading ladies. Miss Dresser was slimmer then, and her Empress (it must have been Catherine), is a finger-pointing tartar.

Truth to tell your reviewer went with the expectation of a rollicking, gay time and for his assurance was roundly squelched. The omnipresence of prohibition in 1925 seems evident in the frequent glasses, casks and drinking cups on view at the slimmest excuse; glasses clink and toasts are drunk at an enviable rate, which must have had some psychological meaning way back then.

"Miracle Money," an expose of medical quackery in the "Crime Does Not Pay" series, is also on view at the Little this week. R. L. C.

Barrymore, in Comedy, Will Top New Week

'My Dear Children' Monday at National; Other New Bills

"MY DEAR CHILDREN." John Barrymore returns to the stage, after his many years in Hollywood, in the role of a famous actor—and lover—in this new comedy by Catherine Turney and Jerry Horwin. By former marriages, the Shakespeare-quoting leading character has had three daughters, the most lovine of which is played by Elaine Barrie (Mrs. Barrymore.) Tala Birell, also from the Hollywood studios, plays the colorful star's latest heart-throb, the former mistress of a powerful munitions maker. Philip Reed, seen here in "Reflected Glory" and "Accent on Youth;" Dorothy McGuire, who played the girl in "Our Town" at the National; Lois Hall, Lloyd Gough, Arnold Korff, Stiano Braggiotti, Otto Hewlett, Ralph Macband and George Reynolds are also in the cast. The setting—a chateau in the Alps—was designed by Donald Oenslager. Matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Opens Monday night.

Palace

"THE LITTLE PRINCESS." Shirley Temple appears in a Technicolor production for the first time as the Frances Hodgson Burnett heroine. Placed in an exclusive school for girls by her father on his way to the Boer war, she is reduced to a slavey, when the cruel headmistress of the school hears that the father is dead and the orphan penniless. Richard Greene, Anita Louise, Ian Hunter, Cesar Romero, Arthur Treacher, Mary Nash, Sybil Jason, Miles Mander and Beryl Mercer, as Queen Victoria, are in the cast. Opens this morning.

Keith's

"LOVE AFFAIR." Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer co-star in a romance under the direction of Leo McCarey, whose "The Awful Truth," which also starred Miss Dunne, won the Academy Award. Maria Ouspenskaya, Lee Bowman, Astrid Allwyn and Maurice Moscovich are the other high-ranking players in this story which is laid in the Mediterranean and in Manhattan. A new "March of Time" and Walt Disney's "Society Dog Show" also are on the program. Opens tomorrow.

Earle

"KING OF THE TURF." Spring arrives with a horse-racing film at its heels. Adolphe Menjou plays a down-and-outer, who rises to become one of the most colorful figures in the racing world and a newcomer, Roger Daniel, is the jockey who wins for Menjou. Alan Dinehart, Dolores Costello, Walter Abel, William Demarest and Harold Huber are in the cast. Shirley Ross popular star of light screen fare and songe partner for Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, headlines the stage show, which also includes the Peggy Taylor Trio, adagio dancers; Frank Hornaday, tenor; the 16 Earle Roxyettes and, as the "Find of the Month," Helene Faye, violinist. Opens tomorrow.

Capitol

"WIFE, HUSBAND AND FRIEND." Loretta Young, as a wife who becomes a famous singer, and Warner Baxter, as her husband, who discovers he, too, has a great voice, are the stars of this comedy. Binnie Barnes is the beautiful opera singer who finds that Baxter can sing and others in the cast are Cesar Romero, Helen Westley, George Barbier, J. Edward Bromberg and Eugene Pallette. On the stage will be Buddy Clark, singing star of the "Hit Parade" broadcasts; Cinda Glenn, from the International Casino; Dolinoff and the Raya Sisters in "Black Art"; Renee Rice and John Smallens, tap dancers and the 16 Rockettes. Opens tomorrow.

Metropolitan

"SECRET SERVICE OF THE AIR." The melodrama of the "T" men and their war on alien smugglers continues through Friday with Ronald Reagan topping the players including John Litel, James Stephenson and Ila Rhodes. Saturday "The Oklahoma Kid," starring James Cagney, will open a return engagement. Newsreels and selected short features on both bills.

Columbia

"PYGMALION." Leslie Howard and Wendy Hiller make a return downtown visit in the widely praised film version of the George Bernard Shaw play. The story of the phonetics expert who teaches the cockney flower girl to speak like a duchess has been adapted almost verbatim and the supporting cast includes Wilfred Lawson, Marla Lohr, Scott Sunderland and Jean Cadell.

Trans-Lux

"CENTRAL EUROPEAN DEVELOPMENTS." Five newsreel companies, all there are in the U. S. A., combine to bring an up-to-the-minute review of recent developments abroad. "Trans-America," a screen trip by transport plane from Newark to San Francisco, above the famous Western National Parks; "Washington Parade," with air views of our town; "Frolicking Frogs" and "Pluto's Quintuplets" are the short subjects. Starts Friday.

Trudi Schoop

"THE BLONDE MARIE." The Swiss dancing comedienne and her Comic Ballet make their fourth annual appearance in the National Theater tomorrow afternoon only at 4:30. "The Blonde Marie," a rollicking satire in eight scenes of a servant girl who becomes a light opera star, is the principal attraction.

Roosevelt Auditorium

"SKIDDING." The Players Club of the Central Community Center will present the three-act comedy under the direction of Aileen Fowler. William Sheaffer, whose work was recently voted the finest in the One-Act Play Tournament, heads the cast. Tonight only in the Roosevelt High School auditorium.

National Ballet

"THE MAGIC FLUTE." Lisa Gardiner and the Washington National Ballet will include Pavlowa's famous ballet among their numbers in the "Fridays and Saturdays at Nine" series at the King-Smith Studio on the edge of Rock Creek Park. Miss Gardiner once danced with Pavlowa in the featured ballet and will also offer as her solo, "La Corrida," to music by Valverde. "Paris by Gaslight," by Grace Shannon of this city, is also on the program. Friday and Saturday evenings only.

Gayety

"HINDU WASSAU'S SHOW." The popular burlesque queen returns to the Ninth street house with a company that includes Cecil von Dell, Winnie Garret, Bert Carr, Bert Ainsley and a large array of beautiful dancers. After her current tour, Miss Wassau returns to New York for the World's Fair. Opens Sunday afternoon. This Saturday's midnight show will continue the "jitterbug contest," begun three weeks ago.

Mount Vernon

OPEN AIR AUTO THEATER. Will open its season on Sunday evening. "The Affairs of Annabel," with Jack Oakie and Lucille Ball, and "Ferdinand the Bull" are the first attractions and will run through Wednesday. The feature goes on at 8:10 and 10:35.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

ASHTON STEVENS, the Chicago drama critic, now is in New York and went to see "The Little Foxes" Saturday night . . . A lady seated in front of him wore a hat which obstructed his view . . . Stevens politely asked her to remove it—but the lady was obstinate . . . As soon as the curtain went up and the star of the show, Tallulah Bankhead, appeared, Miss Bankhead—who was suffering from a cold that night—coughed lustily . . . The lady who refused to remove her hat turned to her companion and commented upon that cough . . . Stevens secured his revenge. He tapped the lady's shoulder, and when she turned, he told her: "She dies of T. B.—in the third act!"

TALLULAH, INCIDENTALLY, has been invited to participate this week in protestations in behalf of the Spanish loyalists, the Chinese, the Czechs and Rumanians . . . "Wars, wars, wars," lamented the daughter of the Speaker from Alabama. "I'm an actress in the theater . . . Somehow I feel I shouldn't get myself involved in fights about any war—except the Civil War."

THE NEW LEASE of the defunct International Casino contains a provision that Charles Washburn, who will publicize the cafe, will have the right to spend $10,000 in liquor bills, the first year, in behalf of the boys of the press . . . The agreement also provides that the new tenants must keep the cafe running for at least one year—to take the White-Elephant curse from it . . . George M. Cohan now is in London writing a play for himself. If it's a hit, Cohan will retire from the theater. That's the valedictory he wants

JOHN ROOSEVELT visited New York last week end and discussed the new baby which will be born to his sister, Anna . . . "There are so many grandchildren in your family," he was told, "you're probably running out of names by now. Suppose the new baby is a boy. What will he be called?" . . . "Maybe we'll return the compliment," was the reply, "and call him—Franklin D. Jones Roosevelt."

ED WYNN now is allergic to musical comedies. He won't even go to see "One For the Money," in which his son, Keenan, is employed . . . When W. O. Douglas goes to the Supreme Court bench, his successor to the chairmanship of the SEC board is expected to be Commissioner Jerome Frank, one of the most brilliant New Dealers in Washington . . . Stark Young, the writer and critic, will leave shortly for North Africa . . . Adrienne Morrison, mother of Constance Bennett, and whose husband, Eric Pinker, was arrested last week on charges brought by E. Phillips Oppenheim, tried to raise the money from among her nearest relatives—but couldn't.

MR. AND MRS. Benjamin Rosenfeld, of Williamsburg, are the local couple who insisted upon filing an income-tax return and sending $10. to the Government, although their small earnings last year didn't require them to file any return at all . . . They did this, explained the Rosenfelds, because they're happy to be citizens of this country and anxious to contribute to the welfare of this Nation . . . Rosenfeld is a poultry dealer . . . He was responsible in part, for getting aid for the Schechter Bros., to take their case to the United States Supreme Court—a decision which resulted in the death of the NRA.

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT will complete two movie chores while he's visiting in Hollywood. He'll do some work for Goldwyn in "Wuthering Heights" and arrangements now are being made for him to assist in the writing of the next picture for the Dionne quintuplets . . . Lillian Hellman, the playwright, has departed for the film colony . . . Cole Porter, who threw away his crutches and now wears leg-braces, went to the night clubs last night to celebrate the fact that he can bend his right knee—the first time he's been able to do this in 17 months . . . Pare Lorentz, whose government-sponsored documentary film, "The River," was acclaimed throughout America, will do his next movie for United Artists. It will be an adaptation of Paul de Kruif's "The Fight For Life."

FAY WRAY, like most Hollywood stars, is anxious to appear in a play on Broadway . . . The producers of "The Brown Danube" negotiated with Miss Wray's agent . . . The star phoned from Hollywood. "I'll come to New York and read the part for you" she offered, "but if I'm not acceptable, you're to pay my fare" . . . The producers were hesitant . . . The next week Fay phoned again. "If the part's still open," she stated, "I'll come at my own expense for the tryout reading" . . . She came, read—and was signed.

PARAMOUNT, WHICH is screening the Broadway play "What a Life," sent a rush call for Clifford Goldsmith, the author of the play, to help unravel the adaptation. In writing the scenario Paramount lost Henry, the central figure . . . The European maps in Ambassador Joe Kennedy's office still show Austria as a nation . . . George Abbott, the opportunist, didn't throw confetti from his Fifth Avenue window during the St. Patrick's Day parade. Abbott saw the crowds and, instead, threw posters advertising his plays . . . Sinclair Lewis, who still is touring with his show, "Angela Is 22," wants to come home. "I'm tired," Lewis explains. "I've discovered that while Angela is 22—Lewis is 53."

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., March 22.—Joe Kennedy never got anything like this in Hollywood. When he went to Rome for the coronation of His Holiness, the Pope, they laid down the red carpet for Joe at the railroad station. Every member of his family went with him except one son who's in Spain.

HOPPER

Joe's first call was made on Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, who married the Kennedys 25 years ago.

Even our Western Costume Co., which furnishes everything, would have been severely taxed, supplying tails and toppers for the 50,000 world guests, some of whom were traveling light. Black waistcoats were worn instead of white, and all the ladies wore high-necked, black dresses. No hats, but black mantillas.

When composing songs for Richard Tauber, Franz Lehar would never publish them until after he had conferred with Tauber, and in many cases been helped by his rephrasing. Now the latter pays $25 every time he sings one of Lehar's songs.

Gregory Ratoff is having a hard time filling the required reservations for "Hotel for Women." There aren't enough sensational women in Hollywood, he claims. Why, Greg, where have you been all these years?

Elsa Maxwell brought a gal out from New York whom Zanuck likes. Nice going, Elsa.

Fred MacMurray and Claude Binyon went into a theater in Mexico City to watch the reaction of the natives to our pictures. What they heard was a monotone—one out of every ten couldn't read even the Mexican titles; the meaning had to be relayed and the buzz drowned the sound.

Hal Roach's picture, "Zenobia," wasn't so hot; it lacked the touch of Milton Bren and Norman McLeod.

Louise Campbell, who used to be a projectionist for educational films when she was a pupil at St. Michael's High School in Chicago, made good use of her knowledge on her last trip home. Seems religious teachers are not allowed to view films outside of school, and the Redemptorist Fathers and Sisters of Notre Dame wanted to see Louise in "Men With Wings." So she got the film and ran it off for them.

Gale Page gave a party for the girls who worked with her on her last Warner picture. Treated them to manicures, pedicures, a fortune telling seance and champagne. What, no sauerkraut?

Albert Morin, Metro's professional robber, was doing a scene at Twentieth Century-Fox with Spencer Tracy and Walter Brennan. Morin is supposed to be auctioning off a group of Ubangi slaves. He went up in his auction lingo and cut to: "Sold to the American Tobacco Co." Tracy and Brennan howled.

Charles Brackett and William Wilder, who did such a swell job on "Midnight," are rewriting Garbo's next picture, "Ninotchka," from scratch. Lubitsch will direct it.

Parents Want Principals' Aides Retained

$38,000 Budget Item Is Indispensable, Lazo Tells Committee

Restoration of a $38,937 item to the District school budget, providing for 11 assistant principals and 8 assistant clerks for junior high schools, yesterday was urged upon the District Appropriations Committee by the City-Wide Citizens Committee of Junior High School Parents.

The item has been stricken from budgets repeatedly, Hector Lazo, chairman of the citizens committee, asserted, as a "convenient" method of showing savings.

He described denial of the appropriation as the most dangerous type of false economy, pointing out that the burden on administrative officers and clerical help in local junior high schools is the heaviest of any American city for which reports are available, except Baltimore.

Junior high school principals must perform so many routine office duties they lack time for essential administrative functions, he said.

The guidance of the principals is indispensable, Lazo declared, for both teachers and parents confronted with problems concerning pupils of junior high school age, "the child's most impressionable and in many respects most dangerous years."

And Now Memel

Just one week after the establishment of German sovereignty over Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia, Germany has annexed Memel, Lithuania's only seaport.

The development occasions no surprise and will not of itself arouse international repercussions similar to those which have followed the destruction of Czecho-Slovakia. Unlike the Czech territory, which never formed part of the German Reich and which is overwhelmingly non-Germanic in population, Memel has always been a Germanic city and has always had a large German-speaking majority. Except that the annexation was achieved by threat of force, the re-incorporation of Memel in the Reich therefore more closely resembles the return of the Saar than the destruction of Czecho-Slovakia. Indeed, Memel has for some time been under the actual domination of the Nazi party, ruled by a gauleiter appointed from Berlin.

But all this does not change the fact that the seizure of Memel constitutes a further disintegration of the Versailles structure, a further triumph for Hitler and a further weakening of the forces which, in the past, were in a position to hold Germany in check. Indeed, the rapidity with which this stroke follows that of last week itself suggests that Germany's forward movement is now really getting under way. As Oscar Wilde said long ago, nothing succeeds like excess.

Along with this humorous observation comes to mind Hitler's past assurances that, so far as he was concerned, there would be "no more surprises." Now it appears that not a week is to go by without them. Such policy does not merely mean a continuous expansion of the Third Reich. It is also a calculated method of throwing confusion into the ranks of the powers which are seeking to build a barrier against further aggressions.

Not knowing in which direction the Nazis will strike next, the weak nations in the German orbit are all in deadly fear of antagonizing the Reich. There is a steadily diminishing likelihood that any of them will dare to join forces with the great powers anxious to stop Hitler. These smaller states hope, by concessions, to save at least a remnant of their independence and their territorial integrity even though, as in the case of Czecho-Slovakia, that hope appears a very feeble reed to lean upon.

Baffling Farm Trends

One of the most baffling trends of the current economic situation is the increased use of machinery on the farm. Evidence of the upheaval that is being wrought by tractors and new farm implements is beginning to appear in official reports, in rural employment statistics and in legislation pressed for action at the Capitol. Recent findings of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the boot-heel of Missouri, following a spectacular share-cropper demonstration, afford an acute illustration of the trend.

Until recently the rich lands of southwestern Missouri were cultivated under the share-cropper system. Almost overnight share-croppers and mules have given way to tractors and hired labor. Landlords have discovered, as pointed out by the FBI, that by employing farm hands for daily wages during the few months when help is most needed they can avoid supporting them for the balance of the year. So hundreds of families are shifted to relief rolls for the winter. Under the share-cropper system they were at least able to eke out a living the year round on the land.

More than 300 families took part in the demonstration investigated by the FBI. The Farm Security Administration found that these families had an average income of $148.55 in 1938. Many of them have now lost even that meager subsistence. Indeed, the FSA has made grants to 3,747 destitute families in six counties in this region. Efforts are now being made to find land for these and other families not yet at the end of their resources, but the region is already overpopulated and the outlook is extremely grim.

The FBI investigated this situation for possible violations of law. The FSA has investigated it from the viewpoint of relieving distress and rehabilitating families where possible. It remains for some agency with a more general outlook to relate these developments to the agricultural and relief policies of the Administration. Of course, people cannot be permitted to starve because unscrupulous landlords hire them for brief periods at 75 cents to $1 per day and then turn them over to public charity. But this certainly should not mean that the Government will continue to subsidize planters by maintaining their former share-croppers part of the year.

FBI investigators frankly point out that curtailment of cotton acreage by the AAA is an important factor in the deplorable plight of share-croppers. That fact plus the rapid mechanization of agriculture raises a question as to whether the whole New Deal farm program has been built upon unsound premises. The AAA has curtailed output and attempted to maintain artificial prices, thus minimizing foreign demands for American crops, just at a time when mechanization of the farm is substantially lowering costs of production. The impact of such a policy upon thousands of tenants and workers on the farm cannot be offset by Farm Security grants and general relief.

Each of the numerous tractors now invading the farm belt is said to displace from one to nine families. In the end this mechanization may prove to be a salutary development for agriculture. But at present it is creating gigantic human problems. It seems to call for a new approach to the farm problem with some more sensible aim than restoration of pre-war prices or income relationships.

Sober Second Thought

After approving the Wheeler amendment to the reorganization bill on Tuesday the Senate yesterday voted to reconsider its action, rejected the amendment by a two-vote margin and then approved the bill by a large majority.

Just as the Tuesday vote was regarded as a defeat for the Administration, so the reversal is properly hailed as a victory for Administration forces. The character of the Senate debate, as well as the list of those voting for the amendment, indicates this. Chief support for the Wheeler proposal came from Democratic Senators who belong to the nonconformist group and from Republicans. It was obvious that these Senators were unwilling to entrust President Roosevelt with the powers conferred upon him by the reorganization bill.

Thus a vote for the Wheeler amendment was in effect a vote of no-confidence in the President. Moreover, it was virtually equivalent to a vote against the whole reorganization program. For if every executive order had to be affirmatively approved by both houses of Congress, as the Wheeler amendment provided, very little would be accomplished. Adequate protection against any abuses of delegated power is afforded in the bill by providing that an executive order may be overruled by a majority vote of both houses.

The bill now under consideration is of extremely limited scope compared with the omnibus measure rejected last year. Moreover, it is universally admitted that there is need for reorganization of the administrative branch of Government in the interest of economy and efficiency. Nevertheless, a large number of Senators were unwilling to grant to the President the authority to effect reforms which they well know Congress would not launch of its own initiative and in fact has neither the time nor the knowledge to undertake.

Some Senators went so far as to argue that the reorganization bill would give the President decree powers comparable to those employed by the heads of authoritarian states. This argument is both absurd and dangerous. Democratic institutions are not strengthened by mutual suspicion and lack of co-operation between the executive and legislative branches of government. Dictatorships in other countries are not so much an outgrowth of executive usurpation of legislative power as of legislative inertia and obstruction which pave the way for executive domination.

A proper concern for Congressional rights and prerogatives does not in any way preclude bestowal of discretionary power upon the Chief Executive to reorganize executive agencies, provided the limits of his authority are clearly defined.

Lebrun In London

It is now eight months since King George VI and Queen Elizabeth journeyed to Paris to cement still further the close and friendly relations existing between the British monarchy and the French republic. President Lebrun of France is now returning that call.

Between these two ceremonial visits of heads of states, a vast deal has happened in Europe. In June, 1938, Czecho-Slovakia was still intact, the Spanish republican armies were still successfully resisting fascist attack, Memel was still under Lithuanian sovereignty and the French system of alliances, while shaken as a result of a succession of developments over a period of years, was still nominally in existence.

During those eight months the Spanish civil war has practically ended with Franco victorious; Czecho-Slovakia has been swallowed up by Germany; Memel has also been annexed; the French alliance system has disintegrated and Europe has suffered other seismic shocks that have completely swept away all remnants of an organized peace structure.

More than ever, therefore, Great Britain and France have found it necessary to draw together, to pool their resources and to plan for common action against the day when they are likely to be under direct attack. The visit of President Lebrun to London, like the earlier visit of King George to Paris, thus serves to emphasize an established policy, rather than to indicate any new departure.

Indeed, it is fair to say that except during the last year of the World War, Great Britain and France are today more closely united, and possess a far greater harmony of aim and purpose, than at any time since the entente cordiale was formed a quarter of a century ago.

But the statesmen of the two great European democracies have begun to realize that even their pooled strength may not be enough to meet the developing threat from the side of the totalitarian powers. Thus it is that President Lebrun's visit to the British capital is overshadowed by the great efforts that are being made to widen the coalition of peaceful states, and in that manner to check the forces of disintegration that threaten to make a shambles of European civilization.

Taxing War Profits

When the United States became involved in the World War a number of leading economists urged the imposition of taxes heavy enough to defray the cost of war on the pay-as-you-fight principle. Looking backward, at the pyramided indebtedness that is the heritage of post-war generations, this idea seems amusingly naive. Yet once again a bill has been introduced into the Senate which its sponsor, Senator Bone, hopes would enable us to pay for the cost of the next war "as we go."

The main object of the bill, however, is probably to frighten American taxpayers who would be subjected to confiscatory taxation, and thus strengthen their desire to keep the country out of war. Here again there comes to the surface an apparently ineradicable conviction that the urge for individual gain, or the fear of individual losses, are dominating factors in precipitating war or preserving peace. While historians can adduce some evidence to support such a view, there is far more abundant proof that the profit motive is much less powerful than the interpreters of history in terms of material values assert.

There are certainly no present indications that spokesmen for the financial and commercial interests of this country are eager for war. On the contrary we find an eminently capitalistic newspaper of the unassailable standing of the Wall Street Journal issuing editorial warnings against any changes in the neutrality laws that might conceivably increase the risk of war. We find the stock market reacting unfavorably to war scares and commodity markets failing to respond to the stimulus that might be expected to follow wartime buying.

Threats of tax laws that would take all the profits out of war, and also most of a man's income from peaceful occupations, are not needed to create the desire of business for peace. If war should come, however, experience teaches that taxes must not be so crushing as to destroy the incentive to produce. Even in times of great national emergency there must be some inducement to continue working. Of course the excessive profits of wartime ought to be diverted into the public treasury, and used to defray part of the costs of war. But how much is a question which the United States is happily not forced to decide at the present moment.

Diversion For Dictators

From the Kansas City Star.

An American opera tenor, by way of South America, passes on the report that Hitler has taken the advice of a psychiatrist to relax and indulge in light, frivolous entertainment. For appeasement of his jangled nerves the dictator is said to have become a patron, if not a participant, at parties where dancing girls offered diversion from tense affairs of state.

Precedent for such relaxation may have been set by H. G. Wells. In his story, "The Holy Terror," that ran serially in The Star this winter, the fiction dictator, Rud Whitlow, finally was persuaded to employ dancing girls to take the tension off his troubled mind. Perhaps the Fuehrer could learn other things to his advantage if he would only read Mr. Wells' diagnosis of the evolution of a dictator.

Education For Motorists

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having had the three weeks of education of pedestrians, let us now have three weeks of equally definite education for motorists.

Those who scoff at such a proposal are requested to curb their mirth until after they have made the following test. Stand at any busy street corner of your own selection. Count the number of vehicles and the number of occupants, or better passengers, that cross the intersection while the green light beckons them on. Compare that total with the number of pedestrians who have herded themselves together at the curb. It is obvious that in the business areas of Washington far more persons walk on foot than go by motor.

In view of these facts, while I do not advocate jay-walking, I do feel that majority rule should govern, and that the police be now instructed to crack down on the jay-motorists.

On Pennsylvania avenue, and similar streets where the stop-and-go race goes on, I would supplement the lights with the dial system which employs a pointer turning in front of a clock-like face with yellow, red and green sections, thus showing to all how much more time remains before the light will change. I would use the loudspeaker wagons as cruising platforms from which our pedagogical police could educate the motorists. The lady in the red hat who was publicly told not to make a corpse of herself recently deserves now to hear the same amplifier point out the crudities of some serpentine motorist.

Relief for Business

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Government has expended $9,271,227.71 on relief appropriations alone since 1935 to January, 1939, and the unemployment situation is no nearer a solution than it was when we started. It is evident by this time that relief appropriations are not bettering economic conditions.

The way to recovery of business and employment is not through relief by the Government going into business, but by encouraging private business through relief from income and a multitude of other taxes. The tax burden has paralyzed business. Both the Federal Government and the State governments have multiplied bureaus and offices which have absorbed a large portion of our taxes and aided in greatly increasing our national debt to $40,000,000,000.

The time has come for our statesmen to find a sound, fundamental solution for recovery of business. We believe that that solution is to be found in giving the businessmen of this country a chance to build up business by taking the Government out of business and by encouraging the businessman to use some of his profits to expand his business instead of paying it to the Government to put it into business as an unfair competitor.

Waste Paper Baskets

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A correspondent in this morning's Post asks when the accolade has been given to the deserving wastebasket. In a collection of his essays entitled "Buying Happiness," Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, now professor emeritus of Biblical and Patristic Greek of the University of Chicago, presents five pages which, if not technically a literary accolade, are at least evidence that the wastebasket has not gone unsung until 1939. The initial sentence on page 84 reads: "It has occurred to me in surveying our growing national literature that not enough is being said, and more ought to be said, in praise of wastebaskets." Here, then, is an invitation of at least six years' standing for such a paean as Mr. McDare sounds. This gentleman may be interested in carrying the search for earlier examples.

While he is rummaging through the literature, perhaps Mr. McDare will discover the origin of the phrase of the old Colgate professor, who used to refer to "the paste-waper basket!" WILLIAM H. ALLISON.

Dynamics Of Fascism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Evidently a lesson, the learning of which is overdue, at last has been driven into the consciousness of the democratic peoples. It is that the Nazis—and this goes also for the Italian and Japanese brands of fascism—cannot be appeased.

There are special reasons for this, arising out of the politico-economic nature of fascism itself. Fascism embodies a much more formidable force than anything pertaining to Hitler's personality. Whether or not, for example, Hitler is a neurotic who has succeeded in hypnotizing a large section of the German population is far from decisive.

Much more basic is it that fascism, on its economic side, sets out to make the nation self-sufficient. The Nazi aim of self-sufficiency is primarily a war measure. It is designed to achieve the maximum degree of "independence," so far as food and essential raw materials are concerned.

The catch is that this very drive for self-sufficiency eventually produces national stresses and strains in the internal economy resulting in new forms of scarcity. When armaments and kindred industries absorb disproportionate amounts of the fascist-ruled nation's capital and labor, "unemployment may disappear." But food, clothing and housing have not been produced in amounts paralleling the "expansion in employment;" capital and labor are not going into these industries. This means that the standard of living of the masses falls qualitatively (witness the ersatz goods) and quantitatively (witness the shortage of butter and meatless days).

At this stage the aim of national self-sufficiency has run into a blind alley—or, better, a stone wall. Meanwhile, however, military might has been accumulated which may succeed in battering through or surmounting such stone walls as are represented by the national defense systems of other nations. And the diplomatic-military "successes" thus achieved are also sanctified by the fascist nation in the name of self-sufficiency.

The crucial fact is that the application of this doctrine of dispensing with the products of other nations creates the compulsion to expand the national boundaries. Since self-sufficiency cannot be won within the existing national boundaries, these boundaries must be enlarged. That involves annexing other nations' territories, accomplished either by war or the threat of war.

The brutal reality of this has at last been made glaringly clear by the most recent Nazi conquest, that of Czecho-Slovakia.

The Source of "New Deal"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of March 16, page 2, is an item under the headline, "Sherman Coined Term 'New Deal,' Says Dictionary." The expression is therein attributed to Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman when campaigning in the South in 1863.

It seems in order to call attention to a passage in "The Life of Andrew Jackson," by Mr. Marquis James. In the controversy between the President and Mr. Nicholas Biddle over the renewal of the charter of the Federal Bank in 1834 the tide of public opinion had begun to turn to the side of the President. On page 376 of the above book by Mr. James I find: "A New York adherent also sought to stay the hand of the banker. 'Our friends complain, our enemies exult.' Sentiment was growing for 'a new bank and a new deal.'"

The source of the above is given as being a letter from John Rathbone to Nicholas Biddle, January 18, 1834. "Biddle Correspondence, 222." B. M. RANDOLPH.

Domestic Workers And Social Security

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of March 21 prompts me to write on behalf of the League of Women Shoppers, Women's Trade Union League, National Negro Congress, American Youth Congress, Congress of Industrial Organizations and the Philadelphia Institute on Household Occupations.

Many welfare and consumer organizations are disturbed by the decision of the House Ways and Means Committee not to consider the extension of the scope of the social security act to include household workers. Valuable testimony prepared by these organizations and showing the need for extended protective legislation to household workers, was to have been submitted to the committee. This material is now shelved. The following facts are culled from such testimony.

Domestic workers, comprising 5 per cent of all gainfully employed persons in the United States, especially need social security benefits. They are now excluded from practically all legislative protection afforded workers in other occupations — from minimum-wage laws compulsory workmen's compensation, from wage-hour regulations. Because of the low wages of household workers, and the close dependence of their jobs on general economic conditions, they face probably greater insecurity than any other group of workers. This is shown by the great number of domestics on relief.

Since 50 per cent of those employed in household occupations are Negroes, and since many occupations are closed to Negroes, the net effect of their exclusion from social security benefits constitutes a highly discriminatory situation.

Since the cost of relief of aged and unemployed household workers is now being met by public funds, I feel that protection accorded household workers will directly and indirectly benefit the taxpayer. Extension of social insurance benefits to domestic employes would tend to decrease rather than increase tax burdens.

While the administration of the social security benefits to domestic workers would have presented major difficulties when the social security program was instituted, there is now evidence that extension of such benefits to household employes is feasible. Experience in 15 foreign countries indicates that it can be done.

It seems only reasonable that the House Ways and Means Committee reopen the question and consider the extension of social security benefits to the 2,500,000 employes who work as domestic servants.

The Post Impressionist

Bird Of Passage

IN THE NINETIES, my husband and I were crossing the country from Los Angeles to Washington over the Santa Fe and connecting roads. In the same Pullman was a literary lady bound for New York to arrange for the publication of a book she had written, and for the typing and editing of which she had paid a big price. In those days on long trips fellow passengers soon became acquainted.

The day after we left Los Angeles we stopped at Albuquerque, a division point where engines were changed and the train serviced. As the train pulled out from that place, a new passenger hastily made his appearance limping painfully, and with him a queer Mexican attendant carrying a lot of luggage. The American had a satchel which he personally carried and carefully guarded.

He was the sociable sort. Most of us were Westerners and easy to know. But the literary lady at once sought to monopolize the new young man, told him some of her life history and all of her ambitions. He said he had once been an editor, and graciously offered to edit and criticize her novel. When he got through the manuscript it looked like a scratch pad. She was much surprised, but thanked him cordially.

To the rest of us the young man told some of his own life story and of the exciting time he had just experienced escaping from Mexico and his hurried boarding of the train. He seemed greatly relieved as the train bore him steadily eastward. "Queer people, those Mexicans," he said. "I just came up from Mexico and I came away in a hurry. I always take my valet with me. He sleeps on the floor outside my door when I'm in Mexico—never know what those fellows there are going to do. A little while ago one of them shot me—just grazed the flesh of my hip. It might have been my heart, but I was lucky. You see, I have a senora friend down there and her husband got jealous—Mexicans are impulsive. He shot me in the back. That's why I limp. Funny people, those Mexicans.

He was interested in everyone all the way across and was very friendly. But he kept his locked satchel beside him all the way. At meal times he would have the porter call his peon servant from the day coach and upon his appearance would throw him 10 cents for his meal, for which the servant would say, "Muchos gracias, senor."

"I like peon servants," the young man said, "because they obey orders and never question. I'll show you." He sent again for his servant and when he came told him to clean his shoes. When this was done, he dismissed him, but immediately recalled him and told him to clean his shoes. The peon obeyed without a word and then left. "That's the kind of a servant to have," said our young friend.

He got on especially good terms with a cowboy who, obviously, was taking his first ride in a Pullman. Both were a constant source of delight to the other passengers. Their manners, or lack of them, were very amusing, especially in the dining-car. The menu puzzled the cowboy a great deal and the proper use of silverware was an even graver problem. But most difficult of all was the finger bowl. What was it? What to do with it? The finger bowl story has often been told as a joke, but it absolutely occurred upon this occasion. This good looking and wholesome young fellow squeezed the slice of lemon into the water and tried to drink it for lemonade. He was sitting at our table and remarked: "This is the weakest stuff I ever drank."

At Kansas City out traveling friend from Mexico said he was obliged to get out and send a telegram. He asked me to take care of his satchel while he was gone and cautioned me not to leave my seat until he returned. I did not like to be custodian of evidently so valuable a possession; but allowed him to place it on my seat beside me. I saw him pass my window, followed by his faithful peon. When he returned he thanked me and then said, "Would you like to see what you have been guarding—what's in this satchel?" Upon receiving my affirmative reply he unlocked and opened the satchel. It was full of bright $20 gold pieces. The cowboy's eyes almost popped out of his head. I had no mirror to see how I looked.

Before parting from us at Chicago he invited all of us to visit him in New York City, giving us his address, and the literary woman (who was en route to that city over another road) accepted. Of course our sociable friend never dreamed she would call upon him, but she did (as we afterward ascertained), and stranger still is the fact that he gave her his correct address. It was a fatal mistake.

A year later, on our way back to California, we traveled with the same conductor, and he, recognizing us, asked if we recollected the man and the literary lady. We answered that we did, and then he told us the sequel to the satchel of gold.

The literary lady, as I say, had taken its owner at his word and had called upon him at the New York City address he had given her in Chicago. There she found him with his fellow counterfeiters hard at work. What consteration her visit must have caused! The police attended to the rest.

The lady had returned to California upon the conductor's train, had told him her story with, no doubt, as much relish as he manifested in retelling it to us. Maybe the moral is to beware of literary ladies. For all I know our traveling companion may still be in jail. But that was all so long ago, so long that more probably he is by now in the ranks of the respected.

Strange Teammates

POLITICS AND military necessity may compel France and Britain, to fight on Russia's side and this country to help them, first with supplies and later, perhaps, with soldiers and naval power. But, whatever happens, the Russians and their American agents and sympathizers should not be permitted to get away with the current loud pretense that Russia is a democracy or any less hateful to this country than Nazi Germany. The only difference, as far as the United States is concerned, is that Germany and Italy are bulging with muscle just now and therefore are out marauding, whereas Russia, having more territory than she can efficiently use or well police, and being pretty well shot by internal conspiracies and dumb incompetence, can point to a recent record of half-decent outward behavior toward the neighbors.

Russia's Record No More Friendly

HITLER AND, with him, Mussolini have put themselves on the urgent list and will have to be attended to first, but Russia's record, as of the time when there was no German menace, was no more friendly than Nazi-Fascism to the American form of government or the peace and security of this Nation.

It might be remembered also that the Czecho-Slovak democracy, which Americans mourn with pure motives and the same starry-eyed idealism which drew the United States into the World War, stood between the two kinds of bolshevism, red and brown, and wanted no more of the one than of the other. Russia liked the little republic only as a line of defense against Germany and forbore to destroy it by poison only because Czecho-Slovakia served to keep Hitler at a distance. Czecho-Slovakia was not a bolshevik nation, red or brown, and Russia's democratic feeling for her did not impel her to do anything rash.

In the event of a general brawl this democracy, having fought on the side of the Czar in the last one, might overcome its objections to teaming up with the Russian bolos, should it come to that. But there is no more excuse for believing that Soviet Russia is a democracy than there was for thinking that of czarist Russia. Nobody did think that of czarist Russia, but still the Americans fought on that side, handicapped to the extent of their ability, incidentally, by the very bolos who now would call this nation comrade.

Russia, Germany Still Likely to Team

THERE IS still something very mysterious and suspicious about the Russian-German equation, for they are almost identical in their own qualities, in their common enmity toward this country's freedom and form of government, and their hatred of religion. National rivalry is their only point of conflict and they easily could make a deal to exchange the things which Hitler wants for those which he is prepared to trade and Russia needs. And, as Demaree Bess recently pointed out in the Saturday Evening Post, while the democratic nations have been striving generously to find asylums for the victims of Hitler's savagery, Russia, with much spare room and, certainly, with great need of the intelligence which the refugees have to offer, has extended no welcome to the outcasts. Certainly those in this country who have condemned loyalist Spain as bolshevistic with no discount or allowance, would find themselves decidedly uncomfortable in a line-up with Russia against Hitler, even though France and Britain were also on the team. They will exert a strong pull against that course.

American Bolos Will Need Watching

IN THIS situation, the American bolos will need close watching and the propaganda for democracy must be examined for communistic taint. They have lately adopted Abraham Lincoln and blown kisses at the American Constitution, but only as propaganda, and it will be found on inspection that they have merely set themsleves certain limited objectives on the way to the creation here of the same dictatorship that exists in Russia and Germany. Never have they renounced their ultimate intentions toward the American form of government, and the Constitution would be used merely as a tool for its own destruction, a method identical with that of the Nazis of the anti-American Bund.

As silly and horrible as anything that any lunatic could imagine would be the spectacle of this democracy fighting economically or in the field to protect the Russian dictatorship from the German dictatorship and preserve the Russian oppressor of the Ukraine against the challenge of a rival with identical motives, methods and ideas.

Financing Exports

By Ann P. Youngman

American Policy Undergoes A Change

IN FEBRUARY both the Senate and House Committees on Banking and Currency held hearings on a bill to continue the Export-Import Bank which was subsequently passed by Congress. Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, testified that the bank, which was established by executive order in 1934, had obtained most of its capital by selling its preferred stock to the RFC at the request of the Secretary of the Treasury. Since its organization, he then stated, it had authorized a total of $210,000,000 in loans, of which not much more than half had been used.

If the members of Congress had read the clear and detailed accounts of the bank's operations contained in the committee hearings they would have been better able to judge the significance of the accord recently concluded with Brazil.

IN AGREEING to establish credits to finance the shipment of American goods to that country the Export-Import Bank is only doing what Congress has empowered it to do. Yet some indignant Senators assert that the Administration is preparing to squander the money of American taxpayers on loans to Brazil without asking advice or seeking authorization from Congress.

Senator Lewis, of Illinois, in a recent debate in the Senate even asserted that it was illegal for the bank to make loans to finance shipments to Brazil because Brazilian bonds held by Americans were in default. Senator Barkley had to explain that the Johnson act did not apply in this particular transaction because it only banned loans to foreign governments in default on obligations owing to the Government of the United States. Senator Glass finally interrupted the flood of denunciatory oratory long enough to remind his bewildered colleagues that without a single dissent both House and Senate had voted a few days previously to extend the life of the Export-Import Bank and to increase its authority to lend.

Senator Taft, a member of the Committee on Banking and Currency, said in the course of the hearings that he regarded the entire business of extending credit abroad as unsound and that the time had come to end the Government's power to do so. Thereupon Mr. Jones disarmingly remarked that it was a matter "entirely for Congress to determine."

Unfortunately Congress appears to be ready to criticize, but most unwilling to assume responsibility.

BOTH MR. JONES and Warren L. Pierson, president of the Export-Import Bank, admitted that the credits advanced to assist sales of American products abroad, such as cotton shipped to Poland, railroad equipment to Mexico and various supplies for use in China, entail risks of loss that ordinary commercial banks would not assume.

The loans of the bank are made without recourse on the exporter, and the bank provides from 40 to 75 per cent of the necessary credits. Pondering these facts, Senator Taft asked whether the Government had not in effect gone into the exporting business. To which query Mr. Jones replied, "If that is the way you want to put it."

Putting it "that way" helps to clarify the issue presented by the use of Federal funds to finance export sales. In fact, there are two issues involved—first, whether it is sound policy for a Government agency to advance credits to foreigners when private lenders consider the risk excessive and, secondly, whether such loans should be made not only to foster trade but also with a view to strengthening political friendships.

THE EXPORT-IMPORT Bank has engaged in both types of transactions—commercial and political. However, the extent of the aid it can hereafter give is limited by the restrictions imposed upon outstanding loans. But, as the Brazilian agreement shows, the free gold held by the Treasury provides resources for making substantial long-term loans to other countries.

Furthermore, the gold in the stabilization fund could be used to buy foreign currencies, in this way providing other countries with the means for purchasing our exports.

There is a rather widespread impression that the agreement just concluded with Brazil is a victory for the reciprocal trade policies of Secretary Hull. Instead it testifies to the limited efficacy of strictly commercial trade agreements as a means of expanding foreign trade.

Eugene P. Thomas, president of the Foreign Trade Council, doubts whether the reciprocal trade agreement program is "wholly sufficient for improvement of our foreign trade under the present adverse conditions brought about by the irregular and uneconomic trend in totalitarian countries." Mr. Thomas concludes that "for some time to come it will be necessary to supplement our trade policy by one of long-term credits which, since the decline set in of loans and investments, are required chiefly by primary producing countries which are in the grip of straitened circumstances."

IN ANOTHER respect the Brazilian agreement marks a change of policy as regards private debt negotiations. In that agreement, promises of loans have brought a commitment from Brazil to resume partial payments on defaulted obligations held by American investors.

The Department of State has steadfastly refused to link debt settlements with the negotiation of trade agreements for very good reasons. In many cases, had it done so, wrangling over the debts would no doubt have blocked commercial accords. Moreover, the Department of State has not been willing to act as collector for American creditors, holding that private investment in foreign securities is a private transaction to be entered into with willingness to risk losses.

This aloof attitude has enabled us to avoid a good deal of international friction. It is, however, an attitude which is increasingly difficult to maintain in a world not at all inclined to follow our example of letting private investors shift for themselves.

Other creditor countries bestir themselves on behalf of their citizen-investors, with the result that American investors frequently find themselves discriminated against by hard-pressed debtor states.

THE BRAZILIAN accord indicates that we are beginning to realize that fact and are prepared to use our bargaining powers to gain concessions for our investors as well as for our exporters. Of course, we should not delude ourselves into thinking that Brazil can out of her own resources regularly transfer any large amount of the interest due on the huge volume of outstanding indebtedness owing to Americans. What she can pay will depend upon the state of her trade balances, and that will vary from year to year with the changing prices of Brazil's export products.

Argentina has an excellent record as a debtor, but the strain imposed upon her exchange resources by debt payments abroad limits her importing ability. The result is that while American holders of Argentine bonds are fortunate, American exporters recently have had their sales to Argentina drastically cut as a means of conserving foreign exchange.

A LARGE part of the foreign trade carried on by the United States in the years immediately prior to the depression was made possible because of the liberal long-term loans placed in the United States for foreign account. When the proceeds of those loans were exhausted and further loans were not forthcoming, import buying by borrowing countries of necessity contracted sharply. Resumption of lending by Americans on a scale that would expand our foreign trade and raise it to the volume and value of former years is a vain hope in view of the losses of the recent past and the uncertainties of the present.

CONSEQUENTLY, if trade is to be expanded through the medium of loans, it is a foregone conclusion that the public treasury rather than private savings will have to provide funds for the purpose. Congress ought to decide, therefore, whether it wishes to keep the Federal Government in the banking business for the sake of pushing our exports into markets where they otherwise would not go or for the ulterior purpose of strengthening our political ties with certain countries.

If the decision favors nationalistic trade policies we should only be following the example of other nations in mixing business with politics. But in that event we ought to realize how far we have departed from our traditional policies and how far we have gone toward adopting methods of trade promotion that we condemn when they are practiced by others.

Today And Tomorrow

An Estimate Of American Public Opinion About Foreign Affairs

NOWADAYS anyone who wishes to make an estimate of public opinion must begin by asking how much he may rely upon the returns from the Gallup and the Fortune polls, for whether or not they are in fact correct, the leaders of opinion and the people at large follow these polls with close attention. The people are eager to know what the people are thinking, and there are no measures of popular opinion that have a comparable authority.

The authority of these polls has two main supports. The first is that, when they were tested by the election returns of 1936 and 1938, they showed not a perfect but a high degree of accuracy. Actual election returns are the only absolutely conclusive test of the reliability of these polls.

While we know that these polls can go wholly wrong, as witness the Literary Digest poll in 1936 after its many previous successes, the Gallup and Fortune polls have thus far proved themselves in general substantially right by the test of the election returns. This may be due in part to good luck. It may be due wholly to the fact that the directors of these two polls have, as they believe, discovered and eliminated the cause of the error in the Literary Digest poll.

2 Polls Believed Soundly Based

THE MOST careful students of this new branch of political science are, I think, on the whole convinced that Dr. Gallup's institute and Fortune magazine are proceeding on sound scientific principles. There is to begin with no doubt whatever of their entire good faith. They have invited investigation and, since their results have so often run counter to the wishes and the interests of politicians and editors all over the country, it is safe to conclude that any bias would have been detected and exposed.

Moreover, the two polls are a check the one upon the other, and since in general they have thus far tended to agree, the probability of their being accurate is greatly increased. Then, too, the method they employ is not some new tricky device but in principle the same method used by good reporters. The returns are derived from interviews with men and women all over the country and in various walks of life. The only difference between the polls and the experienced reporter who goes traveling to estimate opinion is that the polls interview more persons than any one reporter can interview and are able to take greater precautions against interviewing too many persons who think alike.

Nevertheless, in a field like that of opinion about foreign affairs there are no election returns with which to test the absolute accuracy of the polls, and the question is whether there are any other objective tests that can be applied. The polls have shown, for example, that American opinion is not indifferent but strongly partisan on the issues raised by aggression in Europe and Asia. They have shown an increasing concern about the outcome of the conflict between the dynamic and the static powers of Europe. They have shown a rapidly growing belief that if war broke out, the United States would be unable to remain securely isolated.

Armament Increase Widely Favored

IF WE WISH to test these returns by something tangible, what test can we use? The surest test, it seems to me, is not what has been said in Congress but what has actually been voted in Congress on the proposals to expand armaments. These votes have been overwhelming. Moreover, the opposition to armaments has melted away spectacularly since the autumn. Four months ago the best observers in Washington were saying that the President would get his program only after a long struggle. In January when Congress met, there was distinct evidence that the alignment on defense might follow the alignment in regard to the New Deal, with the Republicans and conservative Democrats opposing the program. But there has been no such opposition.

Having crossed the continent recently and talked with anti-New Dealers of all sorts in many places, it is evident to me why there has been no such division on the armament program. The plain fact is that Congress has been representing the real opinion of the great mass of the people. That opinion is that the aggressions abroad do concern the United States and that increased armaments are necessary. The votes in Congress on national defense confirm the returns from the two polls.

The polls measure opinion as it is, or more accurately, as it was within a week or a fortnight of the publication of the returns. Successive polls on the same question show the trends of opinion as they have been developing, but, of course, the most important question for statesmen is not what opinion is today, but what it is going to be later on. How is one to estimate the answer to that question?

There is no certain way of predicting the development of opinion. But we can say that the opinion will be made by the impact of events upon the mentality of the people.

Specific Issues Arouse Feelings

IT MAY BE SAID, I think, that the mental attitude of the American people toward foreign affairs is determined initially by the fact they make strong moral judgments on any issue in which they are interested. The American conscience is historically and fundamentally a Puritan conscience, and, therefore, almost incapable of remaining for long morally detached. This is, I believe, the clew to the difference between isolationist sentiment since the World War and isolationist sentiment before the war.

The traditional sentiment of isolation had its source in the fact that the people knew little about Europe and, therefore, cared little. That absence of information rather than moral indifference was its cause is proved, it seems to me, by the fact that all through American history the people have become quickly aroused on specific issues abroad such as the treatment of Ireland, or the despotism of the Czars, or the massacre of the Armenians.

Post-war isolationist sentiment, on the other hand, has been based not on absence of information but on moral disillusionment. The thing which repelled Americans from post-war Europe was the fact that they were morally disgusted with their former allies. They were driven to the conclusion that all the European powers were morally alike. Precisely because they are moralists to the core of their beings, they became disappointed moralists, that is to say cynics, when they contemplated the Treaty of Versailles and the oppression of the German republic. This was their mood when they approved the neutrality act. They set up an embargo on munitions because they felt that there should be a moral embargo against Europe as a whole.

Public No Longer Neutral In Thought

IF THIS IS correct interpretation of isolationist sentiment, that it operates only when the moral issue is not clear, then one can hazard a guess as to how opinion has been developing and how it will develop in response to events abroad. The actions of Hitler, for example, have already modified radically the post-war feeling that there is no moral difference between the powers of Europe. The polls confirm what any observer can see for himself, that the American people have decided that there is a fundamental difference between the democracies and the dictatorships.

There is no real doubt whatever that the people are not indifferent and that they are not neutral in thought. But it also is true that the degree to which they wish to intervene in Europe is a direct reflection of their own feeling as to how clearly the democracies abroad draw the moral issue. Thus Munich, for example, caused a reversion to isolationist feeling, because once again it seemed to the people that the British and French were abandoning the moral issue. On the other hand, the rearmament of Great Britain and the recovery in France have worked in the opposite direction.

In short, insofar as the dictators use violence and insofar as the democracies resist it, American opinion, which is always moved by moral judgments, tends to leave isolation and become interventionist. In so far as the democracies retreat, and surrender and compromise the moral issues, American opinion becomes cynical and isolationist.

Moral Stakes Wake U. S. Frontier Spirit

IT MAY BE asked whether this anatomy of American opinion does not leave out of account the immense hatred for war and the profound desire for peace. My own view is that American pacifism is not at all, like some pacifism abroad, caused by weakness and fear and decadence. American pacifism is itself the product of the Puritan conscience, which hates the waste and destruction and lawlessness and violence and unrighteousness of war as such. Where the issue between nations is not a moral issue, the Americans are, therefore, very pacifist. But they are not at all pacifist when they feel that something morally vital is at stake in a specific war.

The frontier spirit remains, and Americans are, once they are exasperated, very quick on the trigger.

Of all the people in America who become most impassioned about a moral issue in foreign affairs, the pacifists, the morally outraged pacifists, are the most ardent. The pacifists are, so to speak, the radical wing of American Puritanism. Mr. Hoover was profoundly right, therefore, when he said recently that the massacre of thousands of civilians by the aerial bombardment of London and Paris would produce an uncontrollable indignation in this country. The Americans would have to be a much older nation, a much more tired and morally disillusioned nation than they are, in order to sit by and be willing to do nothing about a calculated horror of that sort.

Explosion Imminent In Public Opinion

IF THIS IS correct, then there are very practical conclusions to be drawn from it both here and abroad. The dictators should realize that as indicated by the successive polls, by the tendency of the votes in Congress and by the drift of sentiment as seen by observers, American opinion is now in a state of imminent explosion. A spectacular unprovoked act of violence would almost certainly touch off that explosion. The European democracies and their allies should realize that another Munich will cause another return to isolationism, that they may expect assistance only insofar as they first show that they help themselves.

And the American Congress should realize that the only sure way to keep the American people out of war is to do everything that can now be done to prevent war. Legislation designed to keep America out after war breaks out will almost certainly be shattered by the moral partisanship of the people. Therefore, the only legislation which can surely be effective is legislation which makes clear before the fatal decision is taken abroad that war is too dangerous a gamble to be risked by the dictators.

Shirking The Issue

By Mark Sullivan

Cost Cut Is Odious

AT HIS PRESS conference the other day, President Roosevelt repeated something he had said at preceding press conferences. Then he remarked, with some impatience, that the press of the United States had failed to print what he had repeatedly said. At once, from one correspondent came a protesting statement, "I printed it" from another "my paper printed it." Thereupon Mr. Roosevelt said that anyhow, the press had not emphasized it; that he had emphasized it but no newspaper had emphasized it. Thereupon one correspondent said: "I played it up in my lead"; other correspondents declared they had given the point due prominence.

Now what is this thing, so important that the President emphasizes it repeatedly, and complains because the newspapers do not emphasize it enough? It is something that took place at a conference between President Roosevelt and Democratic Senator Harrison. Mr. Roosevelt said, and Senator Harrison agreed, that whatever is done about taxation, the total revenue to be raised must not be reduced. Mr. Roosevelt wants that emphasized, and wants it emphasized that the incident took place at the first of the conferences between him and Senator Harrison.

Why the emphasis on that? It does not seem terribly important. Why does it seem important to President Roosevelt?

Economy Advocates Are Put 'On Spot'

IN PART we must depend on inference. The whole story begins early in March. At that time, Senator Harrison—who is chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance— issued a public statement which said, in effect, "We've got to have some economy around here."

At once, apparently, the President took this as a challenge. To any suggestions about reducing Government expenditures, Mr. Roosevelt has a routine reply. He says, in effect, "All right, you name the Government activities which you would reduce."

That retort is designed to put the economy advocate "on the spot." The economy advocate will be obliged, as Mr. Roosevelt thinks, to name certain expenditures, reduction of which would be, in Mr. Roosevelt's judgment, unpopular.

Mr. Roosevelt the other day listed these expenditures. He said:

"They include relief for the unemployed, all forms of public works, social security for the aged, slum clearance and various other items which today give work in large volume—all of these being predicated upon the guess of many well meaning people that thereby taking away employment from several million workers, business will automatically pick up and employ that entire slack, plus the other large number of people who are out of work, but not in any way being helped by the Government. If there were some guaranty that this would happen, it would be worth considering. I doubt, however, whether this would meet with popular aproval if it were tried and the results were not attained. There is the answer. It is purely extemporaneous, but I think I said a mouthful."

Each Avoids Odium Of Being Harsh

IT WILL BE observed that Mr. Roosevelt listed only those expenditures which go to relief of the needy or unemployed. By this, he puts upon Senator Harrison and the others who propose economy, the odium of seeming to be willing to be harsh to the needy, while the President stands stout in their behalf.

Related to this interplay between the President and Senator Harrison about economy and expenditures, is a related interplay about taxation. Senator Harrison says, in effect—my words in this dialogue aim merely to be a description of the attitudes of Mr. Harrison and the President: "Something must be done about these taxes that act as brakes on business, the 'friction taxes.'". The Administration replies, in effect, "All right, you say what taxes you propose to change—but the total revenue must not be reduced." Senator Harrison replies, in effect, "No, you propose something; the Administration has been free enough to propose new taxes; now suggest some reductions." So the interplay goes. Each tries to put on the other the burden of saying first what taxes should be changed.

Mr. Roosevelt ought to be more considerate of Senator Harrison and others who propose Government economy. It might be a lesson in tolerance to Mr. Roosevelt if he would go back and refresh his memory of what he himself used to say in 1932, when he was first running for the Presidency. At that time, he was more concerned about economy, and more confident he could achieve it than Senator Harrison is now.

I quote sentences from speeches Mr. Roosevelt made at Sioux City, Pittsburgh and St. Louis during October, 1932:

"I accuse the present (Hoover) administration of being the greatest spending administration in peace-time in all our history . . . the most reckless and extravagant in the record of any peace-time government anywhere, any time . . . It is my pledge that . . . rigid governmental economy shall be enforced by a stern and unremitting Administration policy of living within our income."

When Mr. Roosevelt said that, when he was so alarmed about Government expenditures, so accusing against Mr. Hoover, so confident in his pledge that he would reduce expenditures as soon as he was President—at that time the national debt was about 20 billions. During the seven years Mr. Roosevelt has been President he has increased the debt to about 40 billions.

What Memel Means

By Barnet Nover

Why Hitler Struck At This Time

HITLER COULD have taken Memel at any time during recent years. Lithuania, a nation of only 2,500,000 inhabitants, with a standing army of barely 23,000, was never in a position to oppose him. Besides, Memel itself has been nazified for months.

Why, then, did the Fuehrer wait as long as he did before striking? And why did he choose this particular moment for his coup?

The answers to these questions are of far more than casual or academic interest. They go to the very root of the present European crisis. And they reveal that the annexation of Memel was the logical next step after the destruction of Czecho-Slovakia and the logical prelude both to further German expansion in the east and to the inevitable showdown with the democracies of Western Europe.

THE ANNEXATION of Memel is of little or no economic value to Germany. The Third Reich does not need another port on the Baltic. Nor does Hitler need Memel for prestige reasons.

As a counter in the game of power politics, however, a German Memel is of tremendous importance. For by the addition of that tiny area the Third Reich has been placed in a position where it can neutralize the pressure on Poland by Paris, London and Moscow to join the "Stop Hitler" movement.

THE KEY to coming events both in eastern and western Europe is to be found in Warsaw.

Poland herself happens to be in the line of Hitler's fire. That was true before Munich, before the destruction of Czecho-Slovakia and before Dr. Goebbels' discovery of the Ukrainian question. It is infinitely more true now. For while Rumania's oil and wheatfields tempt the Fuehrer, so does the mineral wealth of Upper Silesia, the fields and forest of Posen, the Polish Corridor, which divides Prussia from the rest of Germany.

Poland Prepared to Fight If Attacked

POLAND has made it clear that she will fight, if attacked. She has also indicated that she will come to the assistance of Rumania, if Rumania is attacked. And Poland is a nation of 33,000,000 with a sizeable army and bitter memories of what it means to live for decades in a state of subjection to foreign rule.

Poland has a treaty of alliance with France. Treaties of alliance or any other kind of treaties do not mean very much these days. Some nations break treaties violently and some break them by default. The fate of Czecho-Slovakia provides a bitter object lesson which the smaller nations have taken very much to heart. Nonetheless, the Poles are realistic enough to be aware of the fact that they cannot successfully fight alone. And they know that if they remain aloof from a war waged by Germany on Rumania or on France and Hitler is victorious the respite they will enjoin will be of only short duration. The French are now equally convinced of the importance of barring further German expansion in the east.

THUS, whether Germany moves to the east again or to west, there is a possibility that she will have to fight a war on two fronts, with Great Britain and France opposing her in the west and with Poland, perhaps assisted by Russia and by Rumania, fighting her in the east.

It is a possibility which Hitler has not ignored. At Munich he smashed Czecho-Slovakia, with the aid of Chamberlain, Daladier and Bonnet. The east-west coalition against the Third Reich became less workable then, but it continued to be a potential factor none the less. Nor could such a coalition, even with Czecho-Slovakia's 35 divisions out of the picture, be underestimated. For the resources of the Anglo-French combine plus the resources of those nations that may join them is still very much greater than that of the Berlin-Rome axis, even assuming that Italy lines up with Germany in a general war.

ON THE OTHER hand, if all of the nations between the Third Reich and Soviet Russia were either made into protectorates or neutralized into inaction, Great Britain and France, despite the apparent scrapping of the appeasement policy, might, in the face of another threat of war, give way again.

It is at this point that the annexation of Memel assumes considerable importance. Hitherto it has been to Germany's interests to court Warsaw.

But it is no longer necessary for Hitler to placate Poland except in return for a free hand against France and Rumania. He has played his cards so that he is now in a position to intimidate the Warsaw government. The establishment of a German protectorate over Moravia, the transformation of Slovakia into a satellite state have created a situation in which Poland can now be attacked by Germany from the south as well as the west and the north. The annexation of Memel means an addition to the northern salient which Poland would have to defend in the event of war. At the same time Germany now has, in Lithuania, a springboard for expansion in the Baltic.

Useful As A Springboard

MEMEL is of little economic value to Germany. It is indispensable to Lithuania. Memel, therefore, is a club which can be used to browbeat Lithuania into submission. If the little Baltic republic does not become a protectorate in name it has, this week, become one in fact. German armies today can move on Poland not only from East Prussia, but also from Lithuania, and troops for such an offensive can be sent not only via Kenigsberg, but via Memel.

This does not mean that Germany is planning to attack Poland now or in the near future. On the contrary, Hitler can be expected to continue as long as possible his technique of getting what he is after by threat of war rather than by war itself. With Poland surrounded on three sides, Poland may hesitate about joining any "stop Hitler" movement. And if she holds aloof, Germany will be in a position to move on Rumania or, by putting pressure on France, help Mussolini achieve his Mediterranean objectives.

German strategy, beginning with the Rhineland occupation of March 7, 1936, was directed toward achieving a free hand in the east. Since Munich her strategy has been to achieve an equally free hand in the west so that in which ever direction she might decide to move there would be no real danger of a war on two fronts. The occupation of Memel is an important step in the unfolding of that new policy and cannot be minimized or be discounted.

Board Denies Rezoning of Calvert Street

Finishing School Application Opposed By French Embassy

Rezoning of Calvert street, between Columbia road and Biltmore street, to permit further commercial opportunities was denied yesterday by the zoning commission after seven weeks' deliberation.

At the same time the Board of Zoning Adjustment heard a representative from the French Embassy protest an application to establish a finishing school in its neighborhood.

Andre Fiot, of the Embassy, said a finishing school at 2134 Kalorama road, northwest, would bring noise, traffic hazards, and depreciation of property.

Mrs. Sterling's Application

The application was filed by Mrs. Dorothy Sterling, who said she purchased the property several years ago and had found it unsuitable for a residence because nearby apartment dwellers "put their clothes out in the rear of the house." She said she had several offers from parties interested in establishing a school at that location.

Signatures of more than 15 protestants including that of Justice Peyton Gordon of the District Court were submitted to the adjustment board requesting a denial of the application.

Other Cases Heard

Residents of LeRoy place near Connecticut avenue also appeared at the public hearing yesterday to protest a proposal to permit conversion of the old Sturtevant home at 2110 LeRoy place into an apartment house.

Other cases heard yesterday by the adjustment board included an appeal by the Eastern Construction Co. for permission to erect two four-story apartments at 1439-41 Euclid street northwest; an appeal by B. D. Friedman to establish a gasoline station at 625-627 T street northwest; an appeal from Sibley Memorial Hospital to establish an automobile parking lot at 28 M street northwest, and an appeal from the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co. to establish a parking lot on the southwest corner of Twenty-second and C streets northwest.

Roosevelt Accepts Lincoln Portrait For White House

President Roosevelt in a letter made public yesterday accepted with "very great pleasure" for the White House the famous Healy portrait of President Lincoln.

The painting was bequeathed to the Executive Mansion under the will of the widow of Robert Todd Lincoln, Abraham Lincoln's son. It became available to the White House on the death last November of Mary Lincoln Isham, daughter of Robert Todd and Mary Harlan Lincoln.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter was to the executor of the Robert Todd Lincoln estate.

Robert Todd Lincoln once described the portrait as the best likeness of his father.

Army to Seek More Proof in Death of Soldier

The Army court of inquiry at Fort Washington will withhold a verdict in the mystery death of Sergt. Edman F. Garrett for several days in the hope of obtaining more conclusive evidence, Maj. G. A. Jackson, in charge of the investigation, announced yesterday.

Maj. Jackson said the evidence so far was so "contradictory" it was impossible to reach a decision as to whether the soldier was murdered or killed by a hit-run driver.

The soldier's body was found beside the Livingston road in Maryland just beyond the District line last Saturday. An autopsy revealed he died of a crushed skull.

Spring Hayfever Days Reported On Way Here

Hay fever days are just around the corner, Health Officer George C. Ruhland declared yesterday.

"It's the spring type, though," he said.

This type, while not as common as the late summer variety, still brings with it the discomforts of sneezing, sniffling, and weeping eyes, he said. It comes from ragweed.

Suffrage Issue Is Barred In District Plan Hearings

protest of spokesmen for suffrage organizations.

Kennedy explained afterward that he favors local suffrage for the District, but believes the discussion futile and out of place in connection with District government reorganization.

William McK. Clayton, veteran civic spokesman, made a plea for local suffrage. Previously, Wilbur S. Finch, president of the District Suffrage Association, withdrew from the stand after being told that a plea for local suffrage would be a waste of time.

C. Marshall Finnan, director of National Capital Parks, speaking for the Interior Department, objected to the division of the District park system between the Federal and District governments as proposed in the Griffenhagen report. He likewise opposed absorption of the Park Police by the Metropolitan Police Department.

Control of 200 Argued

Objections to the division of control over the National Zoo were expressed by Dr. Charles Abbot, of the Smithsonian Institution, and Dr. William Mann, director of the Zoo, but they agreed that the guardianship of the area might better be assumed by the Metropolitan Police.

Howard A. Dawson, of the National Education Association, said he believed the best interests of education would be served by leaving the public schools under an autonomous board. That, he said, is "the traditional American system."

Popular Vote Urged

R. A. Gibson, president of the Voters' League, indorsed the basic principles of the Griffenhagen plan but urged that the council comprise 21 members and be elected by popular vote.

Luther R. Maddox, president of the Columbia Heights Citizens Association, said he believed the Griffenhagen plan sound but that it provided for too many municipal departments. The fire, police, and tarffic departments should be under a single head, he said.

Martin Chancy, of the District Communist Party, suggested that the departments of occupational standards and unemployment compensation be merged into a labor department and that a department of housing be established to handle slum clearance, zoning, and to include a rent commission.

Approval of the commission form of government, the board of library trustees, the board of education, and other present functions of the District government was voiced by Roscoe Jenkins, of the Northeast Washington Citizens Association.

Mrs. Allen Moore, of the District League of Women Voters, urged retention of the board of education and an increase in its powers.

Built for ACTION— PRICED the same way!

The model illustrated is the Buick SPECIAL *model 41 four-door touring sedan $996 delivered at Flint, Mich.

$894 AND UP
*delivered at Flint, Mich. Subject to change without notice. Transportation, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra.

FIRST time we saw the blueprints for this Buick thirty-niner we knew we had something pretty special for folks who like action in their travels.

It had eight eager cylinders in a mighty Dynaflash engine—and they could make a scared jack rabbit eat dust whenever the word was given!

It had a ride we promptly dubbed "full float"—its stout coiled springs are now 15% softer in the rear, you know, and hooked up, in front, with Knee-Action that banks curves for you.

It had a view, a gorgeous view, from windows and windshields as much as 412 square inches bigger—and it had style that has already altered the pattern on many another car-stylist's drawing board.

So we looked it all over—and went a step further. We decided a car so plainly meant for action needed to have a price that would get action for it!

Now it isn't easy to build such a traveler—rich in reliable Buick quality clear down to the metals it's made of—and still give it a price that rubs elbows with the sixes.

But look around, match up the price tags, and you'll find that this great straight-eight lists for less than some cars with two fewer cylinders!

It comes complete with equipment that's extra in many another instance—yet the figures still read lower than on Buick of a year ago.

And once in your garage, it keeps its thrifty habits—owners tell us its mileage-per-gallon is nothing short of eye-popping.

So when you see this Buick you not only see the car, but the one big value of the year; the man who misses it not only misses fun, but a lot of solid worth his dollars ought to buy.

That's why we're anxious to have you try Buick—it's a car with a winning way about it, and a winning price tag in the bargain!

ONLY BUICK HAS IT! This sure-fire direction signal that flashes warnings of turns at a flip of a switch! Shows day or night. Standard on all models!

Sales Tax Gets Fresh Support

Speaker Conlon Sees Levy Gaining Favor; Senate Quibbles on Relief; House Idles

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., March 22.—A sales tax—invariable bugaboo of Maryland legislatures—complicated the waning hours of the 1939 session today, with unexpected support from an administration leader and a prompt disclaimer from Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor.

While the Senate engaged in a half-hearted city-county battle over relief expenditures, the battle cry of "sales tax" reverberated through the House of Delegates, where Speaker Thomas Conlon had said earlier he believed such a levy could be passed.

"If the sentiment for it continues to develop the way it has the last few days, I shall go to the administration with a proposal that it be made a part of Gov. O'Conor's program," Conlon declared. "I am confident that it would pass the house right now with flying colors."

His flat prediction, given added importance since the House ways and means committee still is wrestling with the governor's vital $17,000,000 budget balancing revenue program, produced two immediate and significant developments.

Speaking for the administration, Gov. O'Conor asserted he was standing pat on the classified income tax which forms the backbone of his revenue program. Senate President Arthur Brice asserted a sales tax "can't get to first base" in the Senate.

Overwhelming Defeats

Each time a sales tax has been introduced in the Legislature, it has been beaten overwhelmingly.

Bill Asks Tail Lights For Md. Pedestrians

Annapolis, Md., March 22 (AP). Tail lights for pedestrians were proposed in the Maryland Legislature today.

C. S. Houck, jr. (Democrat), Frederick, introduced a measure which would make pedestrians walking on State roads after nightfall carry a light or reflector "clearly visible to drivers of approaching automobiles."

Another regulation proposed an extra fee of 50 cents for any persons requesting special license numbers for his car.

Plan Advanced To Curb Auto Finance Evils

Dealers Term License Measure Punitive At Md. Hearing

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., March 22.—Maryland's commissioner of loans today took to the Legislature his fight to regulate automobile finance companies and automobile dealers in an effort to end what he called "legalized racketeering."

Organized dealers pleaded it would "saddle" them with punitive regulations.

David W. Tilghman, jr., the loans commissioner, told the House ways and means committee that his proposal to license salesmen, dealers and finance companies would permit the State to stop sharp practices used to enforce time payment contracts.

John Raine, manager of the Automobile Trades Association of Baltimore led the opposition to the bill, and the Maryland representatives of serveral finance companies spoke before the committee.

"These practices complained of are used by only a minority of the automobile dealers and finance companies," said George Shaw, representative of a finance firm.

Two-Mile Section Of Md. Highway To Be Relocated

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hancock, Md., March 22.—A 2-mile section of the National highway, from the eastern edge of this town in the direction of Millstone, will be relocated, the new section to parallel the Western Maryland Railroad tracks, under plans announced by the State roads commission.

The program also calls for the erection of a new bridge, above the Potomac flood line, across Little Tonoloway Bridge, one of the three points between here and Hagerstown that the highway was blocked during the floods of 1936 and 1937 in the Potomac River Valley. The relocated highway will eliminate a number of sharp curves and grades.

The State roads commission expects to begin the purchase of rights of way for the relocated highway this spring.

Pastor Blames 'Spite' for Dog Poison Charge

Warden Seeks 'Revenge' For Recent 'Expose,' Says Va. Cleric

Buckingham, Va., March 22 (AP).—The Rev. Noel J. Allen, a 70-year-old Baptist preacher, whom a game warden has charged with poisoning a number of dogs, said today he believed the warrant against him was sworn out in "revenge" for his exposing" game conditions in Virginia which he termed "disgraceful."

The conditions, he said, were brought about through repeal of the State "bounty on vermin."

Sheriff J. R. Snoddy served papers on Allen last week after a warrant was issued by Fichmond Game Warden J. H. Hill charging that in 1938 the minister "did unlawfully poison a number of dogs assessed for taxation, with intent to kill and did kill them."

The swearing out of the warrant came after C. H. Agey, county game warden, investigated what some residents of Buckingham described as a wholesale poisoning of dogs.

Mr. Allen, who said he had not owned a dog for three years, has served rural pastorates about Manassas and Alexandria and was a chaplain overseas during the World War.

His 156 acres of land are surrounded with signs reading, "wildlife sanctuary. All are hereby warned to stay off and keep their prowling dogs off."

18 Patrol Planes To Arrive Today At Naval Academy

Annapolis, Md., March 22 (AP). Naval Academy officials said tonight 18 patrol bombers and 200 officers and men were expected to arrive from Norfolk tomorrow morning to start a two-months' training course for midshipmen.

The planes, three squadrons comprising Wing Patrol 5, were scheduled originally to arrive today. Naval Academy officials said only the patrol tender U. S. S. Owl came in today.

After the training course, the planes will rejoin the fleet for the return to the Pacific.

Mrs. Rowbotham Elected Head Of State D. A. R. Officers' Club

By the Associated Press.

Charlottesville, Va., March 22.—The Officers Club elected Mrs. Arthur Rowbotham, of Alta Vista, president at today's session of the forty-third annual State conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Other officers named were Mrs. Lloyd Bell, of Suffolk, vice president, and Mrs. M. B. Porter, of Richmond, treasurer. Mrs. Laird Conrad, of Harrisonburg, secretary, and Mrs. A. V. Shea, of Richmond, chaplain, will retain their offices.

State Forester F. C. Pederson told the conference the point had been reached where unchecked exploitation of forestry resources should be stopped and a program of conservation and long range planning adopted.

The delegates visited Monticello and Ash Lawn during the afternoon.

Miss Corrinne Lockett Hurt, of Roanoke, was named the ideal Virginia girl student. She was selected to attend the National Daughters of the American Revolution conference in Washington the week of April 19. Miss Anne Duane, of Stony Creek, and Miss Lillian D. Agnew, of Burneville, were named alternates.

Jay Winston Johns, president of the Monroe Birthplace Monument Association, today asked the D. A. R. to sponsor a movement to raise $20,000 toward the purchase of land surrounding the birthplace of James Monroe, near Fredericksburg. The State, he said, has already conditionally appropriated $10,000 toward the purchase of some 20 acres, but additional funds would be needed. The suggestion was referred to the resolutions committee.

3 Bricks Mailed To Help Build Alumni Center

Richmond, Va., March 22 (AP).—The University of Richmond Alumni Council appealed for figurative "bricks" at $3 apiece for a proposed $100,000 student center building.

A lot of checks arrived—and three real bricks.

"Please, for sentimental reasons, let this be the cornerstone," asked one alumnus, who sent his "honest-to-goodness" brick by first-class mail.

The other two real bricks were mailed by students who said they were a little short on cash.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Leopold Stokowski conducts the Philadelphia Orchestra in Constitution Hall Tuesday night. Program: Toccata and Fugue in D minor (Bach), Variations on a Theme of Haydn (Brahms), "Feuerzauber" (Wagner), Symphony No. 5, Op. 47 (Shostakovich).

Leopold Stokowski's sole appearance in Washington this season as conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra was the occasion for rejoicing in Constitution Hall last evening, when a large and clamorous audience welcomed him and recalled him so insistently at the close of the concert that he made a brief speech of acknowledgment and added an extra number to the program. The Philadelphians, as well as their distinguished leader, had cause to consider their last visit of the season to the National Capital a notable one.

The triumphant concert was not without a few flaws in the auspices. For one thing, the drone of the ventilating motor became so audible as to disturb Stokowski before he began the Brahms variations, and he dispatched the second violoncellist back stage with a message for silence. Then a troublesome draft, which swept across the stage with sufficient force to flip over music pages on the stands of the first violins, had to be attended to before the "Feuerzauber" started. After that, nothing outward occurred.

Stokowski placed first on his program his own transcription of Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D minor, one of the most massive and dramatic works for organ. This version for orchestra is now 13 years old, and has become very well known for its brilliant scoring. In fact, its scintillance and its kaleidoscopic coloring transform the Gothic lines of the composition into a pleasure dome of Kubla Khan, dazzling with a more than Oriental splendor. To adapt a familiar adage: it is magnificent but it is not Bach.

This architectural marvel was followed by the delightful set of variations which Brahms wove about the "Chorale St. Antoni" that he borrowed from a divertimento by Haydn. At the bequest of Stokowski's eloquent hands, the orchestra displayed the ingenious embroideries with an impeccable skill in phrasing and an admirable facility in dynamic nuances. The performance was continuously flexible and supple in movement.

Stokowski's predisposition for arrangements again came to the fore in his version of the "Feuerzauber" from "Die Walkuere," which starts with Bruennhilde's lines, "Auf dein Gebot entbrenne ein Feuer," and continues to the close of the act, with the vocal parts assigned to instruments. The score is richly rewarding in its symphonic dress and preferable to a stage performance of the scene when the singers were inadequate for their heroic task.

The latter half of the program was devoted to the first performance here of Dmitri Shostakovich's fifth symphony which dates from 1937 and is reputed to have been written in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the U. S. S. R. Be that as it may, there are certainly no obvious political implications in the music, which is stamped not with social propaganda but with the individuality of the composer. If there are any communistic doctrines lurking in the score, they are not to be detected by the most observant listener.

Since his first symphony, which was his Opus 10, Shostakovich has made definite advance in his mastery of orchestral technique. His defiant, almost impudent, disregard for convention has been gradually modified into a comparative compliance with the rules of the game. Beginning with a refusal to have anything to do with "development" of themes in the classical sense, he has by this time realized the importance of that intellectual process.

In the fifth symphony he calls his development section in the first movement "melodic exfoliation," which is nothing more than a new name for an old procedure. The second movement is in "the historical scherzo form" and the last movement is admitted to be "in rondo form." These concessions to tradition are indications of a sound growth in musical stature. In the third movement there are unmistakable evidences of a return to the romantic style, which was, after all, a vitally significant phase of musical history.

Va. Board Orders All of Its Employes Who Hold Party Posts To Quit Immediately

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 22.—The Virginia alcoholic beverage control board called today upon all of its employes who have been named to any office or committee of any political or semipolitical organization since April 19, 1938, to give up those offices immediately.

Re-emphasizing an order entered on that date prohibiting any employe from occupying such office, the board asked employes who have accepted official positions in political organizations to forward copies of their resignations from those positions, with letters of acceptance, to the board.

The question of political activity on the part of A. B. C. employes was raised anew with a visit from Col. Robert T. Barton, chairman of the city Democratic committee, which includes four board employes.

Chairman Hunter Miller of the A. B. C. board said that these, elected before the original order was issued, may serve out their terms but may not stand for re-election and may not serve even if elected.

Miller said it was not the intention of the board to prevent all political activity of an employe while he is off duty, but declared the highest office an employe might hold in any political or semipolitical group was that "of private in the front rank."

Rum Profit Since '34 Put at $26,971,098

Richmond, Va., March 22 (AP). The Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board completed its fifth year of operation today with the board's books showing a profit of more than $26,971,098 during that period.

Total revenue of the system for the five years amounted to approximately $75,806,776. The estimated value of beer sales was $67,748,516. A beer tax, collected by the tax department, had brought in, through February, a total of $6,292,580.

One of His Recent Patents Is a Gate-Closer, And He's Secretly Devising Something Even More Useful; Resident Here for 59 Years

(This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are.—Editor's note.)

By Gerald G. Gross.

If he were shipwrecked on a barren, unhabited island, the chances are that within a fortnight John A. Noel would be living in a handsome bungalow with all modern improvements, he is still that handy with carpenter's tools.

Neighbors actually believe he was born with a Meccano set in his hands and cut his teeth on a monkey wrench, so expert a mechanic is Mr. Noel, who'll be 90 years old on May 12. He is not only a craftsman but also an inventor. One of his recent patents is a gate-closer and he is now working on another invention which he thinks will be even more useful.

"But I won't tell you what it is—yet," he says with a smile, meaning that it's still a deep, dark, professional secret.

There is scarcely a wooden object in his large house at 256 Eighth street southeast that he didn't make or has not repaired. The living room is decorated with many ferns, all of which rest on stands fashioned by his deft hands. The telephone table is his work, also a fancy chair and miscellaneous other items. Recently he repaired the living room flooring when it showed signs of sinking slightly.

A resident of Washington for 59 years, never living outside the southeast or northeast sections, Mr. Noel even drew the preliminary plans for the house in which he and his daughter, Miss Capitola Noel, make their home. The basement is his workshop. It is equipped with circular saw, vises, hammers, tool drawers and every other essential.

"Right now," says Mr. Noel, "I'm learning to type."

He takes you over to a table—he made it himself, of course—lifts a metal cover and there stands revealed a typewriter which he bought 40 years ago but never learned to operate. Though comically outmoded, it is still in excellent working condition.

"Guess I never had time, up to now, to learn how to run it," says Mr. Noel. "But I'm giving myself lessons now."

Born in Cincinnati, he came here in 1880 to take a job in the Government Printing Office. When he retired in 1919 he was head pressman on the money order press. His wife died 35 years ago.

His prowess as a woodworker dates from his retirement at the age of 70. Before that he did not have time to take his hobby seriously. He is up by 8 of a morning and in bed by 9 at night and between those hours he is on the go almost constantly.

"Give me my pipe and a piece of wood and I'm happy," he says.

Insane Fugitive Loses 'Hide-Seek' Game on Ferry

Annapolis, Md., March 22 (AP).—Two Dorchester County sheriff's deputies were unwilling participants in a game of hide and seek today, but "won," when they found their prisoner under the bed in the cabin of a ferry boat.

The deputies, Alton Andrews and Walso Robinson, were taking the prisoner, identified as Jerry Dobson, from Dorchester County to the Springfield Hospital for the Insane.

Shortly before the Matapeake ferry docked here, they discovered their prisoner was missing. Then began a systematic search of the vessel, and the officers at last found Dobson under a bed in a cabin. He told them he "just wanted to play hide and seek" and had skipped nimbly from one cabin to another ahead of them.

April Bride

Formal Town Wedding

In Clover

Your primrose path will turn into beds of clover if you flourish forth in a jacket-dress like the one above. It includes a sheer woolen shirtwaist frock in the new and delicious clover shade, jacked up with a mulberry topper, appliqued in clover tones.

Constant Companion

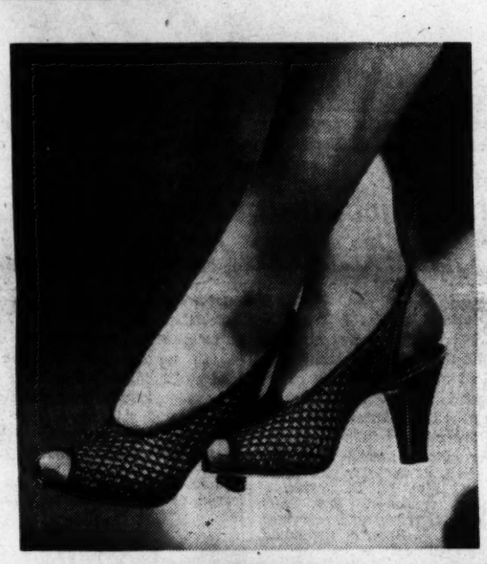
You'll find this reefer almost as constant and compatible a companion as your brand-new husband. It is one of those dashing, though quiet, young coats that you hate to take off for even a minute. Its smart pockets slit into the high-wide-and-handsome buttons.

Oh, Promise Me

that you'll stay as sweet as you are. At least that is what any ardent young husband might beseech if his young bride looked as serene as the one above. She wears the traditional white satin basque-fitted gown, high-necked and yoked in cobwebby lace. Correct for mainaislers at St. John's or the Cathedral.

Mesh Embroidery

Watch this style! It is fated to be a great success because of its feathery lightness to the foot and because it will walk through spring and summer with equal fashion rightness. The young bride will find it an indispensable daytime slipper in blue, black or wine embroidered mesh.



Fur Armed

is forearmed this spring. The tremendously popular silver fox capes of last year have been replaced by brief capeboleros. The broad shouldered, collarless jacket, above, scarcely reaches the waist. A gift of spring furs of this type would fortify the most timid bride for ardous social obligations.

Course Mapped Out

A gift for the cosmopolite or the bride who dashes off to the World's Fair or even the Golden Gate Exhibition, as though it were the corner movie. The compact and matching cigarette case, above, mapped out by routes to World's Fair grounds and high spots of interest.

Something New

If you want to present one of your many favorite brides this season with "something new," yet something new that doesn't dint your pocketbook, look twice at the initials on the bag, above. They are rose-tinted and will please the bridegroom, too, at his first sight of her name being changed to his.

Something Blue

If you're going strictly by tradition, you'll want something blue in your trousseau. If it's one of your favorite colors, wear lots of it in your dinner gown. The one at left is in Alice blue sheer chiffon, the matching bolero outlined in fragile French blue floral appliques. This is a perfect matron of honor gown as well.

BRIDES WHO YEARN FOR THE TRADITIONAL HERALDRY OF A WEDDING IN town with all the trimmings may be interested in the fashion selections on this page. Country House Wedding

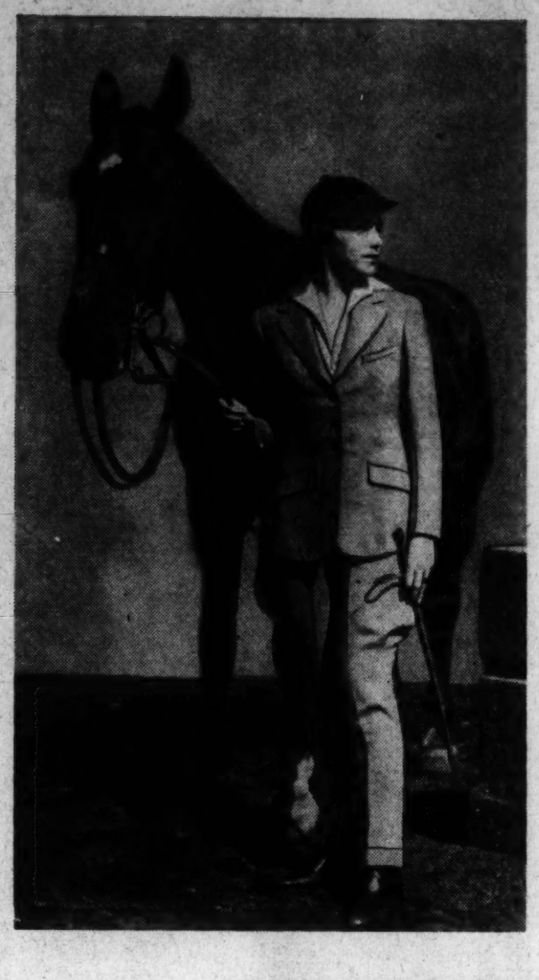
The Bride Wore White

Few backgrounds enhance the charm of the faintly blushing bride as does that of the country house with its decor of pastel-gowned bridesmaids and flower-filled rooms. This bride, above, wears snowy net, yards of it, with great melon sleeves. Appliques of tulle ruching form the trimming for both skirt and neckline.



Good Sportsmanship

The active sportswoman, whether newly wed or bachelor girl, will favor the simplicity of the deftly-tailored golf frock, above. An easy-going turned-down collar and action-gored woolen skirt are silent helpers in good scoring, too.

Country Life

After toasts and congratulations of her wedding day have subsided, the young bride will be secretly pleased to play a less conspicuous role of mistress of her new suburban home. Her every-day tweeds, above, are crossbarred in soft yellow and brown. The skirt is pleated and then stitched flatly around the hips for action—plus flattery.

Morning Canter

The "horsey set" of any country community would welcome the new bride who is clever enough to get herself up each morning in riding togs as chic as those above. Finely checked cashmere makes her coat and whip-o-twill, the jodphur pants.

Vitamins Plus

At last there's a way of eating your vitamins and wearing them, too. The witty designer, Charlotte, of Paris, has strung gay plastic vegetables on leather loops to make the fetching necklace, pin and bracelet, at right.

Country Idyl

Anne Rutherford, film actress, wears the crisp white toyo, hand-stitched and trimmed in navy, above. Her natural charm gives added attraction to this casual topper, but almost any bright young Washingtonian, bride or otherwise, would find this gay young hat inviting.

Quaint as a Picture

PRETTY AND QUAINT AS A PICTURE are the bridal fashions shown here. They are definitely not for the sleek and lean type. They are destined for the girl whose every thought since childhood has been on a romantic wedding, on hearts and flowers and on long dreamy honeymoons. Niagara would look like the Victoria Falls to this girl, for she is an incurable romanticist at heart. She would revel in the fanciful bridal notions selected on this page. All of these styles are obtainable in local shops. Information may be obtained by calling Marshall Adams, The Post Fashion Editor, NAtional 4200, between 10 and 6 o'clock.

Story Book Bride

Every bit as quaint as a character from a Bronte novel, as melting as a maron glace, as fragile as old lace in the bridal gown, above. It looks like Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" heroine and Scarlett O'Hara rolled together. You couldn't imagine such a gown, minus the prayer book and long gloves. The lavishly ruffled and trained skirt ends in a high-necked bodice, all primness and chastity.

Going-Away Costume

The bride who boards a yacht the moment she slips out of her quaint little bridal frock will like the corresponding femininity of the going-away bolero suit, above. It is lightweight woolen with a Beau Brummell blouse and a wonderful white pique sailor, which Sally Victor, the designer, trimmed with a snood of black net.

Picturesque Beauty

As picturesque as any of the beauties of your family album is the bridesmaid's gown, above. Its billowing skirt and infinitesimal bodice are done in pastel organza, topped by a bolero of matching grosgrain, and that topped off by a chaplet of posies. Good, too, for the quaint little bride who tries marriage the second time and can't wear white.

School Days

The bride may put away all her childish days when she girds herself in matrimony, but fashion whims just won't let her grow up. Above is a sentimental schoolgirl blouse of finely tucked polka dotted silk.

Hand-y Victorian Compact

Something old, yet new and very fanciful is the compact, above. It was designed by Volupte after a quaint little Victorian powder box. The decor is raised enamel, very new, although it resembles antique porcelain. Tiny hands are embossed on this compact holding clusters of posies.

Careful Planning In Menus Urged In Reducing

DIETING can be a very risky business. Unless you follow scientifically-planned menus you are in danger of developing a vitamin and mineral deficiency, and no diet should ever, for this reason be cut below 1,000 calories. It takes that many calories to include the essential food elements.

You can better appreciate the necessity for these elements in the diet when you understand what happens without them. As long as your diet is adequate in every respect except in calories, there is no danger to your health for you have a store of calories in the form of fat upon which to draw.

There is no such reserve store of minerals, vitamins or protein. Just suppose that your diet is deficient in calcium—as it would be if you failed to include eggs, milk or cheese in the reducing menus. If you do not provide the calcium needed, your body will not co-operate with you. For one thing, health of your teeth is affected by a low calcium diet.

Iron Also Essential

Sufficient iron is also essential even though you are reducing. A deficiency of this material will lower the body's vigor and will cause you to feel tired most of the time. At best our diet is apt to be low in iron and the supply is further diminished in an unscientific reducing diet—or even in the diet of the overweight who carelessly consumes large quantities of sugars and fails to eat sufficient amounts of the green leafy vegetables and protein. Your richest sources of iron are eggs, vegetables and meats.

Protein is—as I have repeatedly told you, the very backbone of a reducing diet. You must have the complete protein foods—lean meat, eggs, milk and cheese. Although varying amounts of protein are supplied in other foods, such as breads, cereals and certain vegetables, the complete proteins must be included in the diet. This food element is utilized for the repair work of the body. All body tisues undergo constant wear and tear and as they are worn out they must be repaired. That is where protein comes in. Unless adequate protein is supplied by the diet, it is formed through the breaking down of muscular tissue.

Vitamins Necessary

The protective vitamins are necessary to high resistance and optimum health and they cannot be left out of the daily menus. The foods that supply them are fresh fruits, fruit juices, vegetables, milk, butter, whole grains.

By now you probably realize that your caloric cut must be only in the starches, sugars and fats. Fat, by the way, is the food you need least, and it is also the highest in calories. A considerable caloric cut can be made in this element.

By following menus that supply all the protective elements, your weight reduction will not affect your health—except to the improvement of it

Improve Your Conversation

POOR TONGUE-tied Sue! How she wishes she could say something really fascinating to Jack. Maybe then he wouldn't look so longingly at Babs and the others across the aisle.

Babs used to be out of it, too, till she discovered that just as a girl must learn to dance or play tennis, she must teach herself the art of conversation.

How? By finding out what warm, vital conversation is, by knowing the rules that bring friends, good times—rules like these:

BE RESPONSIVE. When a boy says, "How did you like the movie last night?"—your "all right" lets the talk fall with a thud. But you keep it dancing airily when you answer, "It was fun. I suppose I'm dreadfully romantic, but I love Westerns, don't you?"

BE INTERESTING. Before you leave for a date or party, think up subjects for talk—books you've read, radio programs you've heard. And if you learn to look at things with fresh eyes, you can make even a bus ride seem exciting.

BE TACTFUL. Instead of hurting a friend with "I'm so sorry you failed in math," please him by mentioning his successes. Say, "I heard your English composition was a whiz."

BE CORRECT. Poor English may antagonize people you'd like to know. Instead of "Bill and me are going," say "Bill and I."

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Improving Your Conversation," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Eighteenth street, New York City. Write plainly your name, address and the name of the booklet.

Artist's Family Group Suggested as Home Picture

This painting by George DeForest Brush of his own family is suggested by Elizabeth MacRae Boykin, in her series, "Art in the Home," as an ideal household picture.

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

Seldom celebrated in these days of extremes in art, but nevertheless an American painter of great distinction is George DeForest Brush. His pictures may be seen in the Metropolitan Museum, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Pennsylvania Academy and in the Corcoran Art Gallery in Washington. Born in Shelbyville, Ky., in 1855, he went to Paris, where he studied with Gerome, then a leading figure in art circles of the French capital. Brush won his first fame in this country with American Indian paintings, but he will probably live as an artist for his appealing pictures of his wife and children. They are wistful family groups, not idealized and yet with a haunting spiritual beauty for all their fine draftsmanship and care of detail

The Gentler Sex

The Siren

"John, I wish you would tell me something frankly."

"What is it?"

"Well, just WHAT do all the men see in that Mrs. Sparkey?"

"Now look here, if you're trying to insinuate that I've done anything—"

"No, no, now don't get excited. I'm just interested as—well, as a matter of scientific research. Just what is there about her that panics the men?"

"Say now, I've never talked over 5 minutes to the woman in all my life. If anybody says—"

"Now just a minute. I didn't say you had. But you must admit that the men are crazy about her."

"Well—I guess a lot of 'em do fall for her."

"All right then. What I want to know is—why?"

"Oh—I don't know. Of course she's a pretty good looking woman."

"Oh, I'll grant she's good enough looking—in a cheap sort of way. But there are lots of women better looking."

"You may be right about that."

"Well, what I'm trying to get at is a scientific analysis of this thing—from a man's viewpoint. I wish you'd explain it to me."

"We—ll, I don't know. I guess it's just . . . it's just . . . well from the minute she shakes hands with you—"

"Oh! So she shakes hands!"

"Why shouldn't she shake hands? Is there anything wrong in that?"

"Of course not. Does she shake hands with both hands?"

"Now say, I want you to understand I didn't—"

"Oh, nobody said you did! Please go on. What happens after you shake hands?"

"Why nothing. You just go on talking."

"Who goes on talking?"

"You do—of course, she does too."

"What does she talk about?"

"Oh—I don't know. Nothing in particular. I can't remember."

"Then it's not her conversation?"

"Oh no, no!"

"Well, what is it then? I wish you'd explain it."

"Well, I don't know. I guess maybe it's her personality."

"What do you mean, personality?"

"Well, I tell you—I guess it's this. You sort of feel, well now here's a woman who's really different—"

"Oh! Different! Ha! Ha! Ha!"

"What's funny about that? I tell you I didn't—"

"I know you didn't. Go on. How does she make you feel that she's different?"

"It's a hard thing to explain. I guess she just makes you feel that . . . that . . ."

"That you're the only man in the world?"

"No, not exactly that. Of course you feel that she's—well, interested in you."

"Does she say so?"

"Oh no, no. You just know it. What I mean is she makes you feel that she's interested in you personally."

"Oh I SEE!"

"Say, now, it's no use to get mad. You started this thing—"

"I'm not mad. What on earth would I get mad about? How else does she make you feel?"

"Well, I guess maybe you get the idea that she sort of feels that you—"

"Are interested in her personally?"

"Now I didn't say that."

"It was what you meant?"

"Now if you're trying to make anything out of this—"

"Not at all. I'm perfectly dispassionate about the whole thing. I'm merely trying to get some pointers in technique."

"What do you mean, technique? You couldn't be like that."

"Why couldn't I?"

"You're not the type for one thing and then besides—"

"Besides what?"

"Oh, I don't know. Anyway it's not anything she actually does."

"You mean it's what she thinks?"

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"You wouldn't! Say, before you sit down and take off your shoes, I wish you'd look at that kitchen faucet."

Odd-Shaped Purse

Mary Haworth's Mail

Prolonged Unemployment Changes Model Husband Into Untrustworthy Churl; Wife Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married for 15 months to a man whom I love very dearly, and I have believed, until recently, that he was equally as much in love with me. My husband has been unemployed for 13 months out of the 15 months we have been married. He has, seemingly, put forth strenuous effort to find a position of some sort, but all efforts to date have proved fruitless. During the period of his employment I have tried to keep our little home together on my earnings of $90 a month. It has not been an easy matter, taking care of two jobs at once—but yet there has been a measure of happiness, in spite of the constant struggle.

Now I come to what I consider my main problem. Until recently, I had found my husband to be very affectionate, trustworthy, kind, thoughtful and considerate. But now he is just the reverse of all these things. He seems to have abandoned all efforts to find work. Instead, he spends the mornings sleeping and a portion of the afternoons reading the paper. The few hours that are left of the day he spends looking for work—I suppose.

He has proven undependable in managing money that I have turned over to him to pay certain bills. If he would sit down and explain to me why he does these things I would feel that he is at least trying to help. But if I ask for an explanation he dons his hat and coat and leaves the apartment for hours and hours. Where he spends this time I haven't the slightest idea.

I am beginning to feel imposed upon. I feel that something should be done before other complications set in. By that, I mean starting a family. Not that I dislike children. Far from it. I feel that a home is incomplete without children, but as things are now, a child would be the greatest sufferer. I have thought of taking separate quarters, or of seeking a divorce—although I disapprove of divorce except as a last resort. I am obsessed with concern over the whole problem. I am cross most of the time, which adds to the general tension. Please answer soon. WORRIED.

Intolerable Situation

DEAR WORRIED—One would need to know much more about the case history of your courtship and marriage than is told here before one could say, with any degree of certitude, just which of you is most to blame for the present unhappy situation. If your husband lost a position, shortly after marriage, through no provable fault of his own and has been unable to find employment since—again through no demonstrable inefficiency—that is not necessarily to his discredit. Uncounted thousands of essentially upright men have met with comparably cruel and undeserved frustration during the past 10 years.

It may not be entirely his fault that, having failed to connect with a job, his morale is beginning to show unmistakeable signs of cracking under the strain of enforced idleness and humiliating dependence. It is perfectly possible, you know, that you may have been a witless, an unintentional, contributor to his gradual demoralization, through prodding him with more pointed persistence than inspiriting tact.

If a man's initiative and faith in himself—his will and ability to do, in other words—are to survive the ghastly ordeal of a prolonged and heartbreakingly disappointing search for needed work, he must be sustained by praise and encouragement from those nearest him, and particularly from those who supply his daily bread. It does no good—indeed, it does almost irreparable harm to his personality and performance—to condemn or reproach him for his predicament; to nag or to criticise; to display annoyance or contempt. Confronted by such attitudes, it is rather to be expected that he would finally relinquish the unequal struggle and sink into apathetic despair—characterized by loss of ambition and self-respect, by sullen defiance and baffling furtiveness.

I cannot say—for, obviously, I do not know—whether you have been guilty of such negative attitudes during the run of this socio-economic tragedy. But if you have been, you may adjudge yourself partially responsible for your husband's distressing metamorphosis; and you could not, therefore, expect a different or better performance from him until you had first revised your own conduct.

One realizes, of course, that yours has been an almost unbearable trial. Supposing her husband were one of the noblest, most indestructible optimistic, co-operative and responsible-minded men in the world, a young wife would have almost insuperable difficulty in keeping a light heart, a merry tongue and a brave face while making both ends meet on an income of $90 a month in a modern metropolis at prevailing prices. If it should be that your husband has failed your trust, exploited your willingness, wilfully wasted your money, defied your wishes, added to your load through failing to share the household duties, and generally descended to the role of no-account loafer and sponger for no known reason, and without wifely provocation—then you should, by all means, take steps to be relieved of the burden of his support.

As a matter of fact, considering the nature of the current crisis—with your husband's attitude what it is, and your nerves in the state they are in—it might be just as well to separate. Once he is thrown on his own, he may pull himself together almost immediately and find that long-talked-of job. Guaranteed food and shelter, he may be falling just short of the necessary heroic effort to clinch the deal. But when it becomes a choice between work and the bread-line, he may discover the incentive to make the grade. More importantly, separation may give both of you needed opportunity for taking stock of yourselves, your love, your marriage—to the end that you may decide to start all over again, on a better substantiated, more co-operative and more tenable basis. M. H.

RAISIN BRAN GEMLETS

Mix together 2 cups of flour, 1 cup of bran, 2 teaspoons of soda, 1-3 cup of dark brown sugar, ½ cup of chopped raisins, ½ teaspoon of salt, 2 egg yolks and 1 1-3 cups of buttermilk. Mix just enough to blend the ingredients. Fold in 2 tablespoons of melted fat and 2 egg whites, well beaten. Half fill greased muffin tins and bake for 15 minutes in a moderate oven.

Broader Brim Premier Change In Men's Hats

The acid test for the man who wants to look his best is to make sure his new hat is becoming . . . that the shape of the brim and height of the crown suit his particular physiogomy. And 1939's new spring hat styles are most becoming to most men. The brims are slightly wider. The taller and huskier the fellow, the wider the brim he can carry. In New York some of the brims go over the 2¾ mark—but not so for the conservative well-dressed man. The fashion for wider brims is spreading out gradually from New York. Classic model for spring is the snap-brim, kicked-up in back. The college boys favor only a very slight kick-up in back. Crowns are tapered very slightly and give the impression of being lower than in previous seasons—possibly because of the wider brims.

As for colors, the dusty shades are in great favor . . . dusty greens, dusty tans, dusty grays and blues. Most men go for these tones because they make hats look slightly worn—in any event, not brand new.

The color in particular favor this spring is dusty green—on the order of a light olive shade—with darker green band. This shade looks especially well with the natural covert topcoats and suits. Medium dark gray is still favored by conservative men, but throughout the country more extreme shades and styles are in demand.

'Aunt' Mae West Looks for World's Fair Play Brenda Frazier Toys With Movie Offers

New York, March 22.

ONE OF my favorite people is that simple-hearted little Brooklyn blonde, Aunt Mae West, the fatal woman of the stage and screen—and then unjustified terror of the censors here and there. Auntie is in town just now, playing a week at a theater in her native borough—"Old home week for me," she says. And, of course, I have done myself the honor of calling upon the undulating one at her very swanky Fifth avenue hotel.

Mae received in a mustard yellow hostess gown of cashmere. She looked mightly well, and she discoursed long in her native Brooklynese, which, of course, is the tongue she has always used in her plays and films. Americans who have considered La West's language strictly her own are in grievous error. It is merely the speech-way employed at the far end of the East River bridges, spoken with a provocative drawl, for Aunt Mae is still the same little "Greenpernt" babe.

As usual, she is explosive with entertainment ideas for the future. "They're looking for a play for me to do on Broadway during the Fair," she tells me, "but it's gotta be the right kind. My name will pull 'em in, but once they're in, I gotta entertain 'em."

How right you are, Mae. But most of her current dreams and plans and hopes are clustered about her next picture, which is to be a Westian version of a period in the life of Catherine the Great of Russia, no less. Aunt Mae is fascinated by the character of the German princess who sat on the Russian throne, brushed off man after man, and ruled that wilderness in a big way. What does she care if Elizabeth Bergner and Marlene Dietrich have already shown the lady on the screen? Mae West hasn't—but will, by gum! "I'll play her on a high plane, with no hip swinging," she assures me.

And our annual Flower Show, has just finished its course. Most of the exhibitiors are such swells as Neighbor J. P. Morgan and the Payne Whitneys and the Marshall Fields. But we, the people, can look and smell, which is all we crave. And, of course, the "Brenda Orchid," named for that obscure Frazier debutante, won a first in its class. It's white. That Frazier kid still steals the headlines, like "Brenda Toys With Half-Million Film Offer." Why doesn't she just kick it way?

Swiss Envoy's Wife Holds an 'At Home'

Lady Marler Also Hostess at Tea, As Is Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner; Many Notables Are at Mme. Peter's

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

ONE OF THE CAPITAL'S most popular hostesses, Mme. Marc Peter, was at home yesterday afternoon to a few friends who called at the Swiss Legation on Kalorama road between 4 and 6 o'clock. Since she has lived in Washington almost long enough to be classed as a cave-dweller, the wife of the Swiss Minister numbers among her acquaintances almost as many residentials as diplomats. A number from both circles, as well as several from the official set, were among her guests yesterday.

Her party was only one of a number of intimate get-togethers enlivening yesterday's social calendar. Lady Marler, wife of the Canadian Minister, also had a few friends in for the tea hour, and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner entertained at one in a series of "at homes" she is giving this season.

But back to Mme. Peter's reception, which was distinguished by both pleasant company and delicious refreshments. Alternating at the tea table—serving either chocolate or tea, as you preferred—were Mme. Constantin Fotitch, whose trim beige frock was set off with a brown, veiled hat; Mrs. Millard Tydings, who had on one of the snappiest hats I've seen this season, a small sailor-effect black straw with a red bird on the front and a matching veil; Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck and Miss Vera Bloom.

The tea table was centered with a bouquet of red and white carnations, flanked by tall white tapers in silver holders. Low bowls of tulips and roses decorated the drawing room, where Mme. Peter received informally. She wore a frock of black crepe, trimmed in pale blue velvet that edged the neckline.

Several Notables Among the Guests

Among the guests I saw there were Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, whose brown ensemble was set off with a pale pink hat—most becoming; Mme. Irimescu, wife of the Rumanian Minister; Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, who was accompanied by her pretty daughter, Mrs. A. R. Lawton, of Savannah, Ga.; Mrs. Charles M. Lea, the Misses Mary, Josephine and Helen Patten; Signor Coppola, of the Italian Embassy; the Misses Ida and Paulette Guffey, Mme. Kleijn Molekamp, Mrs. Rives Childs, Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, and several others.

In contrast to most diplomatic hostesses who entertain once or twice a yea rat a crush that passes for a reception, Mme. Peter prefers to give a series of smaller teas, such as the one yesterday; and from what I can hear, nobody invited to her parties ever misses one. They're that much of a treat.

A Genius at Making Friends

If I were a member of the Diplomatic Corps I'd take a number of leaves from Mme. Peter's book. She's a genius at making friends; has been here almost two decades and if she has any enemies nobody knows who they are . . . She takes neither herself nor her position too seriously, yet does everything that's expected of her at exactly the right time, in the right way; has a delightful sense of humor that twinkles in her bright blue eyes; is always so well dressed you're likely not to notice what she's wearing; is extremely discriminating about music and art, as well as people; and, undoubtedly, would come off the winner in any contest for Washington's most popular diplomatic hostess.

Expects Visitors This Week-End

Right now Mme. Peter's chief interest at present is the forthcoming visit of her grandson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Georges Peter, who with his parents is expected to arrive in Washington this week-end.

Meanwhile, the Minister of Switzerland, Mr. Peter, will be in New York for a brief visit. He will leave tomorrow to attend the ceremony in connection with the raising of the flag in the Swiss pavilion of the World's Fair on Saturday. He is expected to return to Washington either Saturday evening or Sunday.

Blanca Noel To Wed in June

Miss Blanca Noel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Noel, of New Yor, has selected the last week in June for her wedding to Robert Taft, jr., son of Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft, of Cincinnati and Washington.

Mr. Taft is a grandson of Mrs. William Howard Taft, of Washington, and the late President Taft. He is a graduate of the Taft School and is now a senior at Yale. The wedding will follow his graduation in June.

Miss Noel attended the Bradley School here, the Ethel Walker School at Simsbury, Conn., and Bryn Mawr College. Mr. Taft will visit Washington this week-end to spend a few days with his parents.

Senator Tydings Gives a Dinner For the Bryans

Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings gave a dinner last evening for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryan, of Harford County, Md., who are in Washington for a brief stay. The Bryans' estate, Mount Pleasant, one of the prettiest in Maryland, is near Oakington, the country home of Senator and Mrs. Tydings. Mrs. Bryan is widely known as Susan Merriwether, the writer.

The Minister of Hungary, John Pelenyi, was ranking guest at the dinner. Mme. Pelenyi, suffering from a cold, could not attend.

Mme. Koo Is Guest Of Mrs. Goodwin

Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese minister to France, who is visiting in Washington for a few dyas and is staying at the Chinese Embassy, was a luncheon guest of Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin yesterday in the Senate dining room. Also in the company was Lady Bradford Leslie.

This evening, Mme. Koo will be feted at a dinner at the Mayflower at which the Chinese Military Attache, Col. Teh-Chuan Kuo, will be host.

Bilmanises toHonor Mr. and Mrs. Wiley

The Latvian Minister and Mrs. Alfred Bilmanis will entertain at dinner Monday in honor of the United States Minister to Latvia and Mrs. John C. Wiley.

This evening, the Wileys will be feted at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse at their home in Georgetown.

Three of Capital's Young Equestriennes

Harris & Swinz.

Any day in the week these three young ladies may be glimpsed charging along local bridle paths. Above is Miss Agnes Evans, daughter of Mrs. Charles L. Mullins, jr. Miss Evans' favorite steed is a dashing mount with the intriguing name of Beauty. And when not indulging in her favorite sport, Miss Evans attends classes at George Washington University where she is a junior

Miss Sessions, D.C. Man to Wed

Mrs. Alonzo Bangs Sessions, of Sioux Falls, S. Dak., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Fannie Ellen Sessions, to Sherman F. Mittell, of Washington. The bride-elect's father was the late Col. Sessions.

Mr. Mittell is the son of Abraham Mittell, of Boston, and the late Mrs. Mittell.

The marriage will take place here next Wednesday in the presence of a few close friends and relatives, and the couple will leave immediately afterward for a Southern wedding trip. They will make their home here, where Mr. Mittell has lived for the past nine years. He is president and editor of the National Home Library Foundation.

Miss Sessions, who is the guest of her aunt, Miss Emily Morrison, attended the University of Minnesota. Her fiance finished at the Boston Latin School and attended Harvard.

Among parties to be given for Miss Sessions and Mr. Kittell in the next few days will be a reception at which Lowell Mellett will entertain on Sunday afternoon in his Virginia home.

Birdzells Hosts To J. F. T. O'Connor At Dinenr Here

Judge and Mrs. L. E. Birdzell entertained at dinner in the Blue Room at the Shoreham last evening in compliment to J. F. T. O'Connor, of Los Angeles, former Comptroller of the Currency. Mr. O'Connor is staying for a few days at the Shoreham, where he formerly lived. Judge Birdzell is general counsel of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Nancy Jones Becomes Wife

Holton-Arms School classmates of Miss Nancy Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Theodore Jones, of Great Neck, L. I., were interested to hear of her marriage to Alfred E. Fountain, 3d, son of Mrs. Alfred E. Fountain, jr., and the late Mr. Fountain, of Bayside, Queens, and Shelter Island, N. Y.

The ceremony took place on Tuesday evening at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Great Neck. The Rev. Lynde E. May officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a slipper satin gown and a tulle veil and carried a muff of gardenias.

Mrs. Harrison Cochran Bettes was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were the Misses Ethel Blanche Whitman and Marjorie Jenkins Baker. Robert Fountain was best man for his brother, and Mr. Bettes, Bertram Dale Scott, Theodore Lewis Samek and Charles Dwyer were ushers.

A reception was held at the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club in Port Washington, L. I., after the ceremony. After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Kew Gardens, Queens.

Miss Harris Honors Mrs. Popejoy

Miss Aileen H. Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Harris, gave a luncheon and bridge party yesterday at the Congressional Country Club in honor of Mrs. Thomas Popejoy, who with Mr. Popejoy recently moved here from Albuquerque, N. Mex.

Other guests were Mrs. Charles W. Holmes, Mrs. Rudolph Harrell, Mrs. William B. Willard, Mrs. Oscar Prevost, Mrs. William W. Everett, jr., Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips and Miss Ramona Vincent.

MISS ELEANOR COLLBRAN

Miss Eleanor Louise Collbran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Collbran, of Los Angeles, has chosen April 22 as the date for her marriage to Philip Field Herrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Herrick, of this city.

The ceremony will take place at 4:30 in the afternoon at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Beverly Hill, Calif. Mrs. John Williams Stack and Mrs. Theodore Kershaw will be matrons of honor.

Samuel Herrick, jr., will be best man for his brother and the ushers will be William H. Courtney, John Wheeler (son of Senator Wheeler), Stuart Collbran, brother of the bride, and Theodore Kershaw.

After a motor trip the couple will arrive in Washington about the middle of May to make their home.

Alexandria To Open Old Homes April 15

William Brown House Among Residences Included on Tour

The beautiful old homes of Alexandria, many of which have been standing since before the Revolution, will be open to the public on Saturday, April 15, from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. when the sixth annual tour of residences there, sponsored by the Alexandria Association, takes place.

Visitors may see the William Brown house, where lived Dr. Brown, surgeon general of the Continental Army, and until death in 1792, friend and physician to George Washington. This house, at 212 South Fairfax street, is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Sparks.

Or they may visit the residence of Col. and Mrs. Charles Beatty Moore, 207 Prince street, which was built 187 years ago by William Fairfax of Velvoir, and deeded to his son, George William Fairfax. Father and son were trustees and co-ofunders of Alexandria, members of the House of Borgesses and of the King's Council. Owing to their interest and friendship for George Washington, the latter received his instruction in engineering and his first appointment as a surveyor. Historic tavern

Historic Tavern To Be Shown

Gadsby's Tavern, the most famous hostelry of its day, will also be open for inspection. Tea will be served there from 4 to 6, and Negro spirituals will be sung by the Sabbath Glee Club of Richmond.

The stately red bric' house at 215 North Washington street, built in 1854 by Benjamin Hallowell, a Quaker schoolmaster, also will be opened to the public. This house is now occupied by Judge Ewin L. Davis, brother of Norman H. Davis, and Mrs. Davis.

Another home to be shown is that of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Monfalcone, 305 North Washington street. The brick ells are the originals of this row of four houses, to which Robert Brockett added the more important front a little less than 100 years ago.

One of the most historically interesting buildings is the Alexandria-Washington Lodge, a Masonic museum. George Washington was the first charter master of this lodge, joining in 1788. The chair he used is a fine example of Sheraton, with legs and arms of reeded mahogany inlaid with holly. An original portrait of Lord Fairfax, painted in England in 1730; the clock that Dr. Dick stopped when Washington breathed his last; an original portrait of Lafayette, painted by Charles Wilson Peale in 1784, are but some of the treasures housed there.

Yale Professor Guest of Honor

Dr. John Farquhar Fulton, Sterling professor of physiology at Yale University School of Medicine, will be the guest of honor at a luncheon to be given by Dr. James W. Watts, of the medical faculty of the George Washington University, today at the Cosmos Club.

Dr. Fulton came to Washington from New Haven to deliver the Smith-Reed-Russell lecture this morning at the George Washington University School of Medicine.

Guests at the luncheon will be Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, acting dean of the school of medicine; Dr. Errett C. Albritton, Dr. Ralph W. Barris, Dr. Roger M. Choisser, Dr. Benjamin F. Dean, jr., Dr. Paul F. Dickens, and Dr. Harry H. Donnally.

'At Homes' Discontinued

Mrs. Bennett C. Clark, wife of Senator Clark, of Missouri, has discontinued her Thursday "at homes" for a few weeks. She will receive again on Thursdays during the latter part of next month, dates to be announced later.

To Give Party

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edgar Post, of Woodley Park Towers, will entertain tomorrow afternoon at a cocktail party in the Carlton Room of the Carlton Hotel.

Notes of Society

—Official and Residential

Senator and Mrs. James E. Murray have returned to Washington from a stay in New York, where they were at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mrs. David D. Terry, wife of Representative Terry, served as hostess at the luncheon given yesterday at the Wardman Park by members of the 73d Club. Mrs. Roy M. North presented a musical program.

Charles G. Dawes, former vice president and Ambassador to England, and Mrs. Dawes are visiting his brother, Beman G. Dawes, at Hobe ound, Fla.

Miss Rose Chatfield-Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfeld-Taylor, is at the St. Regis Hotel in New York.

Mrs. S. Kent Legare, of Washington is at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York.

Mrs. Armstead Peter 3d, of Washington is at the Commodore in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Powell of Englewood, N. J. are at the Shoreham, en route from Florida.

Mrs. and Mrs. H. B. Thompson of Piedmont, Ohio, are at the Wardman Park for their annual visit here.

Mrs Charles H. Allen of Glencoe, Ill., and her daughter, Miss Slizabeth Allen, are at the Shoreham.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Martin of Greenwich, Conn. and their daughters, the misses Diana and Angela Martin are at the Wardman Park.

Mrs. Henry G. Walker of Washington is at the Beekman Tower in New York.

Miss Beatrice Cobb, Democratic National Committeewoman from North Carolina, is at the Raleigh While here to attend conferences of the Democratic Club.

Braddock House On Tour List

The residence which Gen. Braddock used as headquarters in 1755, now known as the Carlyle House, and owned by Edward E. Wager, also will be shown. Here took place the council between the commander of the English forces in America and the five colonial governors for the purpose of concerted action against the French and Indians. From this meeting grew the idea of taxing the colonies, which eventually led to the Revolution. Here, in 1785, was held one of the conferences between Gen. Washington and the governors of Virginia and Maryland to settle the boundary line between the two commonwealths. The house was built in 1752 by John Carlyle, cofounder of Alexandria, collcetor of his majesty's customs, son-in-law of William Fairfax of Belvoir and himself heir to a title.

The house and garden of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Councilor, 112 South Lee street, are built on the lot purchased in 1749 by Lawrence Washington, brother of George, and builder of Mt. Vernon. The garden will be included in the tour.

Hasty Pudding Boys From Harvard Will Give Annual Show Here Wednesday

THE Hasty Pudding boys from Harvard will cause quite a flurry of parties when they arrive here for their annual show on Wednesday evening, April 5. Members of the Harvard Club will give a supper for them that evening—set for 5:45 p. m. so they can get to the theater—and after the performance there will be a cabaret at the Sulgrave Club. A group of Washington debs and postdebs have been selected to play the hostess roles.

Brawn seems to be an outstanding feature of this year's cast of "Fair Enough." The comedy is based on the trials and tribulations anent the opening of the New York World's Fair. Charles Dyer, a 200-pound track man, will play the role of the wife of the New York broccoli king. The king is acted by Loring Reed, a husky football player. Another member of the cast is David Sheppard, who has had a year's experience with the Cohasset Players. It was with this group that Sinclair Lewis had his first acting role in his play "It Can't Happen Here."

THERE ARE seemingly dozens of Dillingham boys, and all members of the famous Honolulu family go to Harvard. Of particular interest in the Hasty Pudding cast are Bayard and Henry Hillingham, brothers of the debutante, Betty Lou Dillingham, who will be guest of honor at a dance to be given Easter Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edge. Last year Bayard was voted the "prettiest chorine" in the show.

Samuel Spencer is chairman of the Harvard alumni arranging for the Washington performance.

JOHN C. Johansen, a member of the jury which awarded prizes in the forthcoming biennial exhibit of the Corcoran Art Gallery, has lingered on to do several portraits. Among his subjects are Surgeon Gen. Charles Reynolds of the Army and the Rev. Edmund Walsh, head of the Georgetown University Foreign Service School. He is painting them in a studio at the Corcoran. Mr. Johansen, one of the outstanding artists of the country, did a portrait of the President and his family several years ago at the White House. It was exhibited here and then the artist presented it to Mr. Roosevelt. While in Washington, Mr. Johansen is staying at the Metropolitan Club.

Maurice Sterne, another famous artist, and also for a brief time one of the four husbands of Mabel Dodge Luhan, was also a member of the jury. The group were feted at a dinner given before their departure by C. Powell Minnigerode, director of the Corcoran Art Gallery.

REBECCA WELLINGTON received as a gift the other day a beautiful primrose plant, only to break out in spots immediately after it arrived. The doctor has told her she is allergic to primroses!

MRS. MILLAND TYDINGS' current hobby is figure skating. She takes several lessons a week at the Chevy Chase Ice Palace, dressed in a becoming black velvet skirt and jacket embroidered with small, bright-colored flowers. We hear the Senator is also a good skater. Now that Easter vacation is here, many mothers and daughters combinations are to be seen at the rink. Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne and young Marjorie, her daughter, and Mrs. John Sternhagen, with two little pig-tailed Sternhagens, were skating together the other morning.

Helene Hess Becomes Bride Of James J. Waters Today

Ceremony Will Take Place in Church Of Our Lady of Lourdes at New Orleans; Couple at Home Here After April 1

Of wide interest in Washington is the wedding that will take place in New Orleans this morning at 11 o'clock, when Miss Helene Marie Hess will become the bride of James Joseph Waters, of Washington. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest William Hess, of Kansas City, Mo.

The ceremony will take place in the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, with the Rev. Carl Schutten officiating. The bride will be given in marriage by her father, and will have one attendant, Miss Beverly J. Hess, her sister.

John J. Sirica, of Washington, will be the best man. Immediately following the ceremony there will be a reception for the members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Beals, grandparents of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to New York and New England, the couple will make their home in Washington. Numerous guests from Kansas City, Oklahoma City and Washington will attend the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Missouri and is a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority. The bridegroom is a graduate of Georgetown College and Georgetown University Law School. He is at present special assistant to the Attorney General in the Department of Justice.

The wedding will be a quiet affair due to the recent death of the bridegroom's sister. After April 1, the couple will be at home in Washington.

Home for Holidays

Mr. and Mrs. William Chapin Huntington will be joined today by their daughter, Miss Joanna Huntington, who will spend the spring holidays here. She is a freshman at Smith, and will bring with her a classmate, Miss Phoebe Ferris, of Spokane.

Mrs. Webb Here To Meet Husband

Mrs. Richard Ellsworth Webb has arrived from the West Coast and is at the Shoreham awaiting Commander Webb aide and flag secretary to Vice Admiral Adolphus Andrews, staff commander of the United States Navy Scouting Force.

After Commanding Webb's arrival the middle of April he and Mrs. Webb expect to go to New York for the opening of the World's Fair. Late in May Mrs. Webb expects to go to Panama and later to Long Beach, Calif.

Mrs. John A. Crane To Return on Sunday

Mrs. John A. Crane, wife of Col. Crane, of the Field Artillery, will return to their home in Washington Sunday.

Mrs. Crane has been in Fort Bragg, N. C., visiting Col. and Mrs. Ralph McT. Pennell for the past week.

Rural Youth Voices Own Problems

Fireside Discussion At Morgenthau Home Discloses Need for Adult Leadership

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Revision of high school curricula to provide training adapted to the young person not going on to college; acquaintance with the available rural credit facilities, and sympathetic adult leadership in community recreational projects were some of the solutions to the problem of rural youth suggested last night at the home of Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr. The discussion, sponsored by the Washington branch of the Alliance for the Guidance of Rural Youth, was carried on informally by a group of University of Maryland students who classed themselves as "underprivileged." Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, local alliance president, presided.

The students, all of them working their way through school, and with first-hand knowledge of the problems faced by young people of farming communities, presented reassuring evidence of the sterling qualities which are so often attributed to this country's founders. The "problem of parents" who failed to co-operate with their sons and daughters in their efforts to get educations and to find worthwhile recreational activities was among those brought up.

Miss Gertrude Warren, whose work with the 4-H clubs won her a decoration from the Lavian government, with the aid of Miss Dorothy Emerson and Milso Downey, State club leaders, selected the students participating in the discussion. The young people were seated around the fireplace, much as they would be at an informal gathering in the university campus, and spoke freely and frankly.

Find Solution For Own Problems

Mary Jenkins, a girl from Prince Georges County, who asted as mistress of ceremonies, has been out of school a year and is now teaching. She is living on half her salary, so as to pay back to her father what she borrowed for her schooling. She had saved for it since childhood, at her parents' bidding, but was obliged to borrow to make ends meet. What she is paying bac kis being used for the education of a brother. He will repay his father, and it will go on to the next child to be educated, she explained.

Sam Slack, one of the boys, milked 12 cows yesterday morning and again last night before he went to the meeting and was scheduled to be up at 4 this morning to milk the 12 again before getting off to school. Sally Burroughs, one of a family of 11 children—a happy family which had always had all its needs amply supplied but with no extra money for college educations—is earning her way by working as a maid, and is an honor student in home economics.

Others were Bill Brosius, Milbrey A. Downey, Merl D. Myers and William Hansel, all with hard work to their credit every step of the way through school.

Their analysis of youth's problems was simple and free from any effort to dramatize youth's position. One of the boys advanced the theory that anyone could get a job of some kind if he had the "get-up-and-get" to go after it. "It may not be the kind of a job he wants, but he'll be able to get work," he said.

Wholesome Recreation Imperative Need

Want of adult leadership in rural sections and small towns and total lack of any sort of community recreational facilities, is responsible for young people seeking entertainment in cheap roadhouses, the students agreed. High school courses emphasizing agriculture, industrial training and home economics, would fit students for life on the farm and equip them with standards for it, they said, instead of letting them finish with no goal in sight but a Saturday job in the town general store.

One youth cited his own community where two large factories have replaced mines. A boy out of high school gets a job in one of the factories, a month later makes a first payment on a small car and next gets married. From then on, it is a struggle with poverty on a meagre salary and with no chance to get ahead.

Mrs. Morgenthau spoke briefly at the close of the discussion, telling of her visit to Breathitt County, Ky., with Mrs. Roosevelt some months ago. She also showed an exhibition of pictures and handicraft done by rural youth. Rural songs, including "The CCC Blues," were played on a phonograph by Miss Margaret Valliant.

Many Prominent Guests Attend

Among members and guests at the meting were Judge Fay Bentley, of the Juvenile Court, Mrs. Davis Cushman Coyle, Howard Howard Bell, of the American Youth Commission and Mrs. Bell, director of the National Youth Administration for the District; Prof. Gilbert Wrenn, of the Youth Commission; E. C. Lamson, of the Employment Center; Dr. Louise Stanley, of the Department of Agriculture; Mrs. Grace Falke Tugwell, Miss Marguerite Woolley and Miss Mildred Percy, of the public schools.

MRS. ALICE SHELDON, director of the department of school attendance and work permits, talked before the Zonta Club at its meeting yesterday at the Y. W. C. A. She urged instilling the habit of regular school attendance in young children and said the movies were the greatest attraction for youngsters who skipped school. Through co-operation of theater managers and parents, this situation is controlled.

Miss Emma T. Hahm, Zonta president, introduced her.

Farewell Fetes Honor Mme. Orlicze Dreszer

Mme. Gustav Orlicz-Dreszer, who sailed yesterday from New York for her home in Poland after visiting relatives in Washington, has been widely feted in the past few days.

One of the final farewell parties in her honor was a luncheon given by Mrs. M. Webster Dawley on Tuesday in the Louis Seize room at the Shoreham. Guests included Mme. Brejska, wife of the Counselor of the Czecho-Slovak Legation, Mrs. Kingman Brewster, Mrs. Horace Ashton, Mrs. Carl Zoller, Mrs. Clyde Wilson and Mrs. William Shearer.

Period Gowns To Be Modeled

Fashions that might have adorned the pages of Godey's Lady Book will come to life tomorrow at the second annual show to be given by the Goodwill Industries at 4 o'clock. Gowns made of fabrics long forgotten and trimmed with rare old lace will be modeled by a number of young women at headquarters of the Industries, 1218 New Hampshire avenue.

The fashion show will be presented in connection with two playlets to be given by a group of Washington juniors who will portray a phase of the work done by the Goodwill organization. Among the models for the event will be Miss Madeline Cooter, Miss Kay Overton, Miss Tilly Craddick, Miss Marjorie Lampkin, Miss Ruth Van Sant, Miss Marilee Clas, Mrs. Homer Wheeler and Mrs. Albert Warner.

Colonel Geo. H. Calvert, jr., the president of the society, will make an address of welcome. The entertainment will be furnished by 40 members of the Mixed Glee Club of the University of Maryland, directed by Harlan Randall.

Anderson Home Scene of Party For Cincinnati

The home of Mrs. Larz Anderson, which she has given to the Society of the Cincinnati to be used as a national headquarters, was opened yesterday for a bridge party, sponsored by the woman's committee of the society. The purpose of the committee is to raise a fund toward the maintenance of the mansion before it is taken over by the organization.

The headquarters will be dedicated to George Washington and his officers who were founders of the Society of the Cincinnati, former Representative Virginia Jenckes, chairman of the woman's committee, said yesterday. The society is the oldest patriotic organization in the United States, and this gift from Mrs. Anderson and her late husband will serve as a memorial to the colonial heroes who founded it.

It will be maintained not only as a headquarters but also as a museum to be open to the public. The rooms on the first two floors already are filled with priceless museum pieces, ancient carved choir stalls from an Italian church, rare tapestries, magnificent murals and paintings by the old masters and great artists of modern times:

Many of the guests spent more time upstairs, looking at the beautiful collections than they did in playing cards. Tables were arranged in the great ballroom, with its rose-colored marble columns, in the library adjoining and in the reception hall at the foot of the broad marble staircase.

Mrs. Robert C. Jones was general chairman of the bridge. Assistant hostesses, who showed guests through the house were Mrs. Randolph Dickens, Mrs. J. R. Kean, Mrs. William M. Beall, Mrs. Leland Conness and Miss Janet Fish.

Among those who had tables were Princess Boncompagni, Mrs. R. H. Wilmer, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. R. L. DeSaussure, Mrs. W. H. Sommerville, Miss Katherine Overton, Mrs. Katharyn Fuqua, Miss Mary Farrington, Mrs. Dwight Kandall, Mrs. Wady Butler Wood, Mrs. Pritz Smith, Mrs. Harriman Dorsey, Mrs. N. E. Steed, Mrs. E. O. Sykes, Mrs. John Holmes Overton, Mrs. Marshall Exnicious, Mrs. F. G. Awalt, Mrs. John Shugrue, Mrs. Mattie W. Porter, Mrs. William Fitch, Mrs. T. J. Dr. Hummel Lays Europe's Ills to Misuse of Words

Much of the trouble in Europe can be traced to the misuse of words, Dr. Arthur Hummell, chief of the Division of Orientalia at the Library of Congress, told the Soroptimist Club at its luncheon in the Willard Hotel yesterday. It is of great importance, he said, to differentiate between words which state facts and those designed to stir emotion.

He talked on the subject, "Basic English," and explained how the 850 words it includes are taught to classes of the Americanization School. Only 18 of the words are verbs, 600 are names of thing and 150 qualifying adjectives. Use of basic English would take the ghosts out of the language, he said, as well as out of politics and religion. People are fascinated and misled by words, and basic English would simply the

Chevy Chase Woman's Club To Stage 'Short Story' Saturday

Play Is Most Important Production Of Drama Group Since Clubhouse Opening; Dolph Bishop Builds Set

"Short Story," a three-act play by Jane Plummer Rice, will be presented Saturday night by the drama group of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase on the stage of the new clubhouse, Connecticut avenue and Dunlop street. It is the most important production of the drama section since the clubhouse was opened last October and members of the group are making the most of the new stage and equipment.

Dolph Bishop, one of the best known of Washington amateurs, is building the set, and properties are in the charge of Mrs. Felix Stapleton, who has had nine years of professional experience in the theater.

Mrs. Arthur T. Davenport is chairman of the section. In the cast are Frederick M. Kerby, Patricia Lucas, Mrs. David P. Wolhaupter, Mrs. H. Freeborn Johnston, Irving M. Day, Mr. Bishop, Mrs. Robert Klemeyer and Mrs. Thomas M. Wilkins.

The section grew from a small, fireside group which started reading plays in the homes of members, about seven years ago.

Gradually as the attendance of the meetings increased the readings were given in the Chevy Chase library and there were productions of one-act plays with costumes and scenery.

With the fine stage and auditorium in the new club house the members are branching out in several directions. The lighting equipment has had to be increased and proceeds of the coming production will go toward that.

Y. W. C. A. Chapter Plans Card Party

Mt. Pleasant Chapter of the Y. W. C. A. will sponsor a benefit luncheon and card party at the home of its president, Mrs. George U. Rose, 1418 Van Buren street, tomorrow. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 and in the afternoon bridge and other games will be played.

Mt. Pleasant is the oldest of the the eight Y. W. C. A. chapters in the city. Mt. Pleasant has helped in the Y. W. C. A. world work, scholarships for girls to Kamp Kahlert, needs at Vacation Lodge, summer residence near Cherrydale, Va., and is participating in the Mexican fiesta to be presented on April 13 with all departments of the Y. W. C. A. participating.

The monthly luncheon sponsored by the World Fellowship Committee of the Y. W. C. A. will be held today at 12:30. Mrs. D. E. Yarnell, chairman of the program, has announced Mrs. J. Parker Van Zandt as the guest speaker.

COOPER'S 66 SETS MARK AT PINEHURST

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 22.—That old spade-caller, Rogers Hornsby, hasn't changed much. This afternoon as he sunned himself in the rickety grandstands here and avidly talked baseball, he was pulling no verbal punches. The old Rajah, one of our favorite baseball characters, was just as biting in his remarks, just as positive in his opinions as when his batting was a headache to pitchers and his horseplaying was the bane of his bosses.

POVICH

Sure, he had heard of the Cuban bund with the Washington club, and in plain, unvarnished language he asked if Clark Griffith had gone crazy. "Those Cuban's don't have it here," said the Rajah tapping his chest in the region of his heart. "At least most of 'em don't."

"Better make a couple of exceptions," he added. "Luque and Gonzales were all right," but as a class the Cubans choke up. I'll take American boys for my ball players."

The greatest right-handed hitter in all baseball history scanned the field as the Washington club took up positions for the start of the game, and asked "Where's the power on this club? I see Buddy Myer and Buddy Lewis, and I know Cecil Travis is around somewhere, but who else is doing to drive in your runs?"

Unimpressed With Hitting

Informed that Manager Bucky Harris was counting on Jimmy Wasdell at first base and Bobby Estalella in the outfield to add some punch to the attack, Hornsby was unimpressed.

"I've seen that Wasdell. He'll never hit in the big leagues until he starts swinging his bat with two hands. These kind of guys who follow through with a one-handed swing don't have any power or any balance. He's got to be pretty powerful around first base to do this club any good."

He wasn't surprised at the reports out of the Yankees' camp that Lou Gehrig was stumbling around first base in the fashion of a man who is just too tired to continue. "Sure it's the legs," he said. "They're the first to go. They got me, too. Gehrig's legs were overdue to crack. He's a big man. Put a lot of strain on them for 15 years.

"But the Yanks are cinches with or without Gehrig. They're standouts in that league. No other club can touch 'em. You can name the first division easy—the Yanks, the Red Sox, the Tigers and Cleveland. The other club's haven't got it. It's like bumping their heads against the steam pipes trying to break into the first division."

The Rajah is back with the Orioles now as manager. His Baltimore team shares the Daytona field with the Minneapolis club. Hornsby is working for his old pal, Jack Ogden, who was a pitcher with the Browns when Rajah managed the club. He still plays the horses, doesn't see any reason why he should stop. It's nobody's business but my own," he says. "It's a hobby with me. Other men fish, hunt and race yachts. Nobody squawks about that. They have their hobbies, and horse betting is mine."

As he watched George Case flounder a bit under a fly ball before making the catch, the Rajah wanted to know about him. "How come Sammy West isn't playing centerfield on this club?" he asked. "Griff hasn't got anybody who's better than West. Looks to me like he's gone daffy over rookies. I'll bet Sammy West is this club's regular centerfielder before the season's a month old. You can't keep him out of there."

Fast Ball Needs Extra Something

And as Bobby Estalella struck out on a curve ball, Hornsby was similarly unimpressed. "I've seen these kind before, murder fast balls and are suckers on curves. When they find that out, these big league pitchers won't give that Cuban anything that looks like a fast one. There's only one man I ever knew that liked curve-ball pitching. He was Bing Miller."

He wanted to know, also, why Buddy Lewis wasn't batting cleanup on the Nats. "He's the fellow with the most power and a good hitter, too. Left-handers don't seem to bother him. If I had this club, Lewis would be batting fourth for me."

The fact that Mike Martin, trainer of the Nats, was within earshot didn't seem to bother the Rajah as he continued his critical appraisal of the Nats. "I don't blame Bucky Harris for trying out those young pitchers, though. That crew he had last year won't take him anywhere. How about that Cuban Ortiz? Is he fast as they say?"

Told that Ortiz was showing a blazing speed ball, Hornsby nodded. "If it's extra fast, he may be all right. Don't let anybody ever tell you a pitcher can't throw a fast ball past a hitter. They threw plenty past me in a year when I was hitting .420. But it's got to have that extra something on it. Those hitters will murder anything less."

On the Line

With Considine

New York, March 22.—If J. Donald Budge is counting very heavily on that $75,000 he was promised as his income for his first year as a tennis pro, he had better begin looking around for a rich uncle to poison.

CONSIDINE

He got the first payment of $25,000—on the line—before he ventured into the play for pay precinct. But just how he is going to get the next wto $25,000 payments remains a mystery, unless somebody wills it to him or buys up the act for the World Fair.

The troupe played before a little more than a one-third filled house in the inaugural at Madison Square Garden; drew about 2,500 at Boston, and only 500 at Baltimore. At this writing Budge has met Fred Perry eight times. He has won eight matches and granted Perry only one set in that time. The match at the garden consumed only 48 minutes. The 6—1, 6—4 affair at Cleveland last Monday used up only 35 minutes. And thep reliminaries, between two four-rounder pros named Ben Gorchakoff and Walter Senior, aren't good enough to carry the show.

Budge has proved indisputably that the game is honest, but in doing so he has just about exploded a sport that was coming along very nicely—until he turned pro. Tilden made as much as $100,000 a year, after he turned pro.

Money in Old Days

Suzanne Lenglen must have gotten at least $50,000 out of C. C. Pyle. Vines was up around that same figure and Perry made $93,000 in 1937, $63,000 in salaries and percentages and the rest out of a movie short and a few indorsements. Pro tennis was the softest touch in the kingdom of sport.

But now that Budge—certainly the best pro who ever lived—has come along to provide more good tennis than the pro public was ever privileged to see, the whole thing gives off a sad sigh and deflates. Nobody knows just what happened, and specialists point to all sections of the compass for remedies. Some believe that Budge should be owned by one mob and Perry by the other—instead of sharing those upper berths on the overnight jumps. Others think that the tickets are grossly mispriced, and that it should be a $1 show. Still others believe that a couple of additions like Les Stoefen and George Lott would put some necessary sex appeal into the thing. A lot of people have decided that the whole thing is in the bag, and nearly everybody just doesn't give a damn whether it lives or dies.

Von Cramm Is Defeated

It's a strange situation, with no real remedy in sight. The only hope is that the game will in time come up with another Budge—and Budges come along about every five or ten years. There has been some disposition on the part of the pros to open their arms to Baron Gott-Fried von Cramm, who at the moment is getting rid of his concentration camp pallor in Egypt. But the other day Cramm was knocked off by young Don McNeill, an American kid who has trouble winning against any one of 15 players in this country. That doesn't help.

Like a lot of other great champs, Budge seems to have fought himself into an airpocket. Jim Jeffries once had to retire because there was nobody else to whang in the nose. So did Benny Leonard. Henry Armstrong is in the middle of some kind of calm now, and the paucity of worthwhile opponents for Joe Louis has long concerned the land.

My own humble advice to Budge is to get out of the pro game at the end of a year and apply to the U.S.L.T.A. for his amateur citizenship papers. Paul Feret, a French pro, regained his amateur standing. So could Budge. The pro game won't be any good until they get a new boy who can sling that pill back over the net as hard and as often as Budge can.

Leonard Invincible as Nats Win, 7 to 5

Estallela's Blow in 9th Tops Millers

Dutch Takes Over Mound Duties in 6th Inning; Case Wallops Homer Inside Park

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 22.—Threatened with their first defeat in the grapefruit league, the Nats suddenly whipped up a long-range offensive late this afternoon, wiped out a 5-1 lead of the Minneapolis Millers and won a 7-5 ball game.

The ignominy of a defeat by the sixth-place American Association club began to vanish in the seventh nning when the Nats started shootfor fences. Jimmy Wasdell promptly pumped a home run in to deep centerfield, and three triples authored by Buddy Lewis, Jimmy Bloodworth and Bobby Estalella dashed the hopes of Minneapolis.

Seven of their 11 hits and six of their seven runs the Nats crowded into the last three innings. The payoff blow was delivered by Estalella with the score tied in the ninth. With one out, Buddy Lewis drew a walk from oJe Tauscher, who 12 years ago was given a tryout by the Nats, and then it was that Estalella rifled his three-bagger into leftfield. Just in case, Johnny Welaj scored Estalella with a corking single to left.

But the gent who was Bucky Harris' hero was 200-pound Dutch Leonard, who took over the pitching job from Ken Chase in the sixth inning and stopped Minneapolis colder than an Eskimo landlord's heart.

Big Leonard, making his first spring training appearance, encountered a three-bagger by the second man to face him in the sixth inning, but thereafter he was something to see. Giving his knuckle ball a vigorous workout, he didn't allow a hit through the seventh, eighth and ninth innings, while the Nats were stealing upon the Millers and overpowering 'em.

Carr Gets Homer

The only Washington run of the first six innings was the inside-the-park homer of George Case, who beat out a blow to deep left in the fifth.

Ken Chase, after pitching three scoreless innings, surrendered a pair of runs to the Millers in the fourth on a pair of hits, and his own error enabled Minneapolis to boost their lead to 4-1 in the fifth. Against Leonard they made it 5-1 in the sixth, and then the Nats took charge.

Marvin Ulrich, a righthander, and Harry Smythe, former Yankee southpaw, had held the Nats to

Navy Sports Teams Make FineShowing

Annapolis, Md., March 22.—Naval Academy teams in the seven winter sports hung up an enviable record this past season, a survey shows. In 58 matches with outside teams, Navy won 40, lost 16, and tied 2.

The boxing, rifle and fencing teams went undefeated, the foilmen registering 12 straight victories, and the riflemen taking credit for 6. Navy sluggers won only three of their five dual matches, but managed for draws in the other two, with Virginia and Syyracuse.

Navy won eight basketball games and lost six, won five dual wrestling meets and lost two, won four gun meets and lost two, and in only one sport lost more than it won. That was in swimming, in whiche the Midshipmen won only two, compared with six defeats.

A's Defeat Giants, 7-5, in 10 Innings

Hubbell, Schumacher On Mound for N. Y.; Moses, Siebert Homer

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baton Rouge, La., March 22.—Wally Moses' homer with one on in the tenth today gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 7-5 victory over the New York Giants as the National League team tested its pitching aces, Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher.

Hubbell, from whose arm a bone chip was removed during the winter, seemed as sound as ever as he turned back the A's for the first three innings, giving up only one hit, a homer to Dick Siebert.

Mack used Byrd, Reninger and Dean in three-inning turns on the mound and all looked good. The Giants picked up two runs in the first, two more in the fourth, and one in the tenth, combing the opposition for ten hits.

The Aethletics, however, bounced back with a cluster of three tallies in the ninth to tie the score and then clinched the decision with a similar outburst in the extra inning, topped by Moses' clout to deep centerfield. The score by innings:

Bradenton, Fla., March 22 (U.P.).—The Boston Bees were outhit by the Detroit Tigers today, but clever pitching by Lou Fette and Johnny Lanning brought them a 5-to-3 victory.

Fette and Lanning gave up 11 blows, but kept them well scattered, while the Bees bunched their seven hits for four runs in the fourth and one in the seventh. The score by innings:

Bookies Lay 20,000 To 1 You Can't Tell Finish at Aintree

AINTREE, Eng., March 22 (AP).—British speculators were offering today anything from 250 to 1 to 20,000 to 1 against anybody being able to pick the first three horses in Friday's Grand National. It was 5 to 1 that any horse you name will not finish the four and half miles.

The longest odds were quoted against the combination of the American-owned War Vessel, Drim and Dunhill Castle; the shortest against the Trio of Kilstar, Workmaid and Royal Danieli, all highly regarded.

Indian Spring Club Expects Good Teams

District and Maryland Titles Should Rest At Four Corners Club; Al Jamison Busy

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Indian Spring, home of the District's outstanding women's golf team and the Maryland State men's team championship finalists, should be the proud resting place of both trophies next year barring a slip-up of its present star-studded membership.

Al Jamison, who will mark his first year as club professional in three weeks' time, also plans to have a say as to the disposition of the various sectional pro titles, and is probably sending more time on the practice tee than any of his fellow mentors in town in an effort to cop a crown.

The women's team, defending champions in the District Women's Golf Association team championships, scheduled to get underway midway in April, is on paper an outstanding favorite to repeat, with the new first teams of eight players.

Mrs. Davy to Play

Although, losing last year's District and Middle Atlantic champion, Marion Brown, who will play with the Manor team, the Four Corners Club lineup will be strengthened by Mrs. Myron Davy, who is destined to be one of the top stars this year.

Otherwise Mrs. Betty Meckley, Mrs. Walter Stokes, Mrs. C. P. Medley, Mrs. Charlotte Stern, and Mrs. K. S. Giles, only southpaw member of the low handicap bracket of the association, will be back from last year's winning team, that all the clubs but Chevy Chase decided was too much opposition. Mrs. Richard Kreurberg may play in one or two matches while Mrs. H. W. Sharpe and Mrs. Alma Von Steiner are potential regular players.

Headed by Jamison, the top-playing members of the club, Roger Peacock, Buddy Sharkey, Jerry Hart, Dick Melvin, Jock Olmsted, Lou Harrison, Jack Robertson, Jim Brownell, Arthur Urban and Russ Hollebaugh have been joined by the much-improved Charley Malone Redskin end, and Eddie Bean. Rumor has it that Levi Yoder and Volney Burnett will also join to

Rockquilla Rated 5th in Aintree Chase

By the Associated Press.

Aintree, England, March 22.—Lord Bicester's strutting chestnut gelding, Rockquilla, jumped up among the first five favorites for the Grand National as a large and giddy crowd arrived in Liverpool today for Friday's running of the world's premier steeplechase race.

Antree's program will open tomorrow with a combination of flat and jumping races. A fight between Ernie Roderick, of Liverpool, and Jake Kilrain, of Glasgow, for the latter's British welterweight championship tomorrow night will help amuse the crowd until the National starts at 3:15 p. m.

Arthur Sainsbury's Blue Shirt, which started co-favorite last year and finished seventh, also strengthened his position. Two days ago he was quoted at 33 to 1, but 22 to 1 was the best offered on him at tonight's official call over.

Dorothy Paget's Kilstar stood firm at the top of the list at 15 to 2 despite his lack of Aintree experience. Workman hardened to 9 to 1, and Royal Danieli to 21 to 2. Teme Willow dropped back to 100 to 7, and Rockquilla displaced Royal Mail as the fifth choice at 100 to 6. Odds on Royal Mail, the 1937 winner, owned by the former American actress, Mrs. Camille Evans, lengthened to 18 to 1.

Davey O'Brien Capitulates to Eagles' Offer

Passing Star Signs For Reported $10,000 And Cut of 'Gate'

By the Associated Press.

Fort Worth, Tex., March 22.—Davey O'Brien, who shook his head for months at tempting offers to play professional football, capitulated today for a monetary consideration reported among the highest in the pro ranks.

The Texas Christian University All-American quarterback insisted for months he'd rather hunt oil than touchdowns, but in the face of the Philadelphia Eagles' bid, he decided his career as a geologist could wait.

Bert Bell, owner of the Eagles, did not disclose the salary, but most estimates hovered around the $10,000 figure, with possibly a cut in the gate. The contract, it was understood, will give O'Brien a share of the Eagles' gate receipts.

O'Brien will make his league debut against the Washington Redskins at Philadelphia September 17.

Richmond Nine Opens Season, Tops Ohio State, 3 to 1

Richmond, Va., March 22 (AP).—Richmond University's Spiders got mid-season pitching today in opening their baseball season with an impressive 3-to-1 victory over Ohio State.

The sophomore, Starke Jones, who started, and the veteran, Porter Vaughan, who finished the game and got credit for the victory, held the invading Buckeyes to three hits. Neither allowed a base on balls and Vaughan struck out 10 batsmen in five innings.

Harry Trails Byron Nelson By Stroke

Sammy Snead Two Strokes Back With 141; Laffoon Fourth

By the Associated Press.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 22.—Par took a pummeling today by golf's army of professionals, including a record-shattering score by Lighthorse Harry Cooper, and when day was done the halfway leader in the North and South Open tournament was Byron Nelson, ruddy-faced Ryder Cup player from Reading, Pa.

Lighthorse Harry, who hasn't cashed in on a big tournament prize in more than a year, broke all records for the N. 2 Pinehurst course with a sensational 66, six under par.

The old record of 67 was held jointly by Horton Smith, Denny Shute and Ed Dudley.

Nelson Has 68

The spectacular performance by Cooper, which might easily have been two to three strokes lower had putts dropped, was not overshadowed in the stroke count, but the youthful Nelson, a former Texan who came up from the caddy ranks, shot the second round in 68 blows and took the lead through 36 holes with 139.

Cooper had taken 74 shots for the first round to Nelson's 71, and there's where the Pennsylvania Dutchman got his one-stroke edge as the field turned to the final 36 holes of the 72-hole grind tomorrow.

In third place was young Sam Snead, the West Virginia siege gun, with a total of 141. Snead, the pre-tournament favorite, had par-72 to add to his opening 69.

Has 7 Birdies

Cooper clipped three strokes off par on each nine with 33's. After missing putts for birdies on the first two holes, he barely missed an eagle at the fourth; rolled in a 20-foot putt for an eagle at the fifth and dropped his tee shot two feet from the cup at the ninth for a birdie deuce. He took a bogey at the short sixth where he missed the green. Close approaches and chips gave him four birdies on the incoming nine, where he lost a stroke at the eleventh by firing his second into a bunker.

D. C. Boys Honored At Charlotte Hall

Charlotte Hall, Md., March 22.—Washington, D. C. athletes were well represented in the list of letter awards announced today by Maj. W. A. Stephens, director of athletics at Charlotte Hall Military Academy.

Among those who received varsity basketbaH monograms was J. E. Watson, of Washington, and two other District athletes received junior varsity letters. They were A. T. Curtis and C. A. Johnson. A junior varsity letter in football went to R. B. Johnson, also of Washington.

Lynchburg Seeking V. M. I., Virginia Tech

Lynchburg, Va., March 22 (AP).—Further efforts to swing the Thanksgiving Day V. M. I.-Virginia Tech football game to Lynchburg will be made by the Chamber of Commerce next Monday night at a conference with Tech's athletic council in Blacksburg.

In making known today that the meeting had been arranged, Business Manager Robert D. Ramsey of the Chamber it has not been decided who will comprise the Lynchburg delegation.

Rolls "300" Game

Cleveland, March 22 (AP).—William McGeorge, of Kent, Ohio, achieved today the dream of every bowler; he became the sixth man in American Bowling Congress history to roll a perfect 300 game.

McGeorge's 300 was rolled in the singles. In his second game he fell to 173 and he slumped to 166 in the third for a three-game total of 639.

Weak Hurling Threatens to Mire Nats

Chisox, Browns, A's Also Suffer for Lack of Pitchers

By Harry Ferguson,

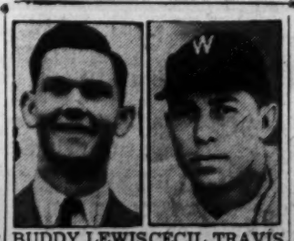
United Press Sports Writer.

This is the second of a series of four articles by Harry Ferguson, United Press sports writer, analyzing the Major League baseball situation.

Tampa, Fla., March 22.—A complaint that is almost as old as baseball itself, lack of pitching, threatens to leave four American clubs exactly, where they finished last season—in the second division.

The sad truth of it is that Washington, Chicago, St. Louis and Philadelphia are going to spend many unhappy afternoons this summer losing ball games by big scores. At this stage none of the four shows any improvement over 1938 and the White Sox, without the services of Monty Stratton, whose leg was amputated after a hunting accident, appear to be weaker.

Manager Jimmy Dykes of the



BUDDY LEWIS

CECIL TRAVIS

White Sox is going to have many a headache finding someone to take Stratton's place on the pitching staff. From last year he has Johnny Whitehead, Thornton Lee, Ted Lyons and John Rigney. None of them won more than 13 games last season. Dykes has brought Vic Frasier up from St. Paul, a pitcher who has been knocking around the big leagues for years, but Vic never will turn out to be a Stratton. Art Herring, another on who has had previous tryouts in the majors, gets another shot this year. He, too, comes up from St. Paul.

Four Teams Expected To Finish in Second Division, as in 1938

Marvin Owen seems set at third base for Chicago; Joe Kuhel will be back on first and Luke Appling at shortstop. Eric McNair, obtained from Boston in a trade, may help out at second base, provided his bad leg stands up. The outfield is in good shape with Dykes having a choice among Mike Kreevich, Rip Radcliff, John Rosenthal, Gerald Walker and Harry Steinbacher. All of them can hit. The catching is only so-so with George Rensa and Norman Schletter, weak hitters last season, around to carry the hod.

Bucky Harris at Washington not only has a wobbly pitching staff but is uncertain about his infield. If Jim Wasdell does not develop at first bas this season, you may see Cecil Travis shifted over there from shortstop. If that happens, Charley Gelbert will take over short.

From last year's pitching staff

MYRIL HOAG

HARRIS

Harris has Emil Leonard, Joe Krakauskas (who might be a comer if he could get some control), Ken Chase and Jimmy Deshong. Tom Baker, obtained from the Giants in the Zeke Bonura deal, has a chance of developing. Buddy Myer will be back at second. Buddy Lewis at third and the outfield probably will be George Case, Taft Wright and Sam West. There is power in that outfield, but West is 34 years old and it's questionable how much longer

No Sir Wins St. Augustine Purse, Pays Backers $18.60

Defeats 7 Veterans at Tropical

Six of Eight Starters Named for $10,000 Tropical Handicap On Closing Day

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., March 22.—Suddenly regaining his top form Joseph Pepp's No Sir led home seven other veterans in the mile and a sixteenth St. Augustine Purse here today. Paying $18.60 and speeding the distance in 1:44 3-5 under Johnny Leyland, one of the old guard of riders, the 5-year-old Sortie gelding reported a length and a half clear of Jesse Spencer's Neighbor. Bert Friend's Co-Sport lost second money by a half length.

Six of the eight starters are named for the $10,000 Tropical Handicap to be decided here closing day. Neighbor and Dark Beau were not nominated.

W. W. Adams' favored Warlaine burned up considerable of the public's money by finishing fifth. The usually speedy Man o' War colt delayed the start by his fractious antics. He failed to show any of his vaunted speed.

No Sir, as usual, was slow to find his stride. He was back with the trailers around the first turn, then drew into a five-length lead after entering the home lane. This effort told in the last sixteenth, but when put to a drive No Sir held the fast-closing Neighbor at bay.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOLD KNIGHTESS, $9.40, $4.70, $4.10; EPITAPH, $5.30, $5.60; ROCKY MEADOW, $7.30.

GOLD KNIGHTESS, away forwardly, went in close pursuit of the leader on the outside in the early stages, took command when called upon and was going away at the end. EPITAPH outthrobe the field and displayed the most speed while being reserved in front, but faltered when the real test came. ROCKY MEADOW, away slowly, worked his way up steadily between the leaders and shook off DINNER JACKET in the stretch run. DINNER JACKET, prominent on the inside early, faltered in the final drive. GRAND LIGHT broke tardily, was on the inside for most of the trip and suffered repeated minor interference. ICY WIND was buffeted about in the opening furlong. HARPEN BELLE was unable to obtain clear racing room.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:32. Off 2:40. Winner, S. H. Fairbanks' ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS WHIM, $29.50, $8.80, $5.90; GENERAL HOWES, $4.80, $3.30; FLYING CAR, $4.20.

MISS WHIM, displaying sharp improvement under energetic pressure, gained steadily on the outside in the last quarter mile and wore GENERAL HOWES down in the last strides. GENERAL HOWES, quickest to begin, opened up a good lead in the early stages, but tired in the final sixteenth mile, but FLYING CAR, a forward factor all the way, maintained her position with determination, but never threatened the leaders. HUNTER L. made up some ground. DONGY saved ground all the way.

Daily Double, Golden Knightess and Miss Whim, Paid $203.40.

THIRD RACE—Four furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:06. Off 3:12. Winner, A. K. Miller's br. g. (2), by Rolls Royce—Disdame. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:22 3-5, 0:46 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOHNNIE J., $16.30, $9.30, $5.00; MALAYAN, $21.70, $9.10; COLORED POST, $3.00.

JOHNNIE J., away forwardly, settled into his stride at once, drew out into a winning lead in the first quarter mile and Miller was looking back at the field the remainder of the trip, winning with speed in reserve. MALAYAN, a forward contender and saving ground all the way, shook off COLORED POST in the stretch run. COLORED POST broke alertly, went in nearest pursuit of the leader rounding the turn, but faltered and just lasted long enough to withstand MAECHANCE'S bid. The latter, hustled all the way, closed stoutly between the leaders and would be given third in a few more strides. HARPEN BELLE was unable to obtain clear racing room.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 3:37. Off 3:38½. Winner, W. Wick's ch. g. (4), by Happy Argo—Smart Set. Trained by R. McKeever. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 2-5, 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GAYSET, $10.40, $4.90, $3.20; PATSEY BEGONE, $4.40, $2.70; TERPSICHORE, $2.70.

GAYSET, on the outside, forced a steady pace in the early stages and shook off PATSEY BEGONE when straightened into the stretch, but was ridden out briskly to the end. PATSEY BEGONE had to be hustled in the opening quarter mile to obtain a position, assumed a short lead and saved ground rounding the turn, but faltered from her early effort in the final drive. TERPSICHORE, outrun the first half mile, gained gradually under intermittent punishment the remainder of the trip and would have been second in a few more strides. BROWN MOTH bettered his position steadily from a slow beginning and was going strongest of all at the finish. MARSON lacked speed and ran a very dull race.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The St. Augustine. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:05. Off 4:08½. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NO SIR, $18.60, $6.90, $7.70; NEIGHBOR, $4.20, $4.00; CO-SPORT, $6.30.

NO SIR, displaying marked improvement, was rated off the leaders until straightened into the backstretch, was taken by the outside, moved to the front with a rush, opened up a good lead and held away to the last. NEIGHBOR, going forwardly under light restraint early, moved up stoutly when called upon, but could never reach the winner. CO-SPORT, whipped to the front, forced a fast pace and raced FALSE POINT into defeat, saved ground entering the stretch and held on gamely in the final drive. PALAMEDE gradually improved his position while extremely wide in the last half mile and was slowly gaining at the finish. WARLAINE broke off stride and encountered repeated interference while trying to slip through on the inside. FALSE POINT retired in the last quarter mile.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:36. Off 4:38. Winner, Mrs. P. Bock's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BONNY CLABBER, $8.70, $4.80, $3.70; MAYRO, $6.60, $5.20; OZARK, $6.00.

BONNY CLABBER, on the outside, went in close attendance of the leader in the early running and, responding determinedly to pressure in the final drive, got up in the last strides. MAYRO, quickest to begin, showed good speed while saving ground and continued gamely when the real test came, but was unable to stave off the winner's challenge. OZARK moved up stoutly after leaving the backstretch and held the others safe. SEVENTH INNING finished well. PAY D, lacked speed and dropped out of contention in the early stages and was vigorously urged to make up some ground in the final half mile.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $900; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:06. Off 5:07. Winner, J. Summers' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHITE HOT, $5.80, $3.50, $2.50; O'BANTAM, $4.30, $2.80; PRINCE DEREK, $2.60.

WHITE HOT went to his knees at the start and recovering rapidly, drew out into an easy lead rounding the first turn and rated in front, was never menaced, winning with something to spare. O'BANTAM, vigorously ridden, went closer up then usual in the early stages. Maloney tried to steal through on the outside rounding the lower turn and was blocked by the winner. He continued with determination and was easily second best. PRINCE DEREK, carried out rounding the first turn, dropped out of contention and moved up gamely when called upon to outlast HOLLUSCHICKIE in the final drive. The latter had no mishaps. BIRDLEA retired after going five furlongs.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:36. Off 5:36½. Winner, Mrs. E. Haughton's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALPENGLOW, $20.70, $9.30, $5.40; BOSONIA, $29.50, $9.50; STALAGMITE, $3.70.

ALPENGLOW, going in her best form, took command at once, was rated in front and had something in reserve when challenged and maintained her advantage tenaciously in the final drive. BOSONIA gradually bettered her position in the final half mile on the inside and outlasted STALAGMITE. The latter in closest pursuit of the leader the entire trip, hung when the final test came. WILLIAM V., hard ridden, could not better his position. GOLDEN X. had no excuses. BOW AND ARROW broke well, but dropped out of contention at once, was vigorously ridden, but lacked speed and only passed tired horses in the final furlong.

In answer to N. J. M.—I have been trying to locate that $960 winner of yours at Dade Park some 12 years ago. The horse's name was Orchestration. I'm trailing him down and will let you know as soon as I determine the date. Thanks for your letter. See you at Bowie. BILL.

First Race—Milk seems best placed of the sprinters gathered for this opening event. Gets into action with 104 pounds and Young Charlton to do the riding looks like the right spot. Balcony gets a feather of 101 pounds and is dangerous at the weight. Candar should give a good account of himself.

Second Race—Many Flags has plenty of speed and is tossed into Donoso is riding hard these days and may bring to this home in front what sears to be the right comany, despite the 116-pound assignment. Co-Larmes has worked well and could take it all. Donna Lopez has to be respected if in action.

Third Race—Darby Dallas comes from a stable full of speedy juveniles. This one appears capable of graduating from the maiden ranks briskly and pjromises to do a lot of in this field. Little Bolo has worked running. Eagle Scout is likely to take care of the others.

Fourth Race—Chancer gets my call in this rather open pastel. Charlton should take care of the riding assignment in good fashion. Ladfield has been showing a new lease on life here among the palms and is dangerous. Crowning Glory for the show end.

Fifth Race—The Sears Farm Entry of William Palmer and Steel King appears to have a strong hand in this sprint. William Palmer is the chief reliance of the pair. Sunlpiay is good now and should be close up. Xavier has a good figure and is a possible surprise.

Sixth Race—I'm going to back the combination of Continuity and Jockey Meade in this test. The weight and the route appears right. Gurkha is fit as a fiddle and looms as a serious menace to the top one. Distractable for the minor award.

Seventh Race—Freestone and Playing Dan may battle it out for chief money in this field. Nipponese awakes occasionally and seems to fit in with this kind. Likes the route.

Eighth Race—Celestino meets his kind over a distance in this and I look for him to get home despite the topweight. Makeit and Oncave to fill out the money bracket.

Substitute Race—If this event is used, I'll take Laddie Stone, Tutticurio and Fletus.

Best Bet—Milk.

Testimonial Dinner At Manor Tonight

Manor Country Club, headquarters of the National Capital Field Trial Club, will be the scene tonight of a testimonial dinner for Ford E. Young, secretary of the club for the past 26 years.

The main business to be discussed is the pairing for spring trials to be held tomorrow and Saturday on the Germantown, Md., farm of Walter Johnson.

Illness Causes Meade to Cancel Mounts at Tropical

Tropical Park, Fla., March 22 (AP). Don Meade, leading rider of the year, was suddenly taken ill today and cancelled his mounts in the sixth, seventh and eighth races. Meade, after piloting J. A. Healey's False Point in the mile and a sixteenth race, fifth on the card, reported to the clerk of the scales that he was feeling ill and requested to be taken off the rest of his mounts.

Bolling Field Beats Police Boys Club; St. Martin's Wins Over Takoma Juniors

A pair of upsets rocked the Post-A. A. U. basketball tournament last night, Army Medico nipping Regal Clothiers, 43-41, in the men's unlimited division, and Mount Rainier surprising Agriculture, 14-9, in the women's unlimited section, before 1,200 spectators at Eastern gym.

In the other two contests on the program, St. Martin's 145-pound five outclassed Takoma Junior Fire Department, 52-35, and Bolling Field unlimiteds rallied briskly to defeat Police Boys Club, 44-36.

The Army Medico-Regal battle was perhaps the most thrilling game of the annual tournament to date, the score being tied eight times before the Soldiers, behind a barrage of three baskets by Charles Dickinson, former Yale University star, iced the decision.

Russ Lombardi, former All-High player at Eastern, and Charley McVean, a Catholic University graduate, were outstanding for the losers with 11 and 6 points, respectively.

By virtue of the victory, Army Medico moves into the quarter-final round and will meet Interior Department on Saturday's card.

Bolling Field Gains Quarterfinal Round

Bolling Field swept into the quarter-final round on the wings of a fierce late rally which caught the Police unawares. The score was tied at 35-35—the fifth time it had been deadlocked—when Joe Zwisle dumped in a pair of baskets which seemed to needle the Soldiers into frenzied activity. Dorsey, Lightcap and Govedich then counted in quick order and the victory was clinched. Bolling Field will meet Jewish Community Center and its sensational scorer, Sid Karp, in the quarter-final round Saturday.

Mt. Rainier Girls Defeats Aggies

Mount Rainier's girl sextet, made up of present and former high school stars of the Prince Georges County School, upset Agriculture, winners of The Washington Post Trophy in the Community Center League, by a 14-9 margin. The Mounts will meet Rockville's undefeated defending champions Friday night in the semifinals.

The Ott sisters, Betty and Willa, led the suburbanites to a 10-3 lead at half-time and the game was not close from that point, though the losers cut two points from the half-time margin at the final whistle. Willie O'Steen, District girls tennis champ, led the losers with a field and foul goal for three points.

Cronin Withdrawn Fro mTournament

Maryland's entry in the National Intercollegiate tournament was reduced to one last night when it was announced that Frank Cronin, Southern Conference 155-pound champion, would not make the trip. Cronin wil remain at home to brush up on his chemistry, making up time lost during the regular campaign.

Newton Cox, Conference middleweight champion, previously announced that he would not make the trip because of a desire to try out for the baseball team. That leaves only Ben Alperstein, Conference lightweight title-holder, and national featherweight champion last year, to bring home a crown for the Old Line School.

A Modern Bach Swings Out With Tech High School Jazz Band

A football fullback's school life is not entirely devoted to carrying the pigskin and having your face pushed in the dirt as indicated by Tech High Schhool's star blocker and ball carrier, Freddy Bach, who plays a lot of piano for the Tech Swing Band. He is practicing for the "Swing Time Revue" to be given at McKinley March 31 and April 1. When he isn't rehearsing for the show, Bach works out with the track team, hoping for a pole-vaulting berth. Grouped around him at the piano are (left to right) Louise Brown, another pianist; Betty Cashdollar, dancer; Jack Murray, orchestra leader; Betty Calvert, tap dancer; Doris Wood, singer, and Ann Filgate, chorus leader

Down in Front

With Richards Vidmer

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 22.—Pepper Martin, the Wild Horse of the Osage, who has been put out to pasture, shook his head and sighed.

"No, it ain't the same old Gas House Gang," he said, in reply to an observation. "But it may be a better ball club."

He was speaking, of course, about the St. Louis Cardinals and referring to the days when he and Dizzy Dean and Jimmy (The Ripper) Collins and Leo Durocher and the rest rolled recklessly through the baseball season, laughing along the way and, strangely enough, winning a couple of National League pennants in the process.

VIDMER

Dean has gone to Chicago and Jimmy the Ripper is with him. Durocher is now a serious-minded manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Most of the other members of the Gas House Gang have scattered, and the Wild Horse of the Osage isn't as young and spry and full of fun as he used to be. He even has disbanded his mudcat band. It's all part of the Cardinals' effort to play more baseball and less music, win more games and fewer laughs.

They have assembled 54 players here at their St. Petersburg camp, but their new manager, Ray Blades, still doesn't know which ones will take the field when the season starts next month. So far he has tried several combinations, and all have done well, for the Cardinals are leading the Grapefruit League, if they never lead another.

Johnny Mize, of course, is a fixture at first base, and the fleet-footed Don Gutteridge at third. But the other two infield positions are wide open to half a dozen aspirants. Right now it would seem that Lynn Myers would get the call at second.

Another Rabbit

He's a little fellow, built along the lines of the irresistible Rabbit Maranville of unforgettable memory. And he's as catlike and quick in the field as the Rabbit was in his palmiest days. To look at him the first thought would be that he couldn't hit. Yet he batted .307 for Asheville last season and this spring he has been hammering the ball around with surprising strength.

Every time he comes through with a hit you are inclined to experience a feeling of amazement, yet he does it over and over again. He broke up a game with the Yankees the other day, driving in the winning run with a single in the ninth inning, and the day before he pounded out a double and a pair of singles against the Red Sox pitchers.

He's the younger brother of Billy Myers, shortstop of the Cincinnati Reds, but unlike Billy, he is a gay, happy little fellow having a lot of fun out of playing baseball and completely confident that he is a big leaguer.

Another Tony

The leading shortstop candidate is a young San Francisco Italian named Joe Orengo, who spent last season with Sacramento in the Pacific Coast League. And those who have watched him closely see another Tony Lazzeri in the making.

"He's only 23 years old," one observer said, "but like Tony, he knows what it's all about and has taken charge of the infield right from the beginning. He's a smart kid and has all the assurance in the world. Remember how Lazzeri came up and took command even when he was only a youngster? Well, Orengo is like that."

L. I. U. Defeats Loyola in N. Y. Tourney Final

New York, March 22.— Long Island University's Blackbirds tonight won the second annual national invitation basketball tournament, defeating Loyola of Chicago, 44-22, in the finals and completing an all-triumphant season of 23 straight victories.

Loyola, which had reached the finals by halting St. John's Monday night, had not been defeated in 20 previous games this season but tonight the mid Westerners' attack was not good enough to pierce the Long Island defense.

A crowd of 18,033 sat niMadison Square Garden and watched Long Island stake a strong claim to the mythical national title after sweeping through one of the toughest schedules in the land without a defeat. The total attendance for three nights of play was 50,682 compared to 40,423 last year when Temple won the first invitation tourney, sponsored by the Metropolitan Basketball Writers' Association.

Terp Athletes Receive Awards At Banquet

Nine Basketball Players and Eight Boxers Honored

Nine basketball players and eight boxers who helped compile one of Maryland's finest indoor athletic records this year were honored with letters last night at a banquet at Indian Spring Country Club.

Members of the track squad which also enjoyed unusual success in Southern Conference competition were guests at the fete. Captain W. A. Maglin, assistant boxing coach, proved a clever toastmaster. A. C. Byrd, president of Maryland; Congressman W. P. Cole, member of the Board of Regents, and Dr. C. O. Appleman, dean of the Graduate School, made short speeches.

The basketball letters were presented by Coach Burt Shipley to Captain George Knepley, George DeWitt, Eddie Johnson, Adam Bengoechea, Pershing Mondorff, Gene Ochsenreiter, Francis Beamer, Dick Shaffer and Bill Rea, and Manager Harvey Simms. The team finished as runner-up to Wake Forest in the Conference championship tournament.

Members of the boxing squad which won the Conference title in a great upset were Benny Alperstein, Frank Cronin and Newton Cox, individual champions, Bob Bradley, George Dorr, Nathan Askin, Morty Steinbach and Herman Raisin. Manager Warren Steiner also was awarded a "M."

The honor list of trackmen included the names of Joe Murphy, Allan Miller, Jim Kehoe, Mason Chronister, Tommy Fields, Ed Miller and Manager Sam LeFrak.

Diesel School Pinmen Snap Long Losing Streak

After losing 66 consecutive games the last place Washington Diesel School won its first of the year in the Recreation Bowling League at Recreation Alleys last night when the Diesel boys took the first skirmish from American Window Cleaners by 12 pins. Capt. George Wright's last box doubleheader proved the winning margin. However, the Cleaners came back and took the next two tilts.

Episcopal High Closes 7-Meet Track Schedule

Virginia Champions To Open Season With Eastern April 13

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, March 22.—Completion of a seven-meet schedule for Episcopal High School's track was announced today by Bickerton W. (Bick) Cardwell, director of athletics. All but two meets will be contested away from home.

The Maroons will be coached by Charlie Tomkins, who has led them to five State prep championships in the past decade, while Tom Todd, veteran hurdles and dash entry, will serve as captain. Billy Suhling, pole-vaulter and high-jumper, has been named alternate captain.

A pair of Washington schools, Eastern and McKinley Tech, will furnish opposition in the only two home meets, on April 13 and 21 respectively. Tech has also been carded for a junior varsity meet, to be held here April 28.

Episcopal will be called on to defend championships in two major prep school events, the State championship meet at Charlottesville on May 6, and the Central High School "C" Club classic on May 20.

The Maroons go into the outdoor season boasting a clean slate, having won out in their only two indoor starts. Late in January they took a dual-meet decision from the University of Virginia freshmen, while last month they copped first place in the prep school division of the annual Southern Conference indoor tests at Chapel Hill, N. C.

The schedule follows:

April 13, Eastern High, at home; 21, McKinley Tech, at home; 28, Junior varsity vs. McKinley Tech, at home.

May 1, the Hill School, at Pottstown, Pa.; 6, State Prep School meet, at Charlottesville; 13, Woodberry-Forest School, at Orange; 20, Central High School "C" Club meet, at Central.

The four best teams in the 12-team Senior Basketball League begin play for the city title on Saturday night at the Armory Hall, when a pair of games will inaugurate playoffs for the championship. Pairings will be determined at a meeting of managers of the four teams and league officials on Friday night.

The Brighter Side...

We were readihg a piece in the paper the other day about Jacques Bustanoby, old-time New York restaurant man, taking issue with Julius Keller, another ancient in that line, on certain claims made by Julius in a book he recently authored, called "Inns and Outs."

Those fellows were contemporaries in a bygone era of big-town night life, and Keller, in his book, says he is the grandpappy of the modern night-club floor show and of that "celebrity night" thing which still survives, we are unhappy to say, in spots.

Bustanoby, who at 60 is going to open a new place near the New York World's Fair grounds, claimed he used to put on celebrity nights at his Beaux Arts Cafe at Fortieth street and Sixth avenue as far back as 1907. That Beaux Arts, by the way, was a terrific place in its time, though Bustanoby later topped it with the Domino Room in his Cafe de la Paix at Columbus Circle.

Technical Stuff

This was around 1913, and the Domino Club was pretty much like the high-toned night clubs of today, though we are inclined to think it was a little higher-toneder or, perhaps, higher-toned. However, that has nothing to do with this small argument that has cropped up between these two bottle-scarred (and we do mean bottle, dear copy reader) veterans of the Chapel Hill, N. C. period.

We do not know who invented "celebrity night," and if we did, and the inventor was a friend of ours, we would keep his identity secret, for we understand an infuriated multitude is still looking

How Do You Like Your Whiskey... Rich or Mild?

IT'S a matter of personal taste. If you like hearty highballs, you are more apt to favor Seagram's 7 Crown—a richer flavored whiskey.

If you like your drinks "lighter-tasting", you will probably choose Seagram's 5 Crown. It is an extremely mild whiskey with a soft bouquet and a pleasingly delicate flavor.

The better bars give you a choice. Whichever you prefer, "7" or "5", there is satisfaction in knowing that you are pouring yourself a drink of "America's Finest". At your favorite bar or package store.

Dorothy Kirby Tops Jane Cothran Gains Semifinals in Women's Title Play

By the Associated Press.

Augusta, March 22.—Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C., the defending champion, fell by the wayside today as Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, led the field into the semifinals of the Ninth Augusta Women's Golf Tournament.

Two down going to twelve after making the turn all even, Miss Kirby steadied ner game to vanquish Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., 3 and 1. Her next opponent will be Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., who turned back Miss Dettweiler, 1 up, today.

In the lower bracket, the veteran Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, overwhelmed Isabel Ogilvie, of Augusta, 7 and 6, and tomorrow will play Alice Rutherfurd, of Alamuchy, N. J., who eliminated Mrs. Edward L. Howe, of Philadelphia, 2 and 1, today.

he can keep going. Rick Ferrell and Angelo Guiliani will do the catching.

Catcher Joe Glenn and Outfielder Myril Hoag, obtained by St. Louis from the New York Yankees, may help the Browns, but Manager Fred Haney is in the position of having one pitcher—Buck Newsom—and a bunch of boys who are nice to their parents, but aren't very effective at throwing baseballs.

A's Prospects Good

From last season, he has Howard Mills, Jim Walkup, Fred Johnson and Newsom. Bill Trotter, brought up from San Antonio where he won 22 games last season, looks promising and so does John Kramer who won 20 for San Antonio in 1938. The outfield probably will be Mel Almada and Roy Bell, holdovers from last year, and Hoag who could turn out to be quite a ball player for St. Louis. George McQuinn will be on first, Don Heffner on second, probably Ralph Kress at short and Harland Clift at third. The Browns just nosed out the Athletics for seventh place in 1938, and there is no indication that they will do any better this year.

Connie Mack has good prospects in Bill Lillard, a rookie shortstop from San Francisco, and Joe Gantenbein who played third base for Toronto last year, but may be shifted to second this season. But he is going to need lots more like them before he can haul his team out of the cellar. Mack may be able to get some pitching out of Bill Beckman who won 20 games for Atlanta last season, Bob Joyce, who won 18 for Oakland, and Henry Pippen who won 17 and lost 8 for Sacramento. He also is taking a look at Roy Parmelee who knocked around the National League for several years and now comes up from Minneapolis. If Sam Chapman, the West Coast football star, can regain the batting form he had early last season, Mack may produce a fairly powerful outfield. Chapman slumped badly as the season went on last year, but for a while he was the terror of the league. The Athletics have Wally Moses, Bob Johnson and Lou Finney from last year's squad and Dee Miles, brought up from Chattanooga, is receiving a tryout.

Randolph-Macon Dates Announced

Mid-South Golf Title Won By Patty Berg

Mrs. Page Finishes Seven Strokes Behind; Mrs. Leo Walper 3d

By the Associated Press.

Southern Pines, N. C., March 22. Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, won today her second consecutive Women's Midsouth golf tournament with a 54-hole score of 223, seven strokes ahead of her nearest rival and 26 under par for the three rounds.

Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, N. C., from whom Patty wrested the National Championship last year, finished second with 230.

Mrs. Leo Walper, of Washington, was third with 254, and Mrs. Thomas Rudel, of New York, fourth with 257.

Miss Berg's rounds of 75-73-75 set a record for women at the Southern Pines Country Club's course.

complete one of the finest amateur lineups ever gathered in this sector. In addition, there is last year's Maryland State four-ball champs Elliott Spicer and Leroy Sasscer.

With this lineup intact for the club team championship this year, Congressional's strangle-hold on the Maryland State title would be greatly endangered.

Jamison's golf shop assistant include one of many brothers but the only younger one, Paul (Brownie) and Bruce Aaron, who will help out in weekends until school closes. Paul is developing into a good assistant, and boasts a fair golf game.

Mrs. Alma Von Steiner, starting her fourth year as club manager, under Tom Moore who has been in California, may assist the women's golf team in its crack at the local title in addition to her many other duties from being in complete charge of the club's operation. Mrs. Von Steiner is assistde by Harvey Wright.

No Alterations

Charles Leadingham, in the role of head greenskeeper, has no major changes planned but keeping the course, often called the section's No. 1 layout, in its expected shape is job enough.

The board of governors includes Dr. A. Thomas Utz, Arthur Urban, Earl W. Clary, John F. Feeney, Harry and John Bachman. Cliary is also golf committee chairman, and is assisted by K. S. Giles, William Walsh, Feeney and John Bachman. Clary's group released the attractive club card last week.

The yearly rumors of Indian Spring's turning public were quickly dispelled by Mrs. Von Steiner, who cut down on the tournament play at the club last year, and firmly declared that everything was satisfactory, and there would be no changes.

Jamison, whose lessons were near the top among the local pros last year, is going to further the progress of the women's team with group instruction beginning next week.

four hits in the first six innings, but they began to reach Smythe in the seventh. Wasdell reached him for a homer into centerfield, and after Rick Ferrell walked Leonard dumped a single into left. With one out, Lewis produced two more runs with a three-bagger over the centerfielder's head. That cut Minneapolis' lead to 5-4, and in the eighth, against Tauscher, the Nats came up with the tying run almost immediately. Jimmy Bloodworth shot his triple down the rightfield foul line, and Rick Ferrell whipped a run-scoring single to left.

for him. But we are pretty sure that the men now living who can remember the origin of the night-club floor show are fewer than the survivors of Pickett's Brigade.

As a matter of fact, if you want to get right technical about it, the floor show goes back to the very dawn of history. We are given to understand that those old Romans were great fellows for floor shows. They liked nothing better than lolling back on cushions and gorging themselves with the choicest viands while bevies of dancing girls, with no more garments on them than so many Palm Beach society bathing beauties wear, went through their didoes.

Sheer Technique

The only difference between those Roman festivities and the modern night-club floor show, as we read our history, is that the Romans got better food and had no masters of ceremonies. We hear they got rid of the latter by throwing them to the lions. To this day, persons descended even remotely from those old Romans unconsciously turn their thumbs down on entering a night club and finding a master of ceremonies carrying on. It is just sheer instinct.

In this country, we had the rough outline of the night club floor show idea in the old time honky-tonks of the Western Frontier. They were scattered from the Mississippi River to the golden sands of California. Most of them, for quite sound reasons, were called "The Bucket O' Blood." They were saloons with entertainment by male and female performers and with curtained boxes overlooking a stage. In these boxes the ladies of the ensemble made merry, and so forth, with the gents in between acts.

But there is no sense in our describing the honky-tonk of the frontier period. The little children in the street are now familiar with them, due to the high-minded efforts of the producer of motion pictures in Hollywood to give the tiny tots their best entertainment through the medium of American historical presentations which never fail to depict these deadfalls.

Modern Floor Show

The modern night club floor show is not vastly different in its essentials from the divertissement afforded by the old honky-tonks, except that we do not think it is now as chaste. You must bear in mind the curtained boxes of the honks.

It is our belief that the modern night club floor show originated in San Francisco, though we would not bet on it. Some fellow is sure to come along with disputation and perhaps proof that the discredit belongs to New Orleans, or some other city. You have no idea of the intensity of municipal rivalry these days.

We are now talking about the night club, or restaurant floor show, not just saloon entertainment. They had that everywhere they had a saloon. The first fellow we ever heard of putting a show in a regular restaurant was a chap in San Francisco whose name, if memory serves, was Tony Lubelski. His show was not actually on the floor, however. It was on a raised stage.

This idea afterwards spread all over the country. Then some genius went a step farther and removed the stage and threw the entertainment right in the laps of the customers, where it remains to this day, much to the discomfort of the customers. For a short time during the prohibition era when night clubs were genteel speakeasies and not have too much room, the entertainment was thrown in the customer's hair.

We hope some our elderly readers will tell us their earliest recollections of old time night club floor shows. Unless, of course, like some of the modern night club floor shows, they are hateful memories that they do not wish to recall.

Cards National League Enigma As New Pilot Gets His Bearings

Blades 'Window Shopping' to See What Club Needs; Hopes Hinge on Rookies and Durability of Veteran Pitching Arms

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 22.—The St. Louis Cardinals, always a hard team to figure out, are living up to their reputation. They can't be figured out of the pennant race this year despite the fact they are a walking quiz contest and have a skipper fresh up from the minors.

Ray Blades was dropped into the Red Bird nest from Rochester to succeed Frankie Frisch, and, like a man with a new zipper suit, he won't know just what to think of it until he finds out how the gadgets work.

Right now he's more or less window shopping to see what he needs. "They tell me I'm weak around second base," he opined, "and from my observation that's right. Pitchers? Anybody can always use a few good pitchers."

The general idea among Cardinal followers is that the club will be stronger than the one which finished runner-up for fifth place last year.

If—there's the old standby again—if young pitchers who show promise come through; if something can be done to bolster second base and shortstop, and if some of the older arms on the mound stand the wear and tear, the team will be in the thick of the pennant fight. If none of these "ifs" work out, the Cards can reserve a room with bath in the second division.

Blades has one advantage in stepping up from the minors to the majors. Several of the youngsters he directed at Rochester and Columbus have been sent up to the Cards and he knows what they can do and whether they are playing up to their capabilities.

On Fishing

There is a slight varience in the trout season dates in West Virginia as noted in several national publications, and those released during the past week, which make the season, April 29 to and including July 9. Black bass season is the same as last year. The new regulations are being printed now and will be ready for distribution next week.

ACKERMAN

There are several changes and new regulations in Virginia that anglers should note. The open season on trout is from 5:30 a. m., April 20 to 1 hour after sunset, July 5. Between these dates it is lawful to fish for trout only from 1 hour before sunrise to 1 hour after sunset, based on Eastern standard time. This regulation is effective with the opening of the season on April 20, 1939.

It is now unlawful to sell or buy large and small mouth black bass, or red-eye, brook and rainbow trout, crappie, or silver perch, bream and other sunfish, and pike taken in the inland waters of the State of Virginia.

Open Season

There is also in Virginia, starting on April 16, an open season on crappie until February 28, for all counties west of the Blue Ridge Mountains and all counties in the northern Virginia Supervisory District. This regulation does not become effective until April 1, 1939 so that the closed season for spawning will only cover a period of 16 days. Bag limits on crappie, perch, bream and other sunfish shall not exceed 25 of either or all species a day. Continuous open season on perch, bream and other sun fish.

The counties this new closed season on crappie affects are Albemarle ,Alleghany, Arlington, Augusta, Bath, Bland, Potetourt, Buchanon, Carroll, Clarke, Craig, Culpepper, Dickinson, Fairfax, Farquier, Floyd, Frederick, Giles, Grayson, Greene, Highland, King George, Lancaster, Lee, Loudounn, Madison, Mongomery, Northumberland, Orange, Page, Prince William, Pulaski, Rappahannock, Richmond, Roanoke, Rockbridge, Rockingham, Russell, Scott, Shenandoah, Smythe, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Tazewell, Warren, Washington, Westmoreland, Wise and Wythe.

Montgomery County, Md., is to receive for her trout streams this week a 1,000 adult brookies from 10 to 14 inches in length. Reuben Riggs, of the Rockville Chapter of Ike Waltons, will have charge of stocking operations. Three hundred will be released in Prince Keorges streams this week also.

Stock Md. Streams

There has been stocked in Maryland streams for the opening of trout season next week some 38,000 rainbow and brook trout; all of them better than 8 inches and many from 12 to 14 inches. In addition there is about 40,000 being held in reserve to stock the heavily fished streams as they are caught out.

This is National Wildlife Week—a rally of all organizations interested in conservation. The distribution of Wildlife Week poster stamps is a major activity of the National Wildlife Federation and its affiliates. Have you done your part by pushing a dollar bill across the counter for your set?

"Ding" Darling says: "Dictatorship is one of the results of the exhaustion of natural resources." an ddraws sensational comparisons between conditions in Europe and Asia and the prospect of further destruction of outdoor wealth in the United States.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, March 22 (AP).—The hog market was generally steady today on light weights and steady to 10 cents higher on others. Cattle were steady to lower and sheep were about steady.

(United States Department of Agriculture).—HOGS—Receipts, 10,000; light hogs generally steady with Tuesday's average; others opened steady to 10 higher; closed mostly steady to strong; top, 7.75; bulk good and choice, 180-230 pounds, 7.60@7.75; 240-270 pourds, 7.35@7.60; 280-330 pounds, 7.00@7.35; good, 400-550 pounds, packing sows, 6.25@6.65; lighter butchers kinds to 6.75.

CATTLE—Receipts, 9,000; salable calves, 1,200; liberal supply fed steers here but light and long yearling steers scarce; market fully steady on strictly good, choice and prime yearlings and weighty steers, but weak to 25 lower on others; mostly 9.00@12.00 trade; only moderate supply sold early; mostly 11.00 and upward; early top, 13.75, paid for approximately 1,500-pound averages; best light steers, 12.75; yearlings, 12.50; fed heifers steady to 25 lower; cows, 10@15 off; bulls weak at 7.25 down; vealers steady, lights, 9.50 down; weighty select up to 11.00 paid sparingly.

SHEEP—Receipts, 9,000; late Tuesday killing classes, 25@40 higher; lamb top, 9.50; bulk, under 100 pounds, 9.25@9.50; loads averaging 100-117 pounds, 8.75@9.25; top, 91-pound fed Western ewes, 5.75; today's trade around steady on fat lambs; early bids, 9.25@9.35 by larger interests; best held 9.50@9.60 and better; sheep scarce, about steady on few here.

Foreign Markets

By the Associated Press.

London, March 22.—Continued offerins of securities from the continent and provinces caused further weakness in the stock market today. Industrial shares were exceptionally heavy and oils declined on Paris selling. Domestic rails lost ground despite satisfactory traffic returns and metal tobacco and brewery issues closed heavy. British funds were offered freely and transatlantics turned weak after early firmness.

Paris—The bourse closed weak today with government bonds and banking shares in supply. Rentes declined 60 to 110 centimes and Bank of France was down 245 francs. Sues Canal lost over 300 francs and Royal Dutch about 200.

Liverpool—Trade and professional support in cotton futures was offset by scattered liquidation and hedging. Final prices were 1 point higher to 5 down. Renewed uncertainty over the course of events in Europe and lessening of Argentine wheat pressure caused shorts to cover in wheat futures and attracted new buying. The market's close was steady, ¼ to ⅝d net higher.

Banker Speaks At Dumbarton In AIB Series

Presented as Part of Local Educational Campaign for Public

In connection with the program of the public education committee of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, which calls for the presentation of prepared talks pertaining to the functions and activities of banks to various educational institutions in Washington, Richard A. Norris, vice president of the Lincoln National Bank, delivered a talk at Dumbarton College yesterday afternoon. His subject was "Our Banks and What They Need."

Wallace Schreiner of the First National Bank of Alexandria, Va., delivered the second talk which he has made on behalf of the committee, at the George Washington High School, Alexandria, discussing as his topic "General Functions of a Bank."

Bowling Tournament

The athletic committee of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, headed by Stephen O. Porter, Riggs National Bank, has announced the chapter's annual bowling tournament. It will be held at the Arcade Bowling Alleys, Saturday at 2 p. m. All entries must be in by this afternoon.

Mr. Porter is being assisted in arranging this tournament by the following committee members: Franklin A. Gibbons, Riggs National Bank; William T. Bobb, Bank of Commerce & Savings; James Walden, Second National Bank; Ralph R. Kidwell, Security Savings & Commercial; Samuel C. Redman, Lincoln National Bank; John S. Warner, Union Trust Co.; Malvern F. Morse and Robert P. Talley, American Security & Trust Co., and Alton C. McAllister, Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Cotton Futures Depressed by European News

New York, March 22 (AP).—European news acted as a depressant in the cotton futures market today, the close showing losses of 2 to 8 points.

Final levels were a little above the lows due to some last minute professional covering. Ranged in the selling side at one time or another during the session were spot interests, brokers representing Bombay dealers and local commission houses.

Cottonseed Oil

Liquidation in cottonseed oil futures proved light today aside from a little commission selling of near deliveries. Closing prices were unchanged to 2 points lower on sales of 173 lots. Steadiness of hogs and cotton offset weaker lard quotations.

May ended 6.87; July, 7.03; September, 7.14 bid; October, 7.16 bid; November, 7.16 bid.

Crude oil was quoted at 5¾@5¾ in the Southeast and valley, and 5.50@5.60 in Texas.

United Air Traffic Up 16% in February

Chicago, March 22.—United Air Lines reported a total of 5,628,531 revenue passenger miles flown during the month of February.

This represented an increase of 16 per cent over the corresponding month of 1938, when a total of 4,849,578 revenue passenger miles were flown, and a decrease of 8 per cent over January, 1939.

Stock Seat $60,000, Decrease of $10,000

New York, March 22 (AP).—Arrangements were made today for transfer of a seat in the New York Stock Exchange for $60,000, a decline of $10,000 from the preceding sale and equal to the lowest price paid thus far in the year.

The previous transfer at $70,000 was the highest price of the year.

1938 Railroad Purchases Lowest In Five Years

Purchases of fuel, materials and supplies used by the class 1 railroads in the United States in connection with their operation amounted to $583,282,000 in 1938, J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday.

Purchases in 1938 were less than in any year since 1933 and were a reduction of $383,101,000 under those in 1937. This reduction under the preceding year resulted primarily from the serious financial condition of the railroads, and from enforced reductions in maintenance work, as well as increased efficiency in operation which particularly affected fuel purchases. In 1930 railway purchases for fuel, materials and supplies amounted to $1,038,500,000.

Class 1 railroads in 1938 expended $243,738,000 for fuel compared with $294,293,000 in 1937. Purchases of forest products amounted to $56,968,000 in 1938 compared with $104,707,000 in 1937. Class 1 railroads, in 1937, purchased iron and steel products amounting to $152,176,000 compared with $359,409,000 in 1937, or a decrease of $207,233,000. Miscellaneous purchases totaled $130,355,000 in 1938 compared with $207,974,000 in 1937 and included $19,594,000 for glass, drugs and chemicals; $14,237,000 for lubricating oils and grease; $12,958,000 for stationery and printing; $15,888,000 for commissary supplies; $8,051,000 for all electrical materials; $7,240,000 for ballast; $3,696,000 for passenger car trimmings, and $5,792,000 for locomotive, train and station supplies.

Chase Bank Issues Booklet on Money

New York, March 22.—The Chase National Bank of New York has prepared a booklet illustrating 18 of the most interesting pieces of money in its "Exhibit of Moneys," numbering 50,000 specimens.

Moneys illustrated range from from Chinese "Dress" money of about 2000 B. C. to the "Wooden Nickel" scrip money issued by Blaine, Wash., during the bank holiday in 1933. Copies of the booklet are available upon request.

Stocks Decline With Foreign Developments; Rails and Treasury Issues Dip on Bond Market

New York, March 2.—Sharp declines in stocks and domestic corporate bonds particularly those of the lower grade, and softness in the United States Government bond list accompanied further Reich victories on the European checkerboard today. The foreign developments did not come as surprises; they had been forecast ever since Czecho-Slovakia was swallowed up last week. Yet their culmination rained more blows on confidence and as far as financial markets were concerned, more than eliminated the gains of the technical rebound of the previous day.

The street did not feel that war was brought any nearer by the day's developments but that Germany had further improved her position. Rome's approval of the latest German aggression had been anticipated as had the signing of a trade treaty between the Reich and Rumania and the surrender of Memel by Lithuania. But the prospect of open warfare in Europe does not appear to have come any nearer.

Reaction Is Severe

The reaction was particularly severe in stocks today, pivotal issues, in many cases, opened down 1 and 2 points. There was a modest recovery in mid-session but selling broke out again later and declines of fractions to 4 points were numerous at the close. The composite recorded an average decline of 1.26 points and at the lowest point of the day this average was only 0.88 point away from the low of the year made on January 26. No group was spared in the decline, even the aviations giving up an average of 1.77 points. The possibility of profits being limited in the event of war contributed to some of the selling of these shares.

Steel Most Active

Steel was the most active stock of the day and closed off 3 points and Bethlehem was down nearly 4. Chrysler gave up 4 and General Motors 1¾. Losses of other leaders included American Smelting, 2⅜; Consolidated Edison, 1¼; Du Pont, 1½; Goodyear, 2¼; Manville, 3⅛; United Aircraft, 2⅛ and Westinghouse, 4.

The tenor of business news at the middle of the week was not such as to promise any nearby broad expansion, and such favorable items as there were, could not offset the bearish influence of foreign developments. Electric power output was reported as 10.3 per cent above that of the corresponding week, but this margin of improvement compared with 11.1 per cent recorded by the previous week.

Tin Quotas Cut

Action of the International Tin Committee at The Hague today in again cutting export quotas was not entirely in line with trade predictions of recent days. Expectations had been that tin-plate output would have picked up substantially in March.

Some of the canners still have a large carryover from last year, although stocks have been moving freely in recent weeks. Lack of vigor in most nonferrous metal markets is paradoxical in view of the war threats. Complexity of controls, on supplies as well as on trading, and the large stocks of metal on hand are doubless deterrents in the present situation.

Bond Trading Lower

Listed bonds receded today on a renewal of apprehensions regarding European developments. Foreign dollar issues slumped heavily and almost without exception. United States Treasury bonds and best-grade domestic corporate issues were marked lower by small fractions. Speculative domestic bonds fell sharply, owing to the gloom that pervaded all markets. Turn-over was $6,980,000, with the thinness of the market contributing to the drop.

Foreign Issues Dip

Belgian bonds fell 1 to 2 points on fears that there may be no limit to Hitler's territorial ambitions. The German group was soft, and Hungarians fell to fresh lows. Scandinavians found little support, although ordinarily they are quite firm. Italian 7s sought lowest levels of the year, while Polish bonds dropped 1 to 3 points. Australians dipped sharply, and Canadians lost fractional ground. The Latin-American default section fell with other bonds.

Lockheed Net Three Times 1937 Earnings

$442,111 Compares With $137,919 for Previous Year

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 22.—Earnings of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, in 1938 tripled those of 1937, the company's president, Robert E. Gross, reported today. Net income last year was $442,111, or 67 cents a share on common stock, compared with $137,919, or 21 cents a share, in 1937.

Describing development of military planes, Gross said: "It is apparent that power in the air is becoming a telling factor in determining the course of nations, and that this increase in the activity of all airplane building countries will surely intensify the struggle for markets of the individual companies building planes."

Unfilled orders totaled $32,500,000 on March 1, compared with $5,830,000 at the end of 1937.

Glenn Martin Profits Rise

Baltimore.—The Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co. reported today its net profit for 1938 was $2,349,355, more than double the $1,144,858 profit of 1937.

The 1938 profit, figured after all charges were deducted, was equal to $2.15 per share on shares now outstanding. Based on the shares outstanding on December 10, the earnings were equal to $2.51 per share.

Net sales in 1938 were $12,417,417, compared to $7,839,356 in 1937. The operating profit last year was $9,350,484, while in 1937 it was $6,252,490.

Pullman Inc.

Chicago — Pullman Incorporated, large railroad equipment and sleeping car transportation concern, today reported 1938 consolidated earnings of $2,295,829, or 59 cents a share, compared with $12,275,950, or $3.17, in 1937.

Otis Elevator Net Drops

New York.—Otis Elevator Co. reported today for 1938 net income of $1,912,730, equal to 76 cents a common share, compared with $3,592,325, or $1.60 a share in 1937.

N. Y. Banks Wary As to Transfers of Czech Accounts

New York, March 22 (AP).—New York banks are carefully scrutinizing all requests for transfers of Czecho-Slovak accounts, it was learned today.

Authorities estimated the total of such accounts held here at something more than $1,000,000—only a fraction of the Czecho-Slovak accounts held in London and Paris where the British and French governments have taken steps to prevent their transfer to the German government.

The United States Government was understood to have made an "informal request" to the local banks to refrain from making any "unusual transfers" of Czecho-Slovak credits until the European situation is clarified.

The National Bank of Czecho-Slovakia, now taken over by Germany, has gold under earmark in London, but the Czecho-Slovak credits in New York are reported as private accounts rarely ranging above $10,000 each.

Prince Georges Schools Budget Asks $503,283

1940 Figure Is $33,000 Increase, Supt. Orem Says

PRINCE GEORGES COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, 42 University rd., Calvert Hills, Md. Telephone GReenwood 5539.

The Prince Georges County school budget for 1939-40 calls for an increased county appropriation of $33,000 over last year, Supt. Nicholas Orem revealed yesterday.

The board of education has submitted to the county commissioners a request for $503,283, as compared to $467,800 allotted last year. An additional $28,000 for operation of the two schools at Greenbelt is also asked. This amount is listed separately since the Farm Security Administration has contracted to reimburse the county for this outlay.

The total estimated cost of operating the schools for the next year is $891,453. Estimated receipts from the State and other sources amount to $360,170.

Supt. Orem said the higher cost of schools was due chiefly to a heavy increase in enrollment and to a legislative act requiring that the term for colored schools be lengthened from 8 8-10 months to 10 months.

The budget asks for $15,000 for new teachers to take care of the enrollment increase and $10,000 for pay increases to colored teachers as the result of the extended school terms.

Supt Orem pointed out that the budget request for the coming year is only about $5,000 higher than the school appropriation for 1932-33 when the enrollment was 13,000 as compared to 17,000 today.

Seek Land for School

Upper Marlboro—Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday negotiations were under way to acquire a 7-acre tract of tax delinquent property in Mount Rainier as a site for a new Mount Rainier-Brentwood School.

The property, located between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-second streets near the boundary line between the two towns, can be obtained for approximately $1,000, Orem said.

Purchase of an alternative site in Brentwood has been urged by residents of that town. Orem pointed out, however, that this property could not be acquired for less than $14,000.

Orem said he had been assured by Perry Boswell, one of the trustees for the Mount Rainier property, that the school board could secure quit-claim deeds to the land. The mayor and council of Mount Rainier already have tentatively agreed to waive the accrued town taxes on the property, Orem said.

If the property is acquired, the superintendent said it would be used as a playground for Brentwood and Mount Rainier children until funds are provided for construction of the proposed school.

Taxes Paid Said Bourne

University Park.—There is no problem of delinquent taxes in this town, Mayor T. Earle Bourne announced yesterday. Even taxes on vacant lots are paid up through last September when the bills for the current year were sent out, he said.

Reports on Plane Crashes

Bladensburg.—The Air Safety Board yesterday reported to the Civil Aeronautics Authority the results of investigations into two air crashes in Prince Georges County, one in Bladensburg and the other near Hyattsville.

The report blamed a stalled motor for a crash near Hyattsville in which Edgar C. Kegley was slightly injured last October 21. In the other accident, involving Pilot Edward W. Stitt and a passenger, C. E. Martz, failure of the elevator control cable was said to be the cause. The crash occurred October 30.

The Air Safety Board recommended that no disciplinary action be taken in either case.

Bank to Close Saturday

The Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., Hyattsville and Mount Rainier, will be closed Saturday in observance of Maryland Day, William Bowie, treasurer, announced.

Hyattsville Carrier Added

Hyattsville.—Appointment of an additional regular carrier at the Hyattsville postoffice has been authorized by the Postoffice Department, according to Egbert F. Tingley, acting postmaster, who said Charles C. Tessier, substitute carrier and clerk for the past two years, has been recommended and approved for the position. The additional appointment raises the complement of the Hyattsville office to five regular city carriers. Tingley said that services of another carrier was made necessary by the rapidly expanding delivery area of the office.

Cumberland Eagles To Hear National Head

Cumberland, Md., March 22.—Maryland's largest lodge, Cumberland Aerie, No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will be paid an official visit tomorrow by Dr. Fred C. Dilley, of Brazil, Ind., national president.

A record-breaking attendance is expected, according to local lodge officials, who said that in addition to the 1,500 members of Cumberland Aerie, members from nearby towns have been invited.

School Fetes Slated

Waynesboro, Pa., March 22—The annual dinner dance of the senior class of the Waynesboro high school will be held May 23. The social function follows bacallaureate on May 21. Commencement exercises will be held May 25.

Arlington Urged to Grow With U. S. Aid

Co-operation Needed For Development, Women Voters Told

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, Clarendon, Va., Tel. OXford 0500

Addressing the meeting of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County yesterday in the Arlington Methodist Church, Col. Christopher B. Garnett, chairman of the county planning commission, said the closest co-operation with Federal Government agencies is necessary for the proper development of the county.

The first step forward and one of the main improvements that started the development of Arlington County, he said, was the county water system, made possible through co-operation of the Federal Government. The second was the installation of the county sewer system, which came through the co-operation with the Federal Government by means of the PWA and the New Deal.

"To fail to continue to co-operate with the Federal Government in its plans for development along the Potomac River would, in my opinion, be a great mistake," said Col. Garnett.

"We have no funds for the development of parks, but if the county authorities co-operate with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission by appropriating $25,000 to match a like sum by the State we will have the second unit of the George Washington Memorial Parkway constructed by the Government, which will include its maintenance and the development of parks.

One of the greatest needs in Arlington County today is more highways to handle the increased traffic and another bridge across the Potomac River into Washington."

Discussing zoning, he said, it was doubtful if Lee boulevard could be maintained as residential over its entire length. Whatever changes are made, he stressed the point that they should be made with the full co-operation with the Federal Government.

"The boulevard should be maintained as a high speed highway into Washington and I consider it a mistake to permit homes to be erected directly on it with entrances onto the boulevard every 50 or 100 feet which adds to traffic hazards. Entrances onto the boulevard should be at least one-half mile apart, otherwise there is grave danger of many serious accidents," Col. Garnett said.

G. O. P. Club Meeting

Country Club Hills.—Representative Robert J. Corbett, of Pennsylvania, will be guest speaker at the fifteenth annual banquet of the Arlington County Republican Club tonight at the Washington Golf and Country Club at 7:30 o'clock.

John R. Hutchison, club president, will introduce the toastmaster, William P. Ames, member of the county board. Among other guests will be Mrs. T. K. Bowers, of Pennsylvania, County Court Judge B. M. Hedrick and Mrs. Hedrick. Miss Ann Hedrick is general chairman in charge of the arrangements.

Banquet Tickets Available

Clarendon—Carol F. Winchester, business manager of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce, yesterday announced that tickets for the annual banquet may now be obtained from members of the board of directors. The banquet will be April 24 at the Washington Golf and Country Club. The executive committee will meet tomorrow at noon at the Owl Tavern, Wilson boulevard, Fort Myer Heights.

Village Style Show

Colonial Village—Women of Colonial Village, Arlington, will act as models at the special spring style show to be held in the ladrge ballroom of the Community Building tonight. Latest styles in women's finery will be displayed.

Mrs. Marion Adis is in charge of the show and the models will be Mrs. M. R. Conklin, Mrs. James C. O'Brien, Mrs. Murell McCormick, Mrs. Joseph C. Bevis, Mrs. Ruth Cleveland, Mrs. Davy Crocker, Mrs. Elaine Collins and Miss Kitty Bryan.

Styles displayed will include dresses, coats, suits, beach outfits and accessories. The show, which will open at 8 o'clock, is under the auspices of the recreational department of the village. There will be no admission charge.

Kiwanians Hear Col. Miller

Country Club Hills—Col. Harvey L. Miller, Commanding Officer, Fifth Battalion, Fleet Marine Reserve, a member of the District of Columbia Boxing Commission, was guest speaker at luncheon meeting of the Arlington Kiwanis Club yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club. He took as his subject, "Boxing," and compared many of the present day boxers with those of years ago. As a member of the rating committee of the National Boxing Association he explained how the committee rated Tony Galento as the leading contender for the crown of Joe Louis, heavyweight champion.

Soroptimist Club Meets

Arlington—Alice Hanson Jones, assistant chief of Cost of Living Division, Bureau of Labor, will be guest speaker at meeting of the Arlington Soroptimist Club tonight. Miss Jones will speak on "International Aspect of Raising Standard of Living." The meeting will be held at 7:15 p. m. at the Little Tea House on South Arlington Ridge road.

Mrs. Japhet Quits

Clarendon.—Announcement of the resignation of Mrs. Viola Japhet as executive director of the Instructive Visiting Nurses Association was made at a meeting of the board of directors last night. Reason given was ill health.

Reports from the field staff show that in February there were 34 new cases, 65 patients cared for and a total of 240 home visits made.

Lenten Service

Clarendon.—Special Lenten services will be conducted at 8 o'clock tonight at St. George's Episcopal Church by the Rev. Boyd R. Hawarth, rector of Trinity Church, Arlington. At 10:30 a. m. there will be a celebration of holy communion.

Discovered Hayden

Russell Hayden, actor now on "Sunset Trail," is a personal discovery of Harry Sherman, who found him working in the studio film laboratory. Sherman gave him a job as business manager and from that he graduated to a role in the Hopalong Cassidy films.

Bethesda Play Center Dedication Set Tomorrow

Montgomery County Bureau of the Post, 9713 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone SHepherd 4200.

Bethesda.—Elaborate exercises will mark dedication of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase recreational center at 2 p. m. tomorrow, in which county officials, civic leaders and school children will take part.

Park Commissioner Lacy Shaw, of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will formally turn the keys to the new center over to Thomas Earle Hampton, president of the board of county commissioners, who will accept them on behalf of the people of Montgomery County. Talks will be given by Chief Engineer Irving C. Root, of the Park and Planning Commission; the Rev. Henry J. Whiting, of the Youth Research Council, and Emory H. Bogley, of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, who will preside.

The program will include community singing led by junior and senior high school choruses and a concert by the combined school bands. A musical program also is being arranged for tomorrow night. The center will be open for public inspection tomorrow from 1 to 9:30 p. m.

The program is being arranged by a committee including Mrs. John H. Werner (chairman), Mrs. George Bryant, the Rev. Mr. Whiting, Mr. Bogley, Mrs. Preston C. Alexander, Mrs. Howard R. Richardson, Miss Maude Duvall, W. Bradford Bayliss, Mrs. William N. Morell, John L. Imirie, H. H. Downs, Mrs. Arthur J. Hilland and Thomas Mohler.

The center is located on the site of the experimental farm operated by the United States Department of Agriculture. The land and administration buildings were deeded to Maryland three years ago by Congress for park purposes after the Department of Agriculture transferred its experimental station to Beltsville.

Legislative Banquet

Takoma Park—The Young Men's Democratic Club of Takoma Park will hold a special "legislative banquet" at Annapolis Monday, April 3, it was announced yesterday by Ralph G. Shure, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Arrangements are being made, Shure said, to accommodate several hundred Montgomery County residents who will travel to Annapolis that evening. Special guests being invited include Gov. O'Conor, Senator Arthur H. Brice, president of the Maryland Senate; Delegate Thomas E. Conlon, Speaker of the House of Delegates, and the Montgomery and Prince Georges County representatives in the Maryland General Assembly.

Club to Give Play

Chevy Chase—The drama section of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase will present a play, "Short Story," at 8:30 p. m. Saturday in the clubhouse, directed by Mrs. Jane Plummer Rice.

The cast includes Frederick M. Kerby, Patricia Lucas, Mrs. David P. Wolhaupter, Mrs. H. Freeborn Johnston, Irving M. Day, J. A. Bishop, Mrs. Robert Klemeyer and Mrs. Thomas M. Wilkins.

Maryland Day

Leland.—Maryland Day will be celebrated Saturday by the Women's Democratic Club of Leland. Chevy Chase, by a pilgrimage to Annapolis where members of the club will join with Secretary of State John B. Gontrum in planting a memorial tree on the grounds of the Governor's mansion. After the ceremony members of the club will call on Governor and Mrs. O'Conor.

Country Ham Dinner

Damascus. — Members of the Ladies' Aid of the Damascus Methodist Episcopal Church will hold a baked chicken and country ham dinner in the Sunday school room of the church Saturday from 4 to 8 p. m.

Two Indorsed for Board

Woodside.—William H. Reynolds, of North Woodside, and Stephen James, of Linden, have been indorsed by the Woodside Civic Association to fill the vacancy on the Montgomery County Board of Education caused by the resignation of Elmer E. Boyner. The names which also have been recommended by the Montgomery Blair Senior High School will be sent to Gov. O'Conor for consideration. Elimination of traffic hazards at Georgia avenue and the District line and widening of Georgia avenue from Maple avenue, where it forms a bottleneck, to Montgomery Hills, is being sought by the association. Plans were discussed for holding a garden contest this summer.

Church School Banquet

Woodside—The church school of the Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church will hold a banquet tomorrow at 6:15 p. m. at the church. The Rev. John C. Millian, conference director of religious education, will make the address. The banquet is one of a series of affairs which are being held this week to observe the dedication of the new $60,000 church sanctuary.

Beautification Supported

Seven Oaks—Seven Oaks Manor Citizens Association has pledged its support to the Montgomery Blair High School Parent-Teacher Association in any action it takes to improve and beautify the school continue its efforts to have funds grounds. The association voted to for an addition to the Parkside School provided in the school program for 1939-40.

Takoma Park Jubilee

Takoma Park—Final arrangements for the golden jubilee celebration of the Takoma Park Citizens Association to be held at 8 p. m., Saturday at the Takoma, D. C., library, Fifth and Cedar streets northwest, were completed last night at a meeting of the committee headed by Dr. William Hooker, in charge of the event.

After presentation of civic leaders in Washington and Montgomery counties by Dr. Guy Clinton, president, there will be an entertainment and reception.

Pictures taken of the town 50 years ago will be shown by Mrs. Mary Lamond White, pioneer resident and vice president. John B. Kinnear, charter member and former Mayor of Takoma Park, Md., will speak.

The life of Benjamin F. Gilbert, founder of Takoma Park, will be described by L. R. Grabill, former councilman. The musical program will be under the direction of Herman von Bernewitz and Leonard W. Kephart.

Colesville—The annual banquet of the 4-H clubs of Montgomery County will be held Saturday night in the M. E. Church here and is expected to be attended by approximately 175 members of the various 4-H clubs and others. John Clark, of Rockville, will be toastmaster and speakers will include Miss Gertrude Warren, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture; George Lechlider, Ann Lee Tipton and Edwina Hambleton.

The committee in charge is composed of Russell Umstead, chairman; George Lechlider and Carolyn Barnsley, with Miss Edythe M. Turner, home demonstration agent for the county, and Rufus B. King, assistant county agricultural agent, assisting.

Curtiss Will Probated

Rockville.—Mrs. Zettie Curry Curtiss is sole beneficiary under the will of her husband, Glen E. Curtiss, of Kenwood, which has been admitted to probate in Orphans' Court. The instrument, executed June 30, 1930, names her executrix.

Divorce Suit Filed

Rockville.—On the ground that the defendant have voluntarily lived apart for the past five years, Mrs. Isabella W. Branch, of Montgomery County, has filed suit in Circuit Court for an absolute divorce from Leland Branch, of Philadelphia. Their marriage took place at Oswego, N. Y., in October, 1923, and there are no children, the petition states. Attorney F. Barnard Welsh, of Rockville, represents the plaintiff.

Jones Will Probated

Rockville.—Miss Helen E. Jopes, a sister of charity, receives a cash bequest, and Miss Bernadine M. Jones the residue of the estate under the will of their mother, Mrs. Lillie E. Jones, of Dickerson, which has been admitted to probate in the Orphans' Court. Miss Bernadine Jones is named executrix. The value of the estate was not given.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6917, folio 373, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the beneficiaries thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on FRIDAY, THE THIRTY-FIRST DAY OF MARCH, 1939, AT FOUR-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to-wit: Lot 3 in Block 10 of James L. Sherwood and Jesse R. Sherwood's subdivision known as "Sherwood's Addition to Brookland," as per plat recorded in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber County 15 at folio 14; said Block 10 being now known for purposes of assessment and taxation as Square 4144.

TERMS OF SALE: Property will be sold subject to a prior deed of trust for $5,000.00 at 5½ per cent, due August 31, 1939; balance cash. A deposit of $300.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit same now being known for the purposes of taxation and assessment as Lots No. 7 and 8 in Square 3926 in the District of Columbia, together with the improvements thereon.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash the balance in two equal installments represented by the promissory notes of the purchaser, payable in one and two years with interest at six per cent per annum from date of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $300.00 cash or certified check required of purchaser at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in the City of Washington, D. C.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Play may be fascinating, but it is binding that creates controversy and criticism and excites the most interest in bridge.

While usually there is only one line of play that will succeed, there are several methods of reaching the right contract. Bidding, at best, is a matter of opinion, and tactics that work brilliantly for some will ruin others.

However, while we cannot always cite the one method of correct bidding, since there may be more than one, we can always determine the incorrect procedure and expose it for whatever reason it is faulty.

A bidding problem has been presented for today's discussion. The first has to do with a pre-emptive bid. Here is what the contributor, T. S. A., has to say:

"Being in the unfortunate position of feeling that I am entirely right, but being held at fault by others, I should appreciate your comment on this hand. East and West are vulnerable, and East is dealer:

♡ 7 5 3
◇ None
♣ A K J 10 8 6 5 3 2

NORTH / WEST / EAST / SOUTH

♠ A Q J 7 4 3 2
♡ K 6
◇ J 6 4

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♡	4 ♠	Pass	5 ♣
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	6 ♣
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	7 ♠
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

"The grand slam was set five tricks.

"I maintain that my partner should have passed by shut-out bid, or, if bid he must, he should have bid six clubs, which I would have passed, owing to the heart bid on my right.

"Which of us is right, and, if we are both wrong, what is the correct bidding on the hand?"

"When you feel positive is the time you are most likely to be wrong." Some wise old contract player told us this a long time ago, and each succeeding instance of certainly proves him right.

Contributor T. S. A. is no exception. The hand should be played at clubs, not spades. South's cards are more valuable to North than North's are to south.

North was correct in going to five clubs, and South should have realized that in all probability North's suit was better than his, else North would have no occasion to disturb the auction. South should have passed five clubs.

The most North can lose at clubs is a club and two hearts. With a little luck he may lose only one heart and no clubs, but six clubs is a risky bid.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

New Section Chief

TRUMAN FELT, Indianan, who came to the WPA Press Information Section in 1936, yesterday became the section's chief under appointment by Col. F. C. Harrington, administrator.

Felt began his career on the Indianapolis Star, and after working on a number of Midwestern newspapers spent eight years as city editor and later as associate editor of the Miami Daily News. He was news commentator for radio station WIOD in Miami and was a special writer for American Legion National Headquarters in 1922-23.

He enlisted in April, 1917, in Battery A, First Indiana Field Artillery, and served overseas in the Forty-second Division for 18 months. Felt was graduated from Butler University, Indianapolis, and is a member of Phi Delta Theta and Tau Kappa Alpha Fraternities.

A GOVERNMENT official the other day gave this column his views in defense of secret personnel folders, and what he said has drawn reply from a Commerce Department employe, as follows:

"Whoever that someone in the big agency that called to question the interest of the personnel generally—don't let him kid you; not only are they interested in the secret personnel folders, but they talk a great deal about them. The way to find out is to give them a chance to express their feelings. The secret personnel folders of the U. S. Bureaucracy is the most undemocratic institution in the U. S. The system is used to blacklist employes unjustly and in an un-American manner. I hope you will keep after this question until it is made an open forum subject."

The Federal Diary agrees with the view of its correspondent and will gladly accept the views of others on the matter.

THE LONG-PROJECTED inquiry by Senator Allen Joseph Ellender, of Louisiana, into petty czarism in the Federal bureaus begins Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in room 357, Senate Office Building. Tentatively, the meeting will open with a questioning of civil service officials on promotions, procedures and other regulations of employes. When this is done the committee will call witnesses to prove the Louisiana Senator's allegation that certain employes have been tyrannized and others have been withheld from promotion because they were lacking in charm or a pretty face. Department chiefs have promised Ellender that employes who testify before the committee will not be penalized. The department chiefs have even said that they will co-operate to the fullest in the investigation.

NOW COMES the first story of human interest from the recent Nation-wide agonies of paying the annual income tax. The yarn, drifting into the Washington headquarters, concerns a Maine woman who demurred when told that the figures she submitted indicated that she should file a return and pay taxes. Her lawyer, she replied, had said she needn't file a return. "Did your lawyer have all the figures on your 1938 income?" the agents asked her. "No, she replied, unguardedly; "I don't see why I should tell him all of my business."

JOBS: (open competitive examinations) associate health specialist, $3,200; assistant health education specialist, $2,600; Public Health Service aerologist, $3,800, Air Safety Board, CAA. Excepting certain substitutions, a four-year college course, with major study in meteorology engineering or physics and professional experience in aeronautical meteorology are required. Aircraft mechanics (motors) for the Naval Operating Base at Norfolk are wanted. The pay is from $7.48 to $8.44 a day (40-hour week). This has to do with aviation engines. Recent examinations for the jobs of shipfitter at the Charleston, S. C., Navy Yard, did not produce enough eligibles, leaving the jobs still open. The pay is $6.91 to $7.87 a day (40-hour week).

THE THIRD annual banquet and dance of the Social Security Board, U. F. W. A. Local, will be held Saturday night in the Press Club, featuring a gridiron program of banter between the SSB employes and members of the board . . . Agriculture's playwriting contest ends with winners as follows: "Lost and Found," by Elizabeth Soderberg; "Coyotes Howl at the Moon," by Mary Burke Marshall," and "Money Cures Everything," by Jack Selby. The plays will be presented some time in May.

Bob Burns Says—

There's a guy out in Denver who's suddenly took to walkin' backward. Claims he can't help himself, there's an urge inside that makes him do it. Psychiatrists, them fellers that figgers out all funny brain kinks, claim he's trying' to back out of somethin' he's run into in life. Or maybe he's tryin' to walk back into the past where he had a better time. Anyhow, this guy is goin' in reverse at a great rate an' he seems to be happy about it; but the doctors won't let him alone. People aren't supposed to get ahead by walkin' backward, an' they jest' won't allow it.

But, shucks! There's times when a step or two backward can do you a lot of good. My Uncle Toot was in a restaurant once that was bein' held up. A robber had a gun against his ribs an' said: "Git back in that corner there, you—an' fork over your money! Uncle Toot tried to oblige. He stepped back an' landed smack on the corns of a lady customer, who let out a shriek of agony that made the robber drop his gun an' beat it. That backward step saved my uncle a hundred an' two dollars an' kept anyone in the restaurant from bein' robbed. So they shouldn't be too hard on this poor guy. Maybe, if he keeps on, he'll really walk into somethin'!

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Too Many Hungry Neighbors

'Tis passing strange how some survive
And on their weakness seem to thrive.
—Harrier the Marsh Hawk.

It was discouraging. Danny Meadow House said so. Nanny Meadow Mouse said so. What was discouraging? Why trying to live and bring up a lot of children in the midst of so many enemies.

"If they would all forget to be hungry for just one day it would help some," sighed Danny.

"Providing they all chose the same day to lose their appetites," said Nanny.

"Of couse," replied Danny.

"I guess there are few who have to watch out for as many hungry neighbors as we do," squeaked Nanny. "There are Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy."

"Where?" demanded Danny anxiously as he prepared to run.

"Nowhere. Don't be silly. I was just starting to name some of those who are always looking for us," replied Nanny.

"Oh," said Danny. "Well, there is Old Man Coyote.

"Yes, and Harrier the Marsh Hawk and other members of the Hawk family," added Nanny.

"And at night Hooty the Owl, but especially Spooky the Screech Owl and Monkeyface the Barn Owl, not to mention some other members of the family," said Danny.

"And Black Pussy the Cat," said Nanny.

"We are never safe when Jimmy Skunk is prowling around looking for grubs or grasshoppers. He had just as soon have one of us," continued Danny.

"And don't forget Shadow the Weasel," criel Nanny.

"Or his cousin, Billy Mink. Whenever he happens to be around he is dangerous," said Danny.

"And Blacky the Crow isn't anyone we want to run in front of," added Nanny.

"It is the same way with Bobby Coon. He doesn't come on the Green Meadows much excepting when he is crossing to the cornfield, but I'm told he had just as soon have a Mouse as not." This was from Danny.

"They do say that Longlegs the Heron likes members of our family and that it isn't safe for a Mouse to show himself in his neighborhood," contributed Nanny.

"And Mr. Blacksnake! Don't forget him!" cried Danny.

Nanny shivered. "As if I could," said she.

"And Butcher the Shrike in winter" went on Danny.

"There is one you're forgotten," said Nanny.

"Who?" Danny demanded in that funny squeak of a voice of his.

"Unc' Billy Possum," replied Nanny.

"That true," agreed Danny. "I had forgotten him. I guess he likes the Green Forest better than the Green Meadows the same as Bobby Coon. But when I know he is around I keep out of sight. Nanny Meadow Mouse I think you're a wonder. I think we are both wonders."

"How so?" Nanny wanted to know, and she looked puzzled.

"To have kept alive so long with so many hungry neighbors looking for us and most of them supposed to be smarter than we are," explained Danny

"Look up there!" squeaked Nanny. "Mrs. Harrier did come back with Harrier. There are both, way up there in the sky."

Danny looked. Sure enough there were the two Marsh Hawks high above them. Even as the two Mice watched Harrier began to fall. "See! Something has happened to Harrier! Perhaps we won't have him to watch out for after all," squeaked Danny in great excitement.
